Conforming Youth Alarm Scholar

OXFORD, England (AP) — John Wain once was an angry young man, one of the new wave of writers who 30 years ago challenged and changed the English way of thinking.

Today, he is the 50-year-old professor of poetry at Oxford University and, if no longer angry, more than a trifle anxious.

Looking across the generation gap to his own days as an Oxford student, Wain told an interviewer: "In my time we thought of ourselves as socialists but we were still individuals.

"The kids today, however, seem to welcome uniformity. They all look alike, whether boys or girls. The same blue jeans, the same lank hair.

"We aoud have thought it inconceivable to live as in Communist China, all wearing the same drab uniform. This generation would welcome it—and don't think that's funny."

Wain emerged as a major British writer in the 1950s with Hurry On Down, a novel defining the pompolities of English convention.

His Oxford professorship arrived in 1973 and lasts five years. The job is unique in that the holder is not appointed but elected by the votes of all Oxford graduates.

His pay is a mere $1,600 a year. Not that the job is arduous. The basic duty is to deliver three lectures a year, all on one day if he wants.

His real living comes from writing—a string of novels, poetry, criticism, including an influential work on Shakespeare and, most recently, a biography of Samuel Johnson.

His work schedule is rigid. For four hours each morning he shuts himself away at his typewriter and his wife Eirian fends off callers.

Afternoons are spent walking or canoeing on the river near his North Oxford home. Two more hours at the typewriter follow five o'clock tea.

In his fashion he spent the best part of three years, backed by a lifetime's reading, on his Johnson, some 300,000 words on a man already more written about than any other English literary figure since Shakespeare. Could he find anything new to say? Nothing new in terms of fact, Wain replied.

But in terms of character, it is. Wain believes the essential Johnson has been distorted in the popular impression of a conversational bludgeoner, shooting down anyone who dared question his views.

Similarly with Johnson's table talk: "I can recall only two or three occasions when he was downright rude to anyone, and he was a man whose every word was recorded year after year.

Controlled Fullness Stays At Top of Fashion Charts

MILAN, Italy (CP) — Fall interest in clothing includes a new hitch across green, grey, Harris tweed and reversible fabrics, according to the couture collection of Sofia Loren in this northern Italian city.

Mila Schon, who came here about 15 years ago from Dalmatia, has stores here and in Rome and offers both haute-couture and ready-to-wear. Several Canadian stores, including Bell Bentley, buy from her semi-annual ready-to-wear collections.

Her fall ready-to-wear line has already been shown to buyers while her couture will be shown in July in Rome.

Fullness is still in her collections but more controlled, as in a cinnamon-green wool coat with two deep front and back pleats, falling from a pitched yoke.

Knits continue everywhere to be popular and Mila Schon has included several blue coats. One in bright orange, with a ribbed collar that extends over the shoulder, will retail in Milan and in Canada for around $650.

The most expensive coat in the fall haute-couture collection is an mitred four-layered cashmere, cut on the bias, at $1,500. A yard of the fabric alone costs $300.

One double flannel suit with pleated skirt had its long jacket in horizontal blue-and-green-green stripes but with plain sleeves, collar and borders.

Upstairs from the elegant boutique, where pure silk blouses cost as high as $150, is the Alta Moda showroom of white walls and beige-mirrors, with a tier seating arrangement on brown suede cushions like a Roman arena. Below the main salon is the men's department in a white-washed cellar effect of arches and caves.

One of the ready-to-wear houses in Milan is called Bloom. It's fashionable in Italy to take English names so that the labels will suggest imports.

The company was started 19 years ago by the husband and wife team of Stepano and Cinzia Cinzia is the designer. Until this year the firm produced only casual clothes. Now they have added a dress line. Cinzia still likes the sporty look and has included a loose dress with wider three-quarter sleeves so that a light sweater can be worn underneath.

The Ottenas also have a men's line called Punch. For the fall suits they are making shorter and wider-shouldered jackets that touch the hips for almost a square shape, a radical departure from the popular Italian look. Several jackets had long lapels almost to the waist.

Vests still are important. The vest is often a different fabric but the trend is for vest and pants to match with the jacket in a co-ordinated color or even in a different fabric. Punch had a bit this spring with velvet ties of silk-and-viscose.

The other ready-to-wear house is Justine. Here the loose look still prevails for the fall coats. One jacket cut in monk brown wool sported a hood and huge pockets. A three-piece costume included a dress in a green-brown-and-white floral pattern on brown, tucked in front to the waist, to fall in soft sand. There was also a vest and a Chanel-style jacket in brown and rust tweed, lined in the same tweed as the dress. The designers at Justine like ponchos but found buyer resistance. For winter they predict popularity of natural colors such as browns and earth tones and also grey.

Facial Lines Make Her Look Mad

Dear Doris: Doris: I have a deep problem. I have deep double lines on my forehead. The older I get the worse the frown gets.

I am 58. People think I am mad looking. When I am tired it is worse, too. — Frowner.

Dear Frowner: Better find out the cause. It may be eye strain, worrying, or just a bad habit.

When you are in bright sunlight do you wear sun glasses for protection from the glare? Do you give your eyes any consideration at all, or do you watch the TV screen until you are weary?

If your sight or even your hearing is impaired, the concentration required to overcome such defects brings about tensions that might cause the frown.

Get your eyes tested, and if you need new glasses, get them.

If you just have a bad habit of frowning you'll need to cultivate a serene expression.

And there is a stunt I have seen used successfully — put a strip of adhesive across the frown mark, to wear when you are working around the house or at night. It keeps you from starting to furrow that brow.

Of course you have to give your skin daily care: a massage with a good cream, giving special attention to where the frown lines are. To finish off, pat the skin briskly with a skin tonic or ice water. Then relax and get a good night's sleep.

Ann Landers

How Terrific Is Bachelorhood?

Dear Ann Landers: Will you please settle an argument? It between three couples—all married. We were having a discussion the other night about the joys of marriage versus the woes. One man was telling about his bachelor brother—what a great life he is leading and how he envies the guy. (I felt sorry for the fellow's wife.) I think he convinced a few people that marriage was fine for women but not so good for men.

Is bachelorhood all that terrific? What are the statistics? Perhaps with your medical connections and your friends at the Menninger Clinic you can provide some answers. Does staying single mean never having to say you're sorry?—Unscrewed.

Dear Un: According to my medical friends and the experts in the field of mental health, married men fare much better than bachelors.

Bachelors have more physical illnesses, and more emotional breakdowns. They drink more and have a shorter life span. They are seven times more likely to commit crimes and 22 times more likely to be in prison or jail. Every happiness poll I have ever read indicates that single men are the unhappiest lot in the world.

Dear Ann: My story is true and my life is just beginning. I only hope that my letter will encourage others to seek help and help themselves—as I did.

Three years ago I attempted suicide. I was terribly depressed and life had no meaning. I didn't love my husband to whom I had been married for several years. He was cruel and domineering. I was terrified of him because he slapped me and pushed me around.

Today I am divorced and becoming a real person. I have a good job, keep my home beautifully and have learned that I can do almost anything if I put my mind to it.

Counseling has been my backbone. I see a psychiatrist every week and have been in therapy for over a year. Progress comes an inch at a time because we must work very hard to change ourselves.

Counseling need not be expensive. Some counseling is free. United Fund agencies, Catholic Family Services, community mental health centres and many others are available and eager to help.

If you suffer from "nervous," depression and mental anguish, please call your doctor, pastor, rabbi or priest, school principal, AA, Al-Anon, The Salvation Army, Community Mental Health Centre or the United Fund. If they have no answers, ask them to recommend someone. The first step is the hardest. It takes courage.

I wake up each morning and smile in my mirror. Then I look out the window and smile at the world. It's so good to feel well and counseling has made the difference. I have a long way to go but at least I've begun.—You'll Know Me By My Smile

Dear Smile: Thanks for repeating something I've been saying for years.

No longer can people use the excuse, "I can't afford professional help." It needn't cost $40 an hour. As you pointed out, many agencies sell help groups and counseling services do a wonderful job for a modest fee or no fee at all.

Regarding counseling for sex problems: I urge all my readers to stay out of the yellow pages. There are thousands of phonies around who prey on desperate people. The best clinics are connected with universities and hospitals. And beware of "group therapy" or the suggestion of surrogate partners for sex problems. Both approaches can be very damaging.

Quinte Cuisine

Good cooking is just one creative endeavor of Sonja Blocha, water colourist and graphic design student at Loyalist College. She's the mother of two — Andrew, 8, and Matthew, 6 — and she and husband John live in West Park Village. Sonja, who is also a weaver and active member of the Belleville Art Association, often makes this chicken dish for guests.

Chicken Breasts Perigourdine

eight whole chicken breasts 1½ cups chicken broth
butter or margarine
12 large fresh mushrooms, sliced
one-third cup flour
¼ tsp salt
two tbsp light cream
two egg yolks
½ tsp salt
dash cayenne pepper
¼ cup melted butter or margarine one tbsp lemon juice
three tbsp sherry

Begin 90 minutes before serving.

Bone breasts, reserving bones. Simmer bones in broth, covered, one hour. Discard bones, reserve the broth.

In a small amount of butter, in a skillet you can put in the oven, gently brown chicken breasts on both sides adding more butter as needed. Remove breasts. In more butter, saute mushrooms in the same skillet until golden. Remove. Into the dripping, stir flour, ¼ tsp salt, broth (add water if necessary to measure 1½ cups) and cream. Cook, stirring over medium heat, until thick and smooth. Place breasts in sauce, simmer gently, covered, about 20 minutes until tender.

Meanwhile, preheat broiler 10 minutes. Also make Hollandaise sauce: In a small bowl, beat egg yolk with hand mixer until thick. Add ¼ tsp salt and cayenne pepper.

Add ¼ cup melted butter, one tsp at a time, beating constantly. Combine remaining ¾ cup melted butter and lemon juice. Slowly add two tsp at a time to egg yolk mixture, beating constantly. Refrigerate.

When chicken is tender, add sherry and mushrooms and spread Hollandaise Sauce over chicken. Broil one minute until golden brown. Serve garnished with parsley. Serves four to eight.

Classic Philosophical Fight Behind Saskatchewan Rhetoric

REGINA (CP) — Behind the confusing array of accusations and insinuations being hurled at each other by Saskatchewan politicians over the resources issue is a head-on clash of starkly different philosophies.

At times, the political leaders campaigning for the June 11 election seem almost to be borrowing one another's words as they defend the province's right to control its oil and potash resources, criticize federal resource policy and say that the provincial government is entitled to a large slice of recent increases in oil and potash prices.

Each leader will also paint rosy pictures of what economic marvels his party can accomplish with resource revenues and what economic troubles would be caused by the other parties.

But despite the shared rhetoric, the political debate is almost a classic case of confrontation between the philosophies of private enterprise and public ownership.

Premier Allan Blakeney argues that the province's current prosperity and social reforms instituted by his four-year-old NDP government depend on the high levels of oil and potash royalties and taxes set by the province in the last 18 months.

In declaring the election, he named resources the No. 1 issue and said "at stake are several hundred million dollars a year."

"Liberals say that the lion's share of our resources should go to Ottawa, to the multinational corporations and to consumers in Central Canada."

Asserting that Saskatchewan resources must be controlled by and for Saskatchewan people, he defends the government's creation of Crown corporations—Saskoil and the Potash Corp. of Saskatchewan—that are designed to play a major role in the resource industry.

The government's potash policy specifically requires a majority government interest in any new potash mine in the province. Private interests must also offer the government a majority share in significant new mineral projects.

The oil and potash companies have reacted to government policy by reducing spending in Saskatchewan on oil exploration and technological development and declaring that potash expansion plans have been shelved.

The government reaction has been to blame the oil industry's decline on federal policies and foreign factors such as high U.S. incentives for oil exploration.

It has also accused the potash companies of delaying expansion announcements until after the election to lend credence to arguments of the opposition Liberals.

NDP campaign literature promises to increase direct government participation in exploration for and development of potash, oil, hard-rock minerals, natural gas, coal and uranium.

But Liberal Leader Dave Steuart and his party also contend they are striking a responsive chord among the public as they blast the Blakeney government for, in their words, driving private capital out of the province and wasting a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity.

A standard passage in Mr. Steuart's speeches describes how successive Saskatchewan premiers had to offer large concessions to private capital for resource development projects.

He then contrasts their situations to that of Premier Blakeney who, Mr. Steuart says, found himself the first premier in a seller's market as world demand for oil and potash, among other resources, skyrocketed.

In potash alone, the Liberal leader says, the province would eventually see its nine potash mines increase to 20 employing 150,000 persons directly or indirectly—a massive labor force increase for a province of only 926,000 people.

"Potash can make us rich, can make us independent" he asserts.

On oil, the Liberal leader promises to repeal Bill 42, which 17 months ago set steep new royalties.

Parole Termed Farce

MONTREAL (CP) — Police and security force officials interviewed at the weekend funeral of Det.-Sgt. Gilles Beauvais, slain Montreal policeman, said the death penalty should be restored and parole procedures revised.

"This is the third time Montreal policemen are mourning the death of a colleague who died in the line of duty," Jean Boulay, chaplain of the Montreal Urban Community (MUC) police force, said in his eulogy.

"This freedom by parole is a grotesque farce. More than half of all crimes committed each year are committed by people who are on parole.

Chopper Beat Climbing Wall

JACKSON, Mich. (AP) — Dale Otis Renling says he pulled a helicopter escape from the Southern Michigan state prison because he is getting too old to scale its walls.

Renling, 46, is to be arraigned today on skyjacking charges in U.S. District Court in Detroit and on state kidnapping charges in Jackson.

Object to Bill

TORONTO (CP) — The board of governors of the Ontario Teachers' Federation (OTF) will seek amendments to the proposed Bill 100 concerning negotiation of collective agreements between school boards and teachers, OTF sources say.

They said major OTF objections to the bill are the denial to principals and vice-principals of the right to strike, and the "broad powers" proposed for the education relations commission as outlined in the bill.

Denies Meat Charge

CORBEN, Ont. (CP) — Russell Coupland, a dead stock service operator here, denied Saturday reports that he has sold meat unfit for human consumption.

Mr. Coupland was responding to testimony given Friday at the Quebec Police Commission inquiry into organized crime that identified him as one of several Ontario meat salvagers who had sold bad meat to distributors.

He said he had fired one of his employees, whom he did not identify, in the spring of 1966 because he suspected him of selling the meat.

Killing Common

TORONTO (CP) — The Criminal Code should be amended to protect doctors who practise "passive" euthanasia—"which they all do illegally at the present time," Dr. Robert Goudreau of Quebec City said Saturday.

Dr. Goudreau, director of professional services at Laval University Hospital Centre, said most doctors feel their role is to prolong not shorten life and are against euthanasia in any but "passive" form.

Against Restraint

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP). — Wage and price restraints are not the answer to Canada's economic problems and "the sooner everyone recognizes that fact of life, the better off we will all be," Mike Rygus, vice-president of the Canadian branch of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers, said Saturday.

Liberal Buyers?

Time Debate Takes New Twist

OTTAWA (CP) — The alleged involvement of former executives of the Liberal party in attempts to purchase the Canadian edition of Time magazine is expected to be debated in the Commons this week.

Walter Baker, Progressive Conservative deputy House leader, says reports of the activities of the Liberals has added a new element to the Time-Reader's Digest debate.

He said it now appears doubtful that the government legislation that would remove tax exemptions given advertisers in the two American-owned magazines will get through the Commons this week.

The legislation, designed to direct advertising dollars to Canadian-owned magazines, will return to the Commons for second reading debate Wednesday.

The government had hoped that the legislation would receive approval in principle then and be sent to committee for detailed examination.

The Conservatives have strongly opposed the legislation and have received support from some Liberals.

Mr. Baker says a new element is a Toronto statement by Stephen S. Latkie, president of Time Canada Ltd., that a Liberal has been involved in the search for a domestic buyer to save the Canadian edition of Time from extinction.

Mr. LaHue said last week the Liberal is John Nichol of Vancouver, former senator, former president of the Liberal Party of Canada and a director of Time Canada.

He was commenting on reports that said Mr. Nichol and Torrance Wylie, former national director of the Liberal Party, organized a group to buy 75 per cent of Time Canada to help the domestic edition qualify as Canadian under the government's legislation.

Mr. LaHue said neither of the men made any direct offer to buy a controlling interest in the publication.

The Time-Reader's Digest legislation is one of the bills the government wants to get through the Commons before summer adjournment in July.

Auto Unemployment Declines Slightly

DETROIT (AP) — The unemployment toll in the troubled United States auto industry will decline slightly this week, affecting 161,141 employees from the blue-collar work force numbering 712,000 at four companies.

Last week, with three Ford assembly lines shut down, the ranks of jobless auto workers was 182,241, say company reports.

American car assembly lines will be rolling on a limited basis in all United States auto plants today, while Ford Motor Co. will suspend truck assembly at its Louisville, Ky., plant for the week.

The decline in layoffs is the result of worker recalls at Chrysler Corp. and Ford, along with the re-start of production at three Ford assembly lines.

On Friday, GM is shutting its Wilmington, Del., plant for nine weeks for model changeover. The plant will produce when it reopens, industry sources said the plant will be tooling up for the company's new minicar, the Chevette.

Though GM refuses to say what Wilmington now produces slow-selling full-size Chevrolets and Buicks, GM said 1,150 hourly workers at the plant will be on layoff during the shutdown, while 775 will remain on the job.

Ford's Louisville one-week truck shutdown will layoff 3,500 employees for a week. Another 350 employees will be placed on indefinite layoffs at scattered locations, while 250 were called back.

Ford said 23,075 of its 174,000 hourly workers and GM said 102,000 of the firm's 400,000 hourly workers remain on indefinite layoff. GM plants will be operation for the 19th straight week.

Rain-drenched Fastball Marathon Goes Record 26 Innings

By ALAN TEWORTH

A few of the some 100 spectators that showed up at the scheduled Ontario Fastball League doubleheader between Belleville McDonald's and St. Catharines Mr. Jackets at the Alemitas Saturday night may have been a little disappointed because the second game of the pair was postponed. But those who didn't mind cooling off got their money's worth from the first game.

The game started at 7.30, and by the time it was all over, about four and one-quarter hours later, no fewer than 26 full innings, a new OFL record had been played. Unfortunately, there has to be a winner and a loser in a marathon like the one Saturday night, and the loser this time was the home team.

After coming up with a pair of runs in the bottom of the seventh frame of the scheduled seven inning contest to send the game into extra innings, the Carlos Carlos of the Macs in the top of the 26th, sending them to their 11th loss in 12 games.

The visitors drew first blood early in the game, cashing in in the top of the 3rd for a first inning run, adding another in the sixth, carrying a 2-1 lead into the bottom of the seventh for the Macs to shoot at.

Mike Carlos started the comeback, leading off the seventh with a single, but was erased on a fielder's choice with Steve Ling attempting to sacrifice him over. A two-out double by Paul Goodfellow scored Ling from first. Terry Meagher followed with a single to send in 'Goody' with the tying run.

That set the stage for 18 innings of scoreless fastball, most of it played in a heavy mist that made the outfield particularly hazardous to play in, with the field becoming very slippery. Pitchers for both teams, Belleville's Steve Ethier and St. Kitts' Dick Balint, found the ball very difficult to grip. This didn't seem to throw the pair of starters, however, as is shown in their statistics for the contest.

The wet weather may have put the game on ice, but superb clutch pitching by both Balint and Ethier shut off any earlier rallies.

Balint first fired blanks past 32 Belleville batsmen, walking only three, two of them intentional. He was nicked for 11 hits. Ethier surrendered 18 hits, five of them in the 26th frame. He struck out 26, and issued three free passes as well, one of them intentional.

Fuston led the winners with four safeties, while Nisbitt had a double and two singles, with Beckman adding three singles. Goodfellow was tops at the bat for Belleville, with a double and single. Pete Harrison had two singles, as did Larry Maveety and Steve Ling.

Sunday, rain forced cancellation of the McDonald's-Huntington Anzeser Provisioners' match at the Alemite, with play in the third inning.

Belleville's Jim Chase had just retired Doug Moore on strikes when the umpires called a halt to proceedings with two out in the top of the third. There was no cover in the ball game. Hal Kemp was doing the pitching for the visitors.

In other weekend OFL action, Sunday games saw second blank Kitchener 26 and St. Catharines top Newmarket 7-5, while Hamilton Woodstock took both ends of a doubleheader from Toronto Globals, 5-1 and 1-0; Kitchener defeated Hamilton Scrappers twice, 4-3 and 3-2 and Burlington swept a pair from London Dukes, 4-3 and 1-0.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, MONDAY, JUNE 9, 1975

Belleville Olympics winger Ernie Brown was a busy player in the rain at Zwick's Island, Saturday. Here, he beats Quinte Hellenic goalie Angelos Haghristos to the ball. Brown sent ball into the goalmouth where Hellenic defender headed it into his own goal. Later in the game, Brown and Fundic Zdravko each scored twice to lead Olympics to 7-2 Premier Soccer League win.

Hellenic Falls to Olympics

"We seem to have nothing but bad luck," Quinte Hellenic goalkeeper Angelos Haghristos confided in a listener at half time of the team's Premier Soccer League match Saturday with Belleville Olympics at Zwick's Island pitch. Olympics caught fire in the late going to post a solid 7-2 win.

There was no arguing with Angelos' explanation of his club's problems. Olympics held a 2-0 lead at the interval and Haghristos had the misfortune to have Lady Luck turn her back on him on both Belleville scoring plays.

On the first Olympics' goal, Angelos was a shade late attempting to collar Ernie Brown to the side of the goal. Brown lofted the ball into the goalmouth where Hellenic defender Paul Laras was on hand. But it was a fleeting thing.

Hellenic got on the scoreboard when an Olympic defender attempted to pass the ball to goalkeeper Gary Donovan. Unfortunately for the Belleville side, the ball never reached the goalie. Hellenic's Jerry Smith got there first and it was 2-1.

It was a brand new game when Hellenic was awarded a penalty shot. Andy Venezis, given the opportunity to fire the equalizer, made no mistake.

But from the kickoff that followed, Brown, the busy Olympics' winger, regained the lead for Belleville and after that, it became a question of how many the winners would score. Hellenic simply wilted.

"After they (Hellenic) tied it, we realized we'd have to work to pull out a win," explained an Olympics's player.

And, work, the team did.

Fundic Zdravko whipped home two goals, Brown added another, and Dave Kidd wasted no time making his presence felt in the line-up. Ten seconds after Kidd got into action, he clicked for his team's seventh goal to round out the scoring.

The Hellenic-Toronto Ferma match has been switched from Saturday to Sunday. The teams hook up at Zwick's at 4 p.m.

Olympics are in Petroborough, Sunday, for a 6 p.m. game with Vi-Mars.

City Teams Sweep Three

EOBA Peewees, Tykes Produce

Belleville Broadloom Peewees are proving to be adept at coming up with Eastern Ontario Baseball Association wins on the road.

Twice in the weekend, the Lorne Crosskright — Carman Dafoe-coached Belleville squad earned narrow wins to run its season record to 3-2.

Sunday, the club scored single runs in the sixth and seventh innings to erase a 5-4 Peterborough Legion lead and pull out a 6-5 victory. Saturday in Whitby, Broadloom came through in the top half of the second extra inning, pushing a pair of runs home for the winning tally to nip the home team 8-7.

Tony Parks worked the first six innings for Belleville, Sunday, making five his lucky number. He allowed five runs, five hits, fanned five and walked five. Rory MacLeod came on to pitch the final frame, shelling out Peterborough while striking out one and walking one.

Al Henry and Dean Cruickshank shared the Peterborough pitching. Nicked for eight hits, they struck out six and walked six.

Glen McQuaid's triple was the big blow for the winners. Rich Manderville and Stu Emerson each cracked a pair of singles. Scott Dafoe, MacLeod and Mike Skelly shared the other Belleville singles.

Tops for the losers was Trevor Dodds with two singles.

McQuaid tolled the full nine innings for Broadloom in the Saturday win. He surrendered seven hits while pulling three strikes past 11 and walking six. Mike Welling and Rick Dunphy were the Whitby hurlers. They allowed nine safeties, fanned 10 and walked four.

Hugh Northey's triple and single powered the Belleville attack. John Dent checked in with two singles and McQuaid slugged a double. Rounding out the Belleville hitting with a single each were Mat Whitby, Manderville, David Maikawa and MacLeod.

Dunphy was Whitby's best. Dunphy were the Whitby hurlers. They allowed nine safeties, fanned 10 and walked four.

Hugh Northey's triple and single powered the Belleville attack. John Dent checked in with two singles and McQuaid slugged a double. Rounding out the Belleville hitting with a single each were Mat Whitby, Manderville, David Maikawa and MacLeod.

Dunphy was Whitby's best.

Broadloom and Brighton Wait for Another Day

Belleville Broadloom rolled into Springbrook Sunday morning for their first game in the hamlet's Women's Softball Tournament. The beals made it all the way to the first contest by default. Trenton didn't manage to squeeze in between downpours — was the third game that cancelled between Belleville and Brighton, has been re-scheduled for June 22.

The Broadloomers took their act a double and a single each. Marg Scanlan added three singles.

In the A semi-final, Belleville eliminated another local squad, Mobil Chemical, 17-4. Fobert again went the distance for the winners, the fanned two and walked two and gave up 13 hits.

Belleville's Joe Shannon and Norma McQuarrie went the distance on the losers mound. They combined to fan three, four walking 14 and giving up 19 hits.

Smith led the onslaught for the winners with a triple, a double and a single. Roseanne Huvinga had a triple and a single and May Scanlan and Mary-Anne Sills had three singles.

Bonnie McKeown had a pair of singles and a triple and Carmel McCormick singled three times for the losers.

Oshawa Whips Juniors

The Belleville Ellis Juniors took to the road on Saturday evening, and dropped off at Oshawa for a match with the Chanteurs. They should have just kept on going.

The Runs Soule-coached Juniors took a shellacking from the Motor City, 12-1.

John Sprackell and Paul Nilson combined efforts in trying to put down the home team, but the winners pounded out 14 hits compared to the five Ellis hits.

Doug Jeffries led the Belleville offence, little as it was, with a pair of singles, while Eric Powell added a triple. Mike Crawford and Jim Richardson each collected singles.

Legion House Leaguers Shade the Conductors

Brian Bird and Mark Chapman pitched Legion House Dart League past Belleville Conductors in the Belleville Legion Baseball Association's game" of the week in the Tabple division. Final score was 13-11.

Sharing the pitchers' duties for the losers who were in the game all the way, were Mike Pincapole and Rod Murray.

Robert Woodall had three singles to lead the winners. Gord Maikawa was tops in defeat, collecting two triple and three singles.

In other tabpole section play, Trudeau Brothers dumped the Legion team 19-9 and Kinsmen beat Belleville Conductors 11-4.

Two tyke games produced Kinsmen took Belleville Broadloom 21-4 and Thurlow No. 6 got by Alhambra 109 27-10.

Steve Swofter and Bradley Gray took care of the Kinsmen pitching. Steven Gayer and Todd Gayer hurled for Broadloom.

With Jeff Hannah belting a single, double and triple and three singles, H AND M Varity slugged Richard Ellis Printing 21-11 in the peewee section. Manny Rosario led the win, Al Tompkins and Steve Gould split the pitching for the Printers.

Bilo's Sports tripped Kinsmen 23-3 behind the pitching of Steve Hay and Steve Taylor who combined for twelve of 15 strikeouts. Brian Cleaver tripped three doubles and three singles to spark the attack.

Still with the peewees, Belleville Sportsmen dumped the tables on Mel Barriage to win, 16-4. Lance Wright tripped Adam Waymark in the winning department. John Broder connected for a home run, triple and double to lead the winners at the plate.

Mark Pearson and Dale McTaggart handled the pitching for Kinsmen. Winning pitchers for Mulroney was Ian McCutcheon.

Belleville Lawn Bowling Club president Herb McIntyre delivers first bowl to launch club's initial tournament of the season, Saturday. Looking on is tournament chairman, Mel Caverly. Unfortunately, rain forced a halt to proceedings in the second end of the second game of the annual Cooper Memorial Tournament. The event will be rescheduled.

The Going Is Tough

In South Central Lacrosse action, D. McKellar scored three times to lead Gerrard Road to a narrow 5-3 victory over Belleville Scott's Colonels, in novice play.

In peewee action, Gerrard had little trouble getting by the Belleville Lions Club 14-2. Steve Malaski scored both goals.

Gerrards swept the triple header by beating the Belleville Vardmen Bantams 9-3. B. A weekend play, the peewee's among the tops in the province.

Saturday, he captured top honors in the long jump with a leap of 7.65 metres. In Friday's triple jump competition, Thompson placed second behind Mike McTague of Scarborough Woburn.

Bayside Secondary School's Carrie Richards scored a seven-point finish, Friday, in the open 1500 metres event.

Gerrard made a rough time of it as Orillia scored a 10-9 win over the Lions club.

The Bantams combat's another offence either, as Orillia knocked them off to the tune of 16-0.

In exhibition play, the Kingston Midgets squeaked by A and D Esso 5-4.

Looks Like Pitchers Save Best for Astros

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

You know your baseball team needs help when it has lost the last eight games and 11 of the last 12, when it has scored just three runs in five games and has batted .175 in the last eight.

Houston Astros need help.

"It seems like every pitcher we face comes on like Walter Johnson," said beleaguered Houston manager Preston Gomez. "I'm going to have to make some changes."

Those comments came Sunday after the Astros had fallen 5-1 to St. Louis Cardinals.

In other National League games Sunday, San Francisco Giants swept Pittsburgh Pirates 3-1 and 4-2, Cincinnati Reds took two from Chicago Cubs 3-1 and 9-5, Philadelphia Phillies beat Los Angeles Dodgers 4-2, San Diego Padres won their opener 5-2 from Montreal Expos, then lost the nightcap 3-1, and New York Mets beat Atlanta Braves 7-6 in 14 innings.

Saturday, the Montreal game was rained out while Pittsburgh edged the Giants 7-6, Atlanta beat New York 7-3, Cincinnati defeated Chicago 8-1, Philadelphia blanked the Dodgers 4-0 and Houston lost to the Cards by the same 5-1 score.

"We have to do something," said Gomez. "We're not winning with what we have, so we've got to make some changes."

Those changes apparently will start with third baseman Doug Rader and bench-rider Ken Boswell regaining jobs. Gomez also said outfielder Enos Cabell and second baseman Larry Milbourne will be added to the lineup.

Second baseman Tommy Helms shared the Astros' misfortune. When Ken Reitz hit a fly ball to shallow right field, Helms collided with outfielder Jose Cruz.

The two fell to the ground — along with the ball—and Duke McBride scored the final St. Louis run in the latest frustrating game for Houston.

In San Francisco's second-game win over the Pirates, Glenn Adams' ninth-inning home run tied the game, then pitch-hitter Marc Hill hit a two-run single.

In the opener, Chris Speier drove in two runs to rain the major league pitching debut of Pittsburgh's John Candelaria. Pittsburgh's Richie Hebner homered in each of the losing games, giving him four in the last five contests.

Holtzman and Palmer Close but Not Quite

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Oakland's Ken Holtzman was thinking about a no-hitter Sunday afternoon. He almost got one.

Baltimore's Jim Palmer wasn't thinking about a no-hitter but he almost got one, too.

The results of what might have been didn't really enter Palmer's mind until it was too late, well after Mel Stottle's fourth-inning single, ruined Cleveland Cliff Bryant's bid to be 1-0 loss to the Orioles.

But Holtzman got within a single strike of completing his no-hitter before the bubble burst in an American League baseball game at Oakland.

His no-hitter lasted until Detroit's Tom Veryzer was down to his last strike. Then it was all over when Veryzer, the ninth man in the Tiger batting order, hit a booming double to

KEN HOLTZMAN

Baltimore's Brooks Robinson broke up the duel when he followed Lee May's seventh-inning double with a single.

Singles by Jeff Burroughs, Mike Hargrove and Leo Foster gave the Rangers their 17-inning sighting victory over Cleveland in the longest game in the majors this season.

In the first game, the Indians bunched all their runs in the fourth inning, two coming on John Ellis' two-run double.

Larry Hisle doubled to start Minnesota's six-run ninth inning that beat Boston and capped it with an run-scoring single.

Chris Chambliss then made the matter academic by driving in two runs with a ninth-inning single to cap the Yankees' at-bat over the White Sox. It was New York's eighth win in a row.

Darrell Porter drilled a two-run single to snap a scoreless tie in the fifth inning, then pounded a two-run homer that gave the Brewers their winning edge over California.

Expos' Steve Rogers – Things Worked Out

Rogers Still Battling Back

MONTREAL (CP) — For the first part of the 1975 National League baseball season, life was rather miserable for Montreal Expos right-hander Steve Rogers.

Now in his third year with the Expos, Rogers dropped his first four decisions, but has not lost since April 30. He posted his fourth consecutive win Sunday to even his record by scattering nine hits as the Expos downed San Diego Padres 5-1 in the second game of their afternoon doubleheader. The Padres won the opener 5-2.

"He pitched like the first time I saw him," said Montreal manager Gene Mauch. "There were a lot of ground balls today. Twelve of his 27 outs came on ground balls."

Rogers had a rocky start, giving up three hits and the lead San Diego run in the opening inning. The run scored on a one-out single by Dave Winfield after Johnny Grubb and Bobby Tolan had hit safely. It was Winfield's third RBI of the day to go along with a two-run single that highlighted a three-run outburst in the first game.

"The sinker was moving OK," said Rogers. "But everything got up a little.

"Over-all, it wasn't my typical sinker-oriented game. But it turned out for the best."

Montreal tied the score in the bottom of the first when Larry Lintz singled, moved to second on an infield out and scored on Mike Jorgensen's double to the left-field corner.

[illegible] the lead off losing pitcher Dave Roberts cracked a two-out triple in the base of the centre-field fence to score Lintz, who had singled and Larry Lintzer, who had drawn a two-out walk.

HAWLEY SHAKEN

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Canadian Sandy Hawley, the leading rider at Hollywood Park, was shaken up but apparently not injured in a spill Sunday. His mount, Nash Flash, seemed to be running fourth behind the finish of the fifth race when Recoronation moved over and bumped him. Nash Flash ran on to the heels of imaginary leader and sent Hawley to the turf. X-rays indicated no serious injuries.

WINS RACE

DELAWARE, Ont. (CP) — Joe Rutman of Westland, Mich., led from start to finish Saturday to win his third consecutive race in the Export A series for super late model stock cars. He beat Ed Howe of Beaverton, Mich., by 6½ seconds in the 100-lap, $7,500 race around the half-mile oval race track. Jerry Makara of Westland was third and Earl Rote of Alisa Craig, Ont., fourth.

It's Avatar by A Neck Over Foolish Pleasure

NEW YORK (AP) — Avatar fulfilled trainer Tommy Doyle's wish, followed by jockey Ron Turcotte and left thoroughbred racing's three-year-old colt unfoaled without a definite leader with his victory in the Belmont Stakes.

"If I had to win one of the classics, this is the one I would have chosen," Doyle said after Willie Shoemaker rode Avatar to a neck victory over Kentucky Derby winner Foolish Pleasure in the Belmont Stakes on Saturday. Avatar had finished second in the Derby and fifth in the Preakness, the first two legs of thoroughbred racing's Triple Crown series.

"I've never you how smart I am. I exercised both Diabolo and Avatar and I picked Diabolo," said Turcotte, the jockey from Grand Falls, N.B., who finished seventh on longshot Just the Time. "Just say I had a good view of the race."

A Belmont crowd of 69,221 saw Avatar break well, get good position and avoid trouble for the entire trip.

Diabolo, owned by Frank McMahon of Vancouver, broke on top under Laffit Pincay and led the way down the back stretch, with Preakness winner Master Derby second and Avatar third on the outside. "That was the position I really wanted, on the outside," said Shoemaker. "The outside was a little deeper today than the inside."

Master Derby, ridden by Darrel McHargue, and Avatar both moved to Diabolo on the turn and passed him with a quarter of a mile left in the 1½-mile in two National Lacrosse League games.

In the other, Boston Bolts dumped Philadelphia Wings 17-12.

Gerry Pinder and Dale MacKenzie each had three goals for the Bolts, who held a 10-6 edge in shots on goal.

The victory gave Montreal 22 points, two behind first-place Maryland in the six-team league. Montreal also has a game in hand.

Before 5,104 fans at Boston, Ivan Thompson had three goals and four assists to pace the Bolts to their win.

Terry Lloyd, Ron Ryan, Carm Collins and Rick Boucher each scored twice for the Wings.

Play resumes tonight with Maryland at Quebec.

Then, with about an eighth of a mile remaining, Avatar overtook Master Derby.

"I didn't want to take the lead when I did but I didn't have a choice," said Shoemaker. "Master Derby ran out of gas and left me in front. I decided I might as well go on with it."

"I was a little scared when he got out front but I had to go early because as you know the horse has a tendency to lead," said Doyle.

But Shoemaker, using his whip with both hands, got Avatar home ahead of the surging Foolish Pleasure, who also had begun to move on the final turn under Jacinto Vasquez. The winning time was 2:28 1-5. Master Derby was 3½ lengths back of Foolish Pleasure and four in front of Diabolo.

"He didn't respond at first," said Shoemaker. "He pricked his ears. The wire came up just about in time. He could have beaten this horse a couple of lengths if he tried." But a neck was enough to give the 63-year-old jockey his fifth Belmont victory in eight tries.

A victory by Foolish Pleasure, who finished second by a length in the Preakness, or Master Derby would have made either one the undisputed leader of the three-year-old crop and geldings. Now that leadership is up for grabs.

Doyle and owner Arthur Seligson Jr., now plan a rest for Avatar who earned $116,100 for his fifth victory, with three seconds and a third, in 13 starts this year, and returned a winning mutuel of $28.40.

Avatar and Diabolo returned home to California Sunday, going to Hollywood Park, while Master Derby flew to Louisville, Ky., and Churchill Downs. Foolish Pleasure is based at Belmont Park.

Hamilton WHA Entry Is in Planning Stage

TORONTO (CP) — Ted Dent, the league award Tobias a franchise "providing Mr. Tobias and his group are acceptable to the owners and also that Hamilton build a new rink.

"I've seen the plans for a new rink in Hamilton and they look great," said Tobias, a former owner of Junior A and B clubs in the Toronto area. "There's a question of whether it could be ready for the 1976-77 season and that poses a problem because it would be difficult selling season tickets if we couldn't move into the new rink from the start of the schedule.

"If we are granted a franchise we could play more away games than usual at the start of the season or we could go into a city like Kitchener and rainbow the junior club if the new rink in Hamilton isn't ready to start the season."

There would also be the matter of reimbursing the Toros for territorial rights.

"That's no problem," said Bassett. "I'll tell you this—they won't have to pay anything like the $5 million it cost New York Islanders to get into New York Rangers' territory. It won't cost $1 but it won't cost $5 million. It's somewhere in between these amounts."

Bassett said he also plans to propose to the WHA owners this week that they adopt a division and playoff system whereby a Canadian team would always qualify for the league playoff final.

Wins Are Far Between For Kemper Open Victor

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — A 100-foot chip shot for an eagle on the ninth hole Sunday ended six years of winless golf for Ray Floyd.

Floyd, whose last victory was the 1969 Professional Golfers' Association championship, has 100 feet of slick, rolling green to negotiate with his chip shot on the 535-yard par five.

He chipped an eight iron on to the green, it rolled over a low-lying stretch of grass, curved right and hopped into the hole for an eagle and Floyd coasted to a $20,000 win in the Kemper Open tournament.

The eagle gave Floyd a two stroke lead over South African Gary Player and enabled him to play cautiously down the stretch, using irons off the tees on the last four holes.

"From there it was just a process of knocking holes out of the way," the 33-year-old Floyd said. "I just struggled around."

Floyd's final round 69 gave him a total of 273, three shots ahead of Player and John Mahaffey.

The ninth was also a good hole for Player, who has not yet won on the tour this year. He hit a delicate wedge over a sand trap to within four feet and holed the putt for a birdie.

But on the back nine, Player was frustrated by several putts that rimmed the cup and refused to fall. He bogeyed the 11th and 16th to finish with a 72.

That led him with Mahaffey, who started his round with a flock of birdies, then cooled off on the back side and finished with a 70.

Floyd's didn't speak to reporters after his round, but Mahaffey offered an unusual excuse for the putts he failed to hole. It's the white paint on the rings of the television holes, he said. "I think it makes the hole appear smaller and they don't come out." On televised holes, cups are painted to make them easier to see.

A shot behind Mahaffey was Jerry Heard, with a 72 for a 283. Behind Heard came the trio of Jim Masserio, Bob Murphy and Britain's Peter Oosterhuis at 283.

Second-place pro Masserio nearly doubled his previous earnings for the year with his $9,983 share of the purse. He was within two strokes of Floyd on the back nine before faltering slightly on the final holes.

George Knudson of Toronto matched Floyd's final-round 69 and finished at 286 to earn $3,500.

Denver Spurs' Owner Seeks $1.3 Million

DENVER (AP) — Ivan Mullenix, owner of Denver Spurs hockey team, has filed an antitrust suit in U.S. District Court seeking nearly $1.3 million from the National Hockey League.

The suit was filed May 16, but details were withheld while Mullenix and his corporation, Denver Professional Sports, Inc., negotiated in attempts to join NHL Western Division for next year. He since has received a World Hockey Association franchise.

The suit claims Mullenix, as owner of the Spurs franchise in the Western Hockey League, lost $885,800 between 1973 and April, 1975, through coercion, conspiracy and actual violation of the Sherman and Clayton anti-trust acts on the part of the NHL.

Mullenix said that to get an NHL franchise he had to sign asset purchase and purchase option agreements with the NHL involving the Spurs, which had been a farm club owned by St. Louis Blues.

German Computer Picks Best Route

HILDESHEIM, West Germany (Reuter) — A computer pathfinder that automatically navigates automobiles by the best available route is in advanced stage of development in West Germany.

The guide is named ALI — Short for "Autofah er Leinkunk und Informationssystem."

Unlike the genie which popped out of the bottle in the Arabian Nights fantasy, the German ALI lies coiled up in a small black box beside the steering column. And he does not obey, he commands.

A succession of arrows on the illuminated panel of the black box tells the man at the wheel which road to drive along and where to turn off.

ALI picks up his instructions while on the move by putting out a feeler and touching an induction strip embedded in the surface of the road.

ALI is the brainchild of the Blaupunkt radio works here, a subsidiary of the Bosch electronics concern which has been associated with motoring since the days of the first horseless carriage.

ALI takes his directions from a master central computer which digests information from across the country on the state of roads, density of traffic, rain, fog, snow, accidents, traffic jams, road construction and obstructions to travel.

Upon departure, ALI informs the computer of starting point and destination. The computer works out the best route in the light of prevailing driving conditions and spotters out its instructions by radio.

The induction strips which convey ALI's instructions are embedded in the road in front of each junction or fork and each exit from the expressway.

As the car rolls over the strips, ALI checks in with his code sign and receives individual instructions and information for the next stage of the journey. There is no need to slow down. The signals are exchanged within a quarter of a second.

To avoid congested roads bring miles ahead and invisible to the driver, the computer may direct the car to another route or order a lower speed. Symbols light up showing what kind of weather the car is running into. A red arrow tells the d iver whether to take the next turn right or left, or to keep straight on.

On the test stretch laid out by Blaupunkt engineers, you can drive from city C to city B without having seen the area before. Specialists in data techniques from the Technical Unive sity, Aachen, are working out the costs and the best way of installing a uniform information network across the country.

The scientists have proven that the system will work. Its advocates say that as the number of cars increases it will be as indispensable on the roads of the future as sonals-navigation aids are in today's crowded alleys.

They estimate that installing several satellite ALIs as permanent co-pilots in all new cars would lower the cost to no more than that of an ordinary car radio.

Ice Age

An artist's impression of the Frost Fair on London's river Thames in 1683. A study of relatively cold periods such as this has given science cities to some changes in climate which run in long cycles — but fears of a new major ice age starting now are probably exaggerated say British scientists. Taryn Following Father's Footsteps

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The mother expected the baby to be a boy, and had already picked out the name: Tyrone Power IV, latest in a distinguished acting dynasty.

But the baby was a girl, and Linda Christian said, "Goodbye Tyrone; hello, Taryn."

This was 21 years ago. Today, Taryn Power is pursuing the profession that began with her father's family in Ireland. The latest of the movie stars' children to attempt a film career, she seems to have a chance of following the success of Jane Fonda, Peter Fonda, Liza Minnelli and Michael Douglas.

Her attributes are more than visual.

Expectably, with the parentage of Tyrone Power and Linda Christian, she possesses a rare beauty. But there is also a mind behind that dark-eyed loveliness.

She has been educated in five countries, can speak six languages and knows what she wants: an acting career with as much distinction as her father's.

Taryn talked about her young life at her Bel-Air headquarters, the home of her godmother, Mrs. Gerald Janes.

"My parents were divorced when I was three and he died when I was five. I have no memory of him, unfortunately," she remarked.

"Of course I've seen most of his films. My favorites are The Razor's Edge and The Long Gray Line—he had such energy in that one. I also loved his looks in Marie Antoinette."

Taryn was the second daughter born to Linda Christian and Tyrone Power during their brief marriage.

The first was Romina, another beauty who has pursued an acting and modeling career in Europe. After the divorce, the girls were sent to live with their grandmother in Mexico. Although they had an English nanny, the girls spoke Spanish as their first language.

When Taryn was seven, she and her sister went to Rome to live with their mother and her second husband, British actor Edmund Purdom. Taryn was sent to an Italian school in Rome, then spent four years at an English boarding school. Back to Rome, then a finishing school in Florence, finally graduation from a Swiss school at 16.

As a result of her travels and studies, she is fluent in English, Spanish, Italian and French, speaks German and Portuguese pretty well.

Munsinger Interviewed

TORONTO (CP) — Gerda Munsinger, the central figure of one of the biggest scandals in Canadian political history, said in a television interview Saturday night that if Pierre Trudeau had been prime minister in 1968, the scandal just "wouldn't have happened." Mr. Trudeau became prime minister in 1968.

Interviewed on CBC television's Barbara Frum show for which she returned to Canada last week from West Germany, she said Mr. Trudeau would be too "sophisticated" for such actions.

The scandal, disclosed in the House of Commons in 1966, revolved around her relationship with Pierre Sevigny, an activist defence minister in the Diefenbaker government of the late 1960s.

Miss Munsinger said she thinks the late Lester Pearson, prime minister at the time, "made a big mistake" and blamed others for things they did not do.

Miss Munsinger said stories about her relationship with Mr. Sevigny were "a pack of lies" and she felt sorry for him and his family.

As for George Hees, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Prince Edward-Hastings and a member of the Diefenbaker cabinet, she said he "thought he was God's gift to women."

Store's Balloon Burst

TORONTO (CP) — A furniture store, as a sales gimmick, allowed anyone spending more than $200 to burst a balloon in the store and perhaps, depending on what was on the message inside the customer could receive a discount, a piece or get the merchandise he ordered free. A man outfitting a motel bought $13,000 worth of merchandise, burst a balloon saying his purchase was free and paid nothing.

ANDY CAPP

Bluegrass Music Gaining Fans

CARLISLE, Ont. (CP) — There are about 100 bluegrass festivals taking place in North America this summer, all but one in the United States.

The exception — Bluegrass Canada '75—is expected to draw anywhere up to 30,000 persons this weekend to Conestoga Park this community midway between Guelph and Hamilton.

Advance tickets for the annual event, which grew from 3,000 attendance the first year in 1973 to more than 10,000 last year, have been ordered by people from at least nine provinces and 48 states.

Don Bird of Kitchener, Bluegrass Canada producer, says that the current popularity of bluegrass, a specialized area of country music born in the hills of Kentucky about 40 years ago, is due to "a sort of renaissance."

"Groups like the Osborne Brothers added electric bass and started doing other tunes other than the recognized bluegrass tunes but in a bluegrass style. They added a new style to the art form and a lot of young people got interested in it."

"The theme from the movie Deliverance has certainly done a lot for bluegrass music, and of course the music from the movie Bonnie and Clyde before that and from TV's Beverley Hillbillies."

The star attraction in the festival's 15-act lineup is Bill Monroe, the 64-year-old native Kentuckian acclaimed as the "father" of bluegrass.

Four Canadian groups will take part—the Good Brothers of Richmond Hill, Ont., the Country Gentlemen and Blue Grass Revival, both of Toronto, and the Dixie Flyers from London, Ont.

In addition to almost 30 hours of concerts, a Sunday-morning gospel sing and about a dozen more workshops, the festival will also include a bluegrass band contest open to amateurs and professionals.

Mr. Bird feels that Bluegrass Canada has the answer to the problem of gatecrashers.

"This year when you come in, you will receive a plastic wrist bracelet which will be clamped on your arm. The only way you can get it off is to cut it off and there are signs all over that wrist bracelets must be worn at all times.

The festival site is a 100-acre trailer park with plenty of room for campers. The festival provides on-the-grounds catering service and washroom facilities, this year with flush toilets." The concerts take place on a permanent covered stage set up last year.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You think best early in the day, so put to use any bright ideas that occur to you in the a.m. They'll prove worthwhile.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19) Don't wait to be asked by the boss to do things you know need doing. Your initiative will be rewarded today.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Children will respond to your directives today. They'll remember the lesson you want to teach, if you talk to them on their level.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) Start now to activate plans you have for minor transformations around the house, or they may face further delays.

Wealthy Resources

OTTAWA (CP) — Wood products harvested from Canadian forests each year are worth more than $2.5 billion, the Canadian Forestry Association says. Most of these are exports, accounting for about 60 per cent of the total value of goods sold to other countries.

Jim: "How about some articles on absolutely guesses."

Oswald: "I have never believed that there isn't some indication to make one play a slight favorite against another."

Jim: "How about this hand that you played some time ago against Alvin Roth and Tobias Stone? Eight hearts. You ruffed the diamond lead in dummy, led a spade to your queen, entered dummy with the ace of hearts, led another spade and went into a real huddle after Roth played the nine. Eventually you played the king and made the slam. Do you mean to tell me that you had an indication?"

Oswald: "I thought I got one. We were playing on bridge-cards. I put a diamond flush on I got up and walked to a big chair in the corner of the room to think in comfort. Before I got settled Stone was up to get a glass of water. I had made up my mind before getting up that if either opponent moved, I would play his partner for the ace. Maybe it wasn't an edge, but it sure worked."

To Your Good Health

Some Folks Need To Put on Weight

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 19 and have a terrible problem with weight. It's not that I weigh too much, as I am only 80 pounds. I can't seem to gain any weight.

It seems like I lose a lot more than I gain. And I'm pretty jittery. I try to lift something and I start shaking like a leaf. I don't know if that is caused by my weight or not. I am not trying to pull your leg.—Mrs. D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I was wondering—if there are diet pills that help some people lose weight, are there any pills to help me gain weight? I'm a bodybuilder and I weigh 115 to 120 pounds. I would like to gain 30 or 40 pounds if possible.

I eat just about all the time, but I don't gain, not a pound.—T.Y.

It seems that all we hear about are the people who are overweight, but there are a great many with the reverse problem.

Leanness, and sometimes downright skinniness, has to be accepted gracefully. It is not easy to force weight gain, as both of you have learned. The fatties swear that fat like birds, the skinnies that they eat like horses. Neither group can be entirely true.

Neither the young woman nor the boy writing here gives height statistics or mentions build, both important factors in evaluating just how thin they really are. So it is difficult to comment on their individual cases.

However, most plumpness seems to run in families. So does leanness. Most plump persons have high-calorie eating habits, while the lean ones generally do have good basic food intake. Fatties also tend to engage in less physical activity, although whether this is a result of their condition, or a result of it, is not clear. The skinnies tend to be little dynamos of activity, able to "burn off" enormous amounts of calories.

While both plumpness and leanness can be hereditary, leanness seems to be more so, and if this is the case there is little really to be done about it.

Both writers, especially the first, (the 80 pounder) should have physical examinations as a rule not any systemic disorder—an overactive thyroid, for example.

T.Y. risks about a nill. A nervous condition called psychoneurotic anxiety hint has been tried in some cases of underweight, but under a physician's supervision.

Theoretically, trying to stuff the thin person with high-calorie foods should work, but usually it doesn't. If the condition is hereditary, the best you can do is to accept your fate, and take some consolation in the fact that heavier generally is a better state of health than fatness.

Girls should make the best of the situation with outfit deception such as avoiding tight clothes. As the years roll along, both these young people may find themselves gaining weight, and it will be less unsightly if it does not come in spots and in the buttocks.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am an 18-year-old girl. About six months ago I noticed a small white spot on the lower half of my breast. I have read about vitiligo and wonder if this is this, or like cancer? Can someone in their teens get breast cancer?—G. D.

Calcification of breast tissue—such as fibroadenomas—or of papillomas can occur, but this is not too common a problem. It is more likely an innocent sebaceous cyst. Cancer of the breast can occur in teens, but this, too, is not very common. Have your doctor look at it the next time you go in to see him.

Dear Doctor: Is it true that cigarettes will remove scars left by sores?—Mrs. O.W.

Scars are caused by the formation of fibrous tissue. Cocoa butter will not remove them. Some scars will tend to become less visible with time.

Ski Resort Is Volcano

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP) — New Zealand's largest and most highly-developed ski resort is also an active volcano. It makes for added excitement.

Mt. Ruapehu at 9,175 feet is the tallest mountain in the North Island.

During the period of development as a national park and major winter sports resort it's nearly twice now in New Zealand's in the first part of the century, Mt. Ruapehu was considered dormant except for a small crater.

A nearby volcano, Mt. Ngauruhoe, 7,515 feet, was perhaps more active but it was not close enough to be dangerous and added to the attractions of Ruapehu as a sport by giving occasional spectacular displays.

However, a major eruption of Ruapehu in 1945 signalled the end of its period of inactivity; it has erupted since then at intervals of a few years, in varying and unpredictable ways.

There have been no lava flows, but large amounts of mud and red hot rocks have been thrown out in some eruptions.

But since Ruapehu is a rugged circular mountain and varied vents are active at different time it can hurl the water from different streams in different directions over a wide area.

Display to Travel

EDMONTON- (CP) — The Alberta exhibition department has set up a travelling display of Canadian resources known as The Great Canadian Contest Machine. The 68-foot trailer is designed and fitted to make teachers and public aware of the large [illegible] of Canadian resources that are available for use in schools. The display will travel to more than 30 communities in the province.

Honor 'Snowbird'

TORONTO (CP) — The Broadcast Executive Society will honor Canadian songstress Anne Murray during Canada Music Day, June 17. A luncheon will be held, and although the guest of honor won't be asked to sing, there will be film highlights of her rise to international fame. Among celebrities invited are folk-singer Gordon Lightfoot and Mrs Murray's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Carson Murray.

OUT OUR WAY by Neg Cochran

Trudeau Defends 'Copter Junket

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau ended a two-day swing through Southern Ontario by clashing with reporters Saturday night on the tarmac at Toronto International Airport.

At issue was his use of three armed forces helicopters to make the largely-partisan tour through five cities, including St. George for a political picnic on the farm of Ontario Liberal Leader Robert Nixon. Eight of 11 events, including private meetings and lunches, were political.

He was criticized before leaving Ottawa for using publicly-owned aircraft for a political tour. The cost of operating the three $1-million Huey helicopters during the tour was estimated at $20,000.

"Look . . . I really don't make a distinction," he told reporters in Toronto. "I do it travelling1 in the most efficient way."

The prime minister occupies a special position, except at election time, and is entitled to use public transport for both political and non-partisan events and even vacations, he argued.

He had used public airlines but bomb scares and other interruptions caused by his presence usually results in delays for passengers.

Told that Ontario Premier William Davis pays for aircraft used to attend party functions, he replied: "Bill Davis may have different standards. Mine are those I just stated."

Although the helicopters provided reporters and political opponents, their political use held little apparent interest for crowds who turned out everywhere to welcome the prime minister.

Well-wishers surged forward to greet him at St. George where a bandmaster sat down on a field behind the Nixon farm house.

Aides and security guards fought to open a space around him when he was hemmed in by several thousand eager supporters, many decked out in Liberal hats, buttons and T-shirts.

The picnic was open to everyone but there were no visible Conservative or New Democratic Party supporters.

Opening Soon: Midway Magic

The magic of the midway is back in town, in time for the Quinte Exhibition which opens Thursday. The big glittering Conklin show — whose behind-the-scenes workforce includes Marie Doroshenko and Greg Gravelle — now being raised into place on the Exhibition grounds keeps inside the traditions of the travelling show despite social changes.

Super Twister Hits Town

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

It's nearly time for the Sizzler.

Also the Super Twister; not forgetting The Cobra.

In other words — roll up folks! — the midway's back in town.

Civilizations may fade, empires crumble. But the travelling show seems to travel on for ever.

And so does its social appeal. The modern midway may be longer than an old-time hypnotic barker's cry from the travelling acrobats, dancing bears, itinerant plays and medicine shows which were its antecedents.

It's style, technique and equipment is becoming as sophisticated as any other industry, indicates Ralph Kelly. He talks as he keeps an assistant show manager's supervising eye on the bustle of another Conklin midway in the making — this time for this week's Quinte Exhibition.

"But the fun is still there — for the people and the workers in the show," says Mr. Kelly as the colorful midway mosaic rises around him.

"It's the mystique of the travelling show — the mystery of the carnival is still there," he says.

There's the sudden arrival from nowhere; the sprouting of booths, sideshows and rides, the infectious large-than-life atmosphere of noise and gayety; then the equally fast dispersal. All are part of the magic, indicates the representative of seven year service with Canada's biggest midway operation.

"It seems like you press the button and the show goes up. Then you press the button — and the show goes down."

Organizing and dismantling a travelling midway is more complicated, however.

There are about 200 working on the show for the Quinte Exhibition. It's a workforce backed by hydraulic and electrical equipment as the behind-the-scenes midway mechanism becomes "more sophisticated."

"our business is moving along like everything else," says Mr. Kelly.

There is also the change aimed at keeping fresh attractions before the throngs.

This year's midway is spotted with them. They include something that's called The Snake show.

Mr. Kelly is revealing no details — he wants to spoil the attraction.

Tactfully, he keeps the tradition of midway mystery intact.

"People will have to go in and see it for themselves," he says.

For its Quinte Exhibition public, the Conklin midway opens its latest magical, mystery tent Wednesday at 5 p.m.

East-end Plaza Going Indoors

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

The Belleville plaza's transformation from open air shopping centre to climatized mall will begin in mid July, a spokesman for S and A Investments said during an interview Monday.

Project spokesman Sid Spiegel said: "Roofing in will begin within six weeks and will be complete by the end of November."

"We just can't go through another winter without the roof on," he said.

Cautious of too much publicity on the project, he said: "For a long time people have been talking about this project but haven't done anything."

"We're not doing much talking and we're going to get the job done," he said. "It's project that should have been done years ago."

"We're going on a gut feeling that the business will be there when we get the job finished," he said, speaking for the contention of Belleville businessmen who took over mall ownership recently.

In addition to the roof, several extensions and expansion projects are in the works for the east-end shopping centre.

Mr. Spiegel Monday announced an additional 30,000 square feet of retail space is included in plaza development.

Both plaza grocery stores will begin immediate alteration to expand their facilities with construction of the bulk of expansion schedule for next spring.

Already in the completion stages are the mini-mall — a cluster of small outlets — and a medical centre.

Mr. Spiegel said tenants are committed for 60 per cent of the existing plaza and that: "National tenants are being given preference for space," to be committed next spring.

"National tenants are really what's needed for the centre," he said.

Once complete, the plaza will sport more than 40 retail outlets and a handful of offices and service outlets covering approximately 200,000 square feet of floor space.

B.C. Prisoners Want Out Hostages on Death Row

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) — Fifteen hostages were on death row at the British Columbia Penitentiary today, held at knifepoint by three desperate prisoners.

The prisoners said they would kill the hostages, penitentiary employees, if their demands for safe passage from Canada were not met.

"Fifteen of them are on death row right now," one of the prisoners told an intermediary.

Meanwhile, prison officials were awaiting word from the federal government on what action would be taken on the prisoners' demands for an army helicopter to carry them and the hostages to Vancouver International Airport.

From there, the prisoners want to be flown to an undisclosed foreign country.

The drama began shortly after 8 a.m. PDT (11 a.m. EDT) Monday when the three prisoners, all serving life terms for murder or attempted murder, turned routine interviews with their classification officer into a day-long, frightening ordeal for the hostages.

Andrew Bruce, 26, of Prince Albert, Sask., Douglas Lucas, 20, of Winnipeg and Clair Wilson, 25, attempted to take 19 persons hostage in the classification area, just inside the prison's main gate, where prisoners are assigned work and have access to personal counselling.

Two of those held were other prisoners and were quickly released, the women classification officer slipped away as the prisoners herded the hostages toward a fire-and-bullet-proof storage vault, measuring about eight feet by eight feet.

About 9.15 a.m., the 40 other resident prisoners were polled from work details and locked in their cells.

Later in the morning, the three prisoners released Bruce Jones, a classification officer who recently suffered a heart attack.

The remaining 15 hostages — at least three of them women — stood in the corridor vault, with their hands over their heads while the prisoners held a knife, about 15 inches long—one of two knives they removed from the throat of a woman hostage and negotiated their demands through two lawyers.

Penitentiary director Dragan Cernetic told a news conference early today that Solicitor-General Warren Allmand would meet with officials of the prime minister's office today to discuss the situation.

He said the prisoners' only demand was safe passage out of the country but added that negotiations had to be held first with another country that would accept them.

The prisoners allowed cold beverages and sandwiches to be brought in as the temperature in the vault rose to about 38 C. A chemical toilet was also provided.

The hostages were allowed to speak with relatives by telephone Monday night.

Wilson was involved in an attempted escape earlier this year.

Unemployment Down Slightly

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment was down slightly last month from the levels of March and April, but it continued at the highest rate since mid-1961, Statistics Canada reported today.

The national unemployment rate in May was 7.1 per cent, compared with 7.2 per cent in the two preceding months. It remains the highest jobless rate since July, 1961.

The total of jobless persons was down in May, however, to 714,000 from 760,000 in April. The unemployment figures have been criticized by the labor sector, which says they do not measure the number of job-seekers who have become discouraged and have withdrawn from the labor force.

The unemployment figures, and the latest consumer price index figures to be released Wednesday, will be watched closely in Ottawa because they are the last figures before Finance Minister John Turner brings down his budget June 23.

Eight Split Million

HALIFAX (CP) — One of the two 11-million prizes in the fifth Olympic lottery drawing Sunday went to eight persons in Richmond, Que.

Rosaire Bouchard, 49, unemployed because of poor health, split the cost of the $10 lottery ticket with his former employer, Gabe Dulude, 50, his mother, Hainda Bouchard, 69, his brother Marcel, 53, his daughter Louise, 21, and her fiance Denis Perreault.

Two of Mr. Bouchard's friends, Alcide Fontaine, 54, and Edgar Gaimand, 54, completed the syndicate.

Mr. Bouchard and his mother will take $200,000 each and the remaining winners will claim $100,000 each.

"Nobody has made any definite plans for the money yet," Mrs. Bouchard said.

"I've got four sons, some of them aren't in good health and can use the money," she said. "I hope to share it with them and maybe take a holiday next year in California."

Ticket number 6349852 was sold in the Sherbrooke, Que., area. The other, 3791448, was sold in the Toronto area by the Bank of Montreal.

Morgentaler Acquitted

MONTREAL (CP) — Dr. Henry Morgentaler was acquitted Monday on a second charge of having performed an illegal abortion, despite a Superior Court judge's instruction to the jury that the doctor's defence was unacceptable.

Dr. Morgentaler was acquitted on a similar charge by a Quebec Superior Court jury in November, 1973.

The acquittal was reversed and the reversal and an 18-month sentence imposed by the appeal court were upheld by the Supreme Court of Canada last February.

Dr. Morgentaler was serving the first sentence when the latest trial opened May 28.

Canadian Contingent Satisfies Germans

OTTAWA (CP) — The West German defence minister said Monday he would prefer that the Canadian forces in Europe be undiminished and unchanged from the present mixed air and land contingent.

Georg Leber told reporters that now, more than ever before, there is a political need for maintaining NATO's troop strength in Europe.

The minister, in Canada for a six-day visit, gave his views in advance of talks with Prime Minister Trudeau, External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen and Defence Minister James Richardson this week on NATO and other matters.

Mr. Richardson has said the government is looking at several NATO options, including an all-land force or an all-air force to replace the present 5,000-member mixed air and land force now in Europe.

Mr. Leber said it is West Germany and he hopes Canadian—policy that present NATO troop strength be maintained until results of current talks on mutual balanced force reductions are known.

He said it is important that Canada be in Europe to demonstrate its belief in the purposes of NATO.

He said the political and psychological aspect of NATO was more important than in the past because people questioned whether the alliance would hold together following the American withdrawal from Vietnam.

No Link Yet Between Plant and Pollution

TRENTON — Tests to gauge nutrient levels in groundwater near Produce Processing Ltd. are still inconclusive as evidence to directly link the Telephone Rd. company to an increase in algae growth in Tremure Lake, an environment ministry spokesman said Monday.

Gordon Thom, ministry industrial abatement officer, said results from the tests are not sufficient to establish any trend in nutrient levels.

Ministry officials have been conducting monthly tests in eight test-wells south and east of a field used by the Trenton company to dispose of corn processing wastes. Testing began in January, 1974.

The monitoring system was recommended in a December biologist's report that concluded then existing data was insufficient to establish the precise cause of the algae build-up. Growth in the Murray wells recharging pond could not be established to high nutrient levels since no previous levels were available for comparison, the report stated.

Charges that algae growth was accelerated by Produce Processing wastes came from the Trenton Public Utilities Commission in October, 1974. The report did state artificial enrichment of Tremur Lake had occured. It added that phosphorus and nitrogen levels have been increasing over the past several years in the water source used as the main source of drinking water by Trenton.

Mr. Thom said Monday the ministry will step up its testing of the Produce Processing field to a weekly basis once the company swings into full production later this year.

The province's monitoring system fits into another testing schedule the town now conducts in five stations along the Trenton Lake-Mayhew Creek waterway.

The ministry spokesman said once weekly testing starts, it will be "interesting to see whether or not the spray irrigation system is polluting the groundwater."

Ministry officials will test groundwater to see if organic wastes and nutrients they contain are seeping into Mayhew Creeks.

Chamber Campaigns For Canada Day

TRENTON — Trenton merchants will be displaying Canadian flags and the public will be sporting Canada Day buttons if the Chamber of Commerce campaign proves successful.

The buttons and flags are part of a retail promotion timed to co-incide with July 1 holiday celebrations in Trenton.

Jack Wilson, Chamber manager, said Monday, the aim of the campaign is two-fold — to boost business and to make more people aware of Canada Day.

He compares current Confederation Day celebrations as being far less visible than those during the July 4 Independence Day celebrations in the United States.

Flags for display in merchants' windows will be available from the Chamber. It is hoped merchants will display them June 16 to July 4. He says he's "never seen a flag flying for July 1."

Trenton citizens and town visitors will be able to buy Canada Day buttons (81) and subsequently be eligible for discounts at participating merchants.

Capital Punishment Draws Mixed Views

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — At a spring rally sponsored here recently by the Prince Progressive Conservatives, James Taylor, MDP Prince Edward-Lennox riding, predicted a national referendum would show the man on the street supports capital punishment.

Questioned on this issue in Picton Monday five persons interviewed showed split opinion.

Paul Doran, a 24-year-old summer counsellor at Prince Edward Heights says capital punishment should not be returned.

He observed criminal's offences do not justify an attitude of "an eye for an eye."

Mr. Doran suggested the right to kill should not belong to the government anymore than to the law breaker and added that if capital punishment is returned the government will achieve "a choice to murder."

A Sophistaburg Township farmer, Clare Nelson, says he thinks capital punishment should be returned as a deterrent to crime.

"People would thin twice before getting involved in these crimes if there were capital punishment," he remarked.

A sales representative James Lauder, says he does not support abolition of capital punishment.

"I would like to see it returned for all cases of murder, especially premeditated murder," he said.

Jack Elliott of Wellington, a sales representative, says he feels capital punishment should return.

"They are too lenient today and if there were capital punishment there would be a lot less trouble," he predicted.

Mr. Elliot said the many reports of crime and violence heard in today's news indicates the need for a return to the death penalty.

Carol Tolley, a Picton housewife, said she is not convinced that capital punishment curbs crime and added she does not support it except as the penalty for murder of a police officer or prison guard.

She added that instead of capital punishment there should be life imprisonment with no chance for parole for convicted murderers.

Student Placements Improve But Total Still Below 1974

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Placement of students in jobs in the Trenton area rose in May over the preceding month this year but are still behind the number of job placements in May, 1974.

The statistical picture was revealed Monday in a review of placement figures by Canada Manpower student placement officer Sandy McDonald.

Mr. McDonald said the student employment picture has improved since April, but added it has only been picking up "slightly."

In the Trenton area, the situation is similar to that experienced in most other Manpower offices in eastern Ontario.

He said in Ajax and Oshawa, placements are slower than last year while in Kingston, the situation is "deplorable". In Peterborough, he said, jobs for students are plentiful, mainly due to the recent opening of the Peterborough Square shopping centre.

Mr. McDonald has had earlier blamed the lack of job opportunities for students to the economic climate. One large local employer, he said, said "there's not a chance" of employment opportunities for students at his plant.

In May, Trenton Manpower officers placed 84 students, up from 38 in April. Over half (45) were placed in full-time jobs, with the remainder in jobs classified as lasting a week or less.

In the key private sector (as opposed to government jobs) placements were down to 29 this year from 69 in May, 1974, for full-time employees. In all-level government jobs, full-time placement has increased this year to 16 from the six of 1974.

Registration in May rose by 315 in Trenton, up from 642 in Manpower files last month. Mr. McDonald estimated the total number of students still looking for jobs at about 700, as opposed to 957. The discrepancy in figures he explained by saying some students have stopped actively looking for work, or have otherwise moved out of the local Manpower office's coverage area.

He emphasized his office continues visits to local businesses and plants to canvass for job openings for students. Such visits, he said, have been stepped up substantially over last year.

Putting Canada on News Map of the World is Concern of Ottawa Task Force

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Difficult to believe, but with all there is to worry about — inflation, unemployment, strikes, recessions — among the problems freeing the government in the lack of Canadian news abroad.

At least the government regards it as a lack, worrying that few few people around the world know what is going on in Canada.

It does not seem to have occurred to the administration that what IS going on just might not be all that great as to warrant offshore advertising.

News like having the world's second worst strike record — only daily last year lost more working time — is not exactly the stuff to firm up international confidence in Canada.

Still, the government is so concerned that Canada remains "the forgotten country" in the world that the External Affairs Department is setting up a special task force to do something about it.

The assignment to put Canada in the international news has been handed to Len Stephens, former director of public affairs for External.

Now, as special assistant to Basil Robinson, the new Undersecretary of State for External, Len Stephens is busy at the Lester Pearson building carrying out what are officially described as "communications policy studies."

For starters he is supposed to be trying to convince the Associated Press and Reuters News Agency of Canada's newsworthiness.

And he has managed to talk External Affairs into putting the Canadian Press wire news service into an additional 19 Canadian consulates in the United States and eight more embassies in Europe.

But running the CP news wire into more Canadian government offices abroad is not going to provide more than keep federal civil servants there a little more up to date on affairs back home.

Stephens' "Mystery Book Tells of Date With Past," ran a few hundred words you can read reading for the first time.

This is the title the big Bayswater daily told:

"Some of the swing may have gone out of Canada's minority premier, Pierre Trudeau, but he still keeps the legacy of his single days — the bachelor's well-thumbed little book of phone numbers.

"He looked up one of his old girl-friends when he was in London and was reported having dined with a 'mystery blonde' at the Savoy.

"Here name is Sandra Smith, a tall, brunette beauty with her in mid-twenties.

"She related with careful formality, Mr. Trudeau and I just talked small talk. I told him what I was up to in London and he told me his news.

"Sandra, who has a degree in psychology from Sir George Williams University in Montreal, met Trudeau when she was a Liberal constituency worker in Canada.

"He was introduced to me and we became very good friends,' said the well-built Miss Smith.

"He dated me quite a few times. But I wasn't in love with him and he wasn't in love with me.'

"Sandra, only child of Mon-real financier Joseph Smith, was writing exams when Trudeau announced the world he marrying.

"I was very pleased for him. I haven't met his wife Margaret but I hope to meet her some day. Why not?

"They dined just the once, she relates, during Trudeau's visit to London, but their conversation ran the full nostalgic course of good times shared.

"She came to London two years ago and has been studying at the Corona Academy of Theatre Arts.

"She shares a basement flat in Barons Court, West London, with a dancer from the Royal Ballet and a designer.

"In becoming an actress in London she is without two vital ingredients — she possesses neither a work permit nor an Equity Card.

"Could her friendship with Canada's Prime Minister help?

"Trudeau's name is Mr. Trudeau's name as a step to success,' she said. 'Not under any circumstances.'

So there is the solution for the government to its problem of no Canadian news abroad — export the Prime Minister from time to time on business or pleasure and make the international headlines.

Actress Blasts Porno

"I think there is a magic in man. His spirit, his attitudes toward his fellow man, his capacity for love and for infinite service is, for me, a thrilling thing. But it is seldom depicted anymore."

Veteran actress Katharine Hepburn expressed this view in an interview with Christian Science Monitor television interviewer Arthur Unger.

She was talking about her recent appearance with Laurence Olivier in "Love Among the Ruins," which she described as "romantic entertainment." And she was deploring the growing trend toward pornography.

To the suggestion this theme might be justified by producers as "a search for truth," Miss Hepburn replied: "That's just a bunch of bunk. It's merely a cover-up. . ."

After what Americans have been through, from Vietnam to Watergate, Miss Hepburn sees a need "to laugh," and with entertainment as the catalyst. "But instead, freakdom has taken over. All the media are the same. The movies, the theatre, even books and painting, are full of all kinds of junk, that is just not true — at least for me."

The actress acknowledged that she had been brought up in another generation, but at the same time it was "with an absolutely free attitude toward sex." Hetparents, she said, "were extremely open about such things."

"In most of what masquerades as entertainment today," the blunt Miss Hepburn continued, "I find a general concentration on ugliness and hopelessness. This is not the normal human condition."

Of course this is not altogether the case; there is still a modicum of what can be termed "family entertainment." And in addition to the trashy stuff on the newstands there is also a lot of good reading, from family primers to promising new writers. Yet there is enough of the sort of thing Miss Hepburn is talking about to conclude that what is meant by to the public . these days leaves a lot to be desired.

The Ontario government's royal commission investigating the effects of TV and movie violence is a recognition of this. Whatever criticism has been levelled at this probe, it is nevertheless official recognition that the balance of our system of values is being tipped too far from the realm of the bizarre, catering to man's baser instincts.

The Story's Other Side

A series on embattled Northern Ireland by Canadian Press writer Kevin Doyle has told in part of the torture by the military of a political detainee.

It illustrated one facet of the horror that has permeated so much of life in that country for the past seven years.

But if cases such as this are brought to light, consider also the provocation: incidents such as the slayings of all but one of a group of soldiers lured from a pub by two girls on the pretext of being taken to a party. That was at a house in Belfast some years ago. Two men had emerged from another room and shot the soldiers, one of whom lived to tell the tale.

Countless other incidents too: bombings that have killed and maimed hundreds of people, soldiers and policemen shot in the back, and so on.

According to Ulster Commentary, more than $107 million has been paid in compensation for personal injury and bomb damage caused by terrorism since 1968.

Some 38,000 claims by relatives of murder victims, people injured, and property owners, estimated to run to another $53 million, are still outstanding. The Army says that in between the two ceasefires this year bombs caused damage to the extent of $3,250,000, while gunmen attacked soldiers 56 times.

It's a grim legacy of urban terrorism that seems to have no bounds. Yet there are bright spots, including the dogged determination of the business community.

Terrorism has failed to stop progress. In those same seven years, for instance, trade missions have returned with potential orders totalling $20 million. As for the political detainees and other prisoners, they share in the province's educational process and sit exams this month along with schools and university ties. They include a number taking university courses.

The Right to Strike for Teachers

By DON O'HEARN

Queen's Park Bureau

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — The government finally has decided to give teachers the right to strike. Apparently the decision, made after a year, was taken only after considerable disagreement in cabinet.

And it appears the decision will be met with the same lack of agreement by the public. An opinion poll, taken before the strike legislation was announced, showed a majority of the public was against the strike right.

Whether the right should have been granted is a debatable question which probably always will be buried in argument.

The argument that banning strikes is taking away a "right" is pallid.

But then so many people who were formerly banned from striking are now allowed to that there has to be some sympathy voiced on the issue as a result.

This question aside, and really there are no simple conclusions to be taken about it, there are a couple of points in the legislation which are unusual and of general interest.

One of these is that it specifically names "final offer selection" as one of the alternatives that can be resorted to in lieu of a strike.

Final offer has been mentioned here before. It is the process under which each party makes a "final offer" proposal and then an arbitrator decides on one of the two sides.

There are some people who believe that this approach could eventually have an important place in labor relations.

It has worked with some success in the U.S. It also has had a few trial runs here in Ontario but there hasn't been enough experience to really assess it.

Then another provision in the legislation calls for an Education Relations Commission.

This group essentially would represent the public interest.

It would do research and assemble pertinent data, would provide conciliators and arbitrators and if there appeared to not be bargaining in good faith presumably could put on pressure.

The ministry of labor performs some of these functions now in other labor fields but the commission apparently would go several steps beyond it and apparently it is intended that it would be more aggressive that the ministry is. (It wouldn't have to worry about political implications).

There would seem to be in it the germ of an idea which might be extended to all labor. In fact the opposition is already pressing that many of the provisions in the new legislation should be applied to other labor areas.

'Bluenose' Helps Rekindle Canadians' Sense of Past

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

What is everyone's secret desire? Mine is to ship out in the Bluenose II, be the man at the mast or foresail, take the helm as the sea lays at the rail and the breeze die in a 30 mile-an-hour blow, share the exhilaration of this fine ship doing 12 to 15 knots in a brisk breeze.

But than I'm a sailor and once as a young naval officer, but very briefly, had to drive the yacht Oriole IV when her yachtsman-captain, a reserve naval officer, was "indisposed."

The Bluenose II has been in Toronto and Montreal, far up the St. Lawrence and the Great Lakes from her salty home in Halifax at Privateers' Wharf as part of the historic Properties program of the Nova Scotia tourism ministry.

I don't know what the visiting crowds are like down here in the Maritimes, but here in Toronto, which is not sea-girt, they have been fantastic, literally hundreds of people and old in long patient line-ups waiting to go on board her.

The other afternoon when I expected a handful around to board the Bluenose II, there were close to 1,000 waiting to do so with her topsides jammed with the curious and the professional (they're from some of the questions asked).

I spoke to Mr. Parsons, a trim, very good-looking middle-aged former member, retired from the Canadian navy three years ago after 27 years in the service.

He told me five of the crew were full time, the remaining 14 part-time, and that the captain had "gone before the mast" as they say, in 1918 as the 12-year-old son of a Bluenose owned a 250 ton sailing coaster in his home port of Dartmouth.

Now not all these hundreds of mainly Canadians, thousands of American exodus to Toronto hasn't really begun yet, could be sailors or nautically-oriented.

What brought so many of them to the ship which lay alongside a jetty not easy to reach? Could the crowds be yet another indication unspoken but made manifest, of our sense of identity with our past and with any symbols of them we keep, or in the case of this schooner, we restore?

Certainly we don't have many places to go within terms of our historical heritage, or so we have told. And yet they are legion and now are being developed, restored or modernized for ourselves and our children to see.

Near where I live and work in central Ontario, the provincial government has rebuilt the forts and ships recalling the War of 1812. A fine brochure for Fort Ilumenia Parks about 70 miles north of Toronto advertise the naval establishment at Penetanguishene, 1815, a bayside settlement awaiting a war that was never declared."

The curator, an ex-naval officer with a magnificent Van Dyck beard who once flew off carrier's long-gone aircraft carriers, had gone to the Royal Navy recently to recreate in exact terms the fort's storage areas filled with extra cannon, cordage, barrels of rum, ships winches and anchors.

An orientation is both historical and nautical. I'm sure the latest sense of who we are, either in these terms or others, is felt and understood in the thousands of our fellow-Canadians who are turn out to see what of the living heritage we now know we still have all around us.

Inflation Hits Stock Market and Whole Concept of Investment and Savings

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

The future of the stock market, and of the brokers and investors who comprise it, could be in danger.

Many stockbrokers have suffered financial losses and been forced into mergers with stronger partners. In the United States—is perhaps a foretaste of what is in store for Canadian brokers—sharp competition and discounting in commission rates have developed since fixed rates were abolished May 1.

The stock exchanges themselves are being hit financially. The annual report of the Toronto Stock Exchange, which accounts for about three-quarters of the profit made in Canada, shows a loss of $663,000 in the last year.

Most important of all, many investors appear to be giving up on stocks in particular, and on the concept of savings in general.

"With the prospect of a continued depreciation in the buying power of the Canadian dollar as a result of inflation," says TSE President J. R. Kimber, "Canadians may tend to elect to spend all their earnings immediately in preference to investing."

One financial company is seeking to attract investors by offering something tangible—color TV sets—in lieu of cash interest on its guaranteed investment certificates.

Toronto-based Sterling Trusts Corp., with branches in several Ontario cities, is giving away the TV sets to the biggest investment, the bigger the model.

The TSE has joined Kimber in the oil-policy debate as a typical illustration of government neglect of the investor's role.

The debate has centred on the interests of the western producing provinces and the central consuming provinces, on the taxes and royalties claimed by the federal and provincial governments, and on similar issues.

"Little or no mention has been made of the interests of the shareholders who supply the risk capital to find and develop the oil and gas, the fuel and the oil found, under our private ownership system," says the TSE president.

Shareholders are people who choose to save and invest rather than spend their money entirely on current consumption. It has been, he noted, they improve the welfare of others in the community.

"It's their money that creates the new jobs, the tax bonanza and the ability of society to provide necessary social services.

"If investors participate generously in order to invest do not have confidence that they will receive the expected reward for doing so, then they will stop saving and investing."

That's not a rash prediction. It's described as a change in investor attitudes that has become more pronounced over the past half-dozen years.

As a result, the relative importance of the professional trader has been growing steadily.

The professionals—representing chartered banks, insurance companies, mutual funds and the like—today account for perhaps three-quarters of all stock-market trading.

While that may make for a neater market, it may unclutter the minds of individual investors, it robs the marketplace of the much-needed balance of opinion.

Professional investors tend to get their information from the same sources, interpret it in much the same way and make similar investment decisions based on that information.

The result of this mass-think is that the stock market is benefitting to over-reach to any unusual development.

Prices rise to a bad, all the bids disappear. If it's good, the offerings are pulled.

The stock market and the individual investor need each other—not just for selfish reasons, but for the good of the economy.

But while inflation psychology goes on becoming more and more deeply ingrained, the concept of investment will be in increasing danger of extinction.

Agriculture Attracts First Woman into Field

STIRLING — This village now is home base for the first woman assigned to her line work by the Ontario government.

Carol Somerville, 20, is the new assistant for extension work appointed by the agricultural and food ministry's Hastings County office.

Extension work involves the educational process of farming and much of Carol's work will see her participating with junior farmers' and 4-H Club organizations in the county.

The ministry says she's the first woman in its history ever appointed to such work.

But Carol is not abashed at an assignment to what has traditionally be a made-oriented environment.

She was the only girl in her class of 32 students at Centralia College of Agricultural Technology from which she graduated this spring.

However, she says, there are more girls becoming interested in such programs each year, hence more women may be expected to be involved with future work in the field.

Born near Acton, in Halton County, she has a farm background in the dairy industry — both on the family farm-stead and on other dairy farms in Halton.

She was an active member — with high achievement ratings in 4-H work. So much so, she represented Halton at various competitions and other events.

In Hastings her work will include 16 4-H clubs with about 175 members.

Carol succeeds John Paul, who resigned to work in the agriculture-business field after more than two years with the ministry's Hastings County office here.

Free Parking Ending With Arrival of Meters

BANCROFT — The days are quickly drawing to a close when Bancroft motorists can simply pull into a downtown parking space and park free all day long.

According to Bancroft's by-law enforcement officer, David Talbot, parking meters for the downtown streets have been delivered and will be installed this week.

Over the last month, the village crew have been setting the standard in cement along Hastings, Bridge, Flint and Station streets in preparation for the meters.

Once the 140 meters are installed, parking on the street in the downtown core of the village will be restricted to one hour each with the meters eating up five cents for each 30 minutes.

Longer parking periods will be available for village residents in the municipal parking lot on Hastings St.,

Body Found

GILMOUR — Provincial police Monday recovered the body of Ross Alexander Pigden, 49, of 117 Durham St., Madoc, from Weslemkoon ending a search that started Saturday.

Mr. Pigden, a plumber who leaves a wife and four children, was fishing when he disappeared in the big lake, east of here.

He was believed to have been also trying out a new outboard motor on his boat.

Some time after he left, the empty craft was found drifting, out of gas but its motor in gear by another operator Carl Austin.

Police and others searched islands and shorelines in the area until nightfall. divers were called to the scene Sunday morning.

Holiday Debated

BANCROFT — Trustee John Forbes, a Second World War veteran, says there's a better way for students to remember those who lost their lives in both wars than to have a holiday from school.

The separate school representative on the board raised the issue here Monday night and the board has deferred the matter to the policy committee for further study.

Mr. Forbes said that since school children do not attend cenotaph services on Remembrance Day anyway it would be better for them to stay in school and plan formal ways to observe the memories of those who died. He made it clear he was in no favor of Remembrance Day.

If approved, the new procedure would not be in effect until next school year allowing school authorities to make adequate plans for the day.

After the meeting, held at North Hastings High School, director of education Eric Rumacres said the policy committee would have to consider the ministry of education policy on the holiday and there are also some implications with the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE).

Mr. Rumacres also said that if the motion was approved Nov. 11 does not fall on a school day every year. Mr. Forbes said he hoped for the support of other veterans.

The Gals Go Painting

Volunteers Paint House In Aid of New Arena

STIRLING — The ladies went painting for their community here Monday.

The team of women — all from the surrounding Stirling area — took brushes in hand to become the latest volunteer workers on this district's biggest recreation project — construction of a new arena.

The decorating chore was on the site of a house being built for sale to raise funds for the new recreation centre.

The house on the village's southwest limits was hit on as a novel way to raise a large chunk of money needed to build the arena, cost of which is estimated around $400,000 by fund-raising committee chairman Jack Bush.

Volunteer labor and donated supplies have helped build the three-bedroom home which should be ready by July, said Mr. Bush Monday. He said he is hopeful his committee will raise about $10,000 profit on its sale.

The arena is a joint venture between this village and the surrounding townships of Sidney, Thurlow and Rawdon.

It's designed to house a regular-size ice surface — 85 x 200-feet — some seating and perhaps a community centre room, he said.

When all grant sources — from local and senior governments — have been contributed the committee may have had to raise another $125,000 toward the project, said Mr. Bush.

But a start on the new arena could come this fall, he added.

Eleanor Bailey and Pat Hadley.

Area United Churches Mark 50th Birthday

BANCROFT — Member of the five churches which make up the Bancroft Carlow Pastoral Charge of the United Church of Canada joined together this weekend Sunday to celebrate the 50th anniversary of the founding of the United Church in Canada.

Representatives of each of the five local churches used the occasion to compile and present a history of the congregation.

Carlow United Church will celebrate its 100th anniversary July 12 this year.

During the 100 years the Carlow Church has even service by 87 different ministers.

St. Andrew's United Church in L'Amable was founded as a Presbyterian church in 1869 with the structure being completed in 1882.

All the beams in the ceiling of the L'Amable Church were carved by local craftsmen.

St. Paul's Church in Bancroft was founded in 1879 as a Methodist congregation.

In 1918, the Methodist and Presbyterian congregations in Bancroft joined to form one of the first Union Churches in the area.

In 1966, the Hermot and McArthurs Mills Churches joined to form the Mayo congregation.

St. Matthew's United Church in Baptiste is the youngest congregation in the local pastoral charge, founded in 1930.

In 1942 because of a rerouting of the road, the Church dismantled and rebuilt in another location.

Veterans Gather

TRENTON — Twenty First World War veterans were honored as head table guests at the annual Vimy and Victory Europe dinner and dance sponsored by Branch 110 of the Royal Canadian Legion here Saturday night.

Former Trenton mayor and long time municipal councillor Ross Burtt, MM., 87, was the oldest First World War veteran present.

Ratepayers Want School Buses for Rural Students

BANCROFT — Forest Hill ratepayers in this community want their children bused to a nearby public school because of hazardous walking conditions.

The Hastings County Board of Education has rejected a similar request in the past but now are willing to take a second look at the situation.

A ratepayers' spokesman Ann Etmanskie told trustees parents in the Forest Hill area have tried to get a school bus since 1971. Last year they took the matter into their own hands and paid themselves for a bus service which cost about $8 a day.

Mrs. Etmanskie argued that under the ministry of education children under the age of seven require a bus service for distances over one mile.

She said the distance to the school ranges from 1.3 to 1.8 miles. She also said walking conditions, particularly in the winter are hazardous.

She asked the board to continue the current busing arrangement and pick up the tab which based on a school year would be about $1,200. Board chairman Jean Hutchinson referred the request to the transportation committee for further study.

School Arena Site

BANCROFT — The Hastings County Board of Education approved in principle the tentative plans for construction of an arena on the property of Stirling Senior Public School.

Belleville trustee Robert Ord cautioned the board to proceed carefully until trustees can actually see the final detailed plans of the proposed arena. A delegation from Stirling approached the board's property committee in May seeking a solution.

The property committee then approved the request in principle which allowed the local arena committee to proceed with a feasibility study, subject to space being available for the proposed high school.

The property committee reported Monday night that there is space available for an arena at the eastern boundary of the board's property at Stirling Senior Elementary School.

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and regrow damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissue.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and greatly relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a medicine known as Preparation H.

Don't get stuck with a good investment.

It only takes $1000 to make a good investment.

$1000 in a Commerce Term Deposit earns $210.19 interest in three years and one day.

If you decide to put your interest into a Commerce Savings account, you'll earn even more interest.

You'll probably collect it tax free now that the government allows you $1000 interest earnings tax free annually.

But what if you want to get your money out before your three years is up?

Some places won't let you. You're stuck with your commitment.

The Commerce will. It's your money. We feel you should be free to withdraw it when you want it. And after a month, with interest at a slightly lower rate.

Talk to one of our over 1600 managers about a Commerce Term Deposit.

He'll show you how to make saving money profitable. And how not to get stuck with a good investment.

IT'S YOUR MONEY. MAKE THE MOST OF IT.

Federal Research Under Fire

OTTAWA (CP) — The government was scolded Monday by one of its own members, Frank Maine (Wellington), who said more money should be spent on industrial research.

"The area of market research has attracted little government consideration until recently, although the importance of this is self-evident," he said.

Mr. Maine spoke in the Commons after Science Minister C. M. Drury said that "in total, I feel that our science and technology are healthy and ready to aid us in meeting the future."

"If we have a problem in relation to science, it is deciding where to put our money," Mr. Drury said.

"Scientists and engineers can tell us what the options are but it is the cost of these options, rather than the technological difficulty, that give us our biggest headache."

Mr. Maine said a number of opposition members complained that Canada spends from two to five times less on industrial research than Japan, the United States and major European countries.

"An examination of Canada's past performance in technology-intensive industries and of recent trends in our economic development is not particularly encouraging," Mr. Maine said. "On a per-capita basis, Canada is among the world's leading net exporters of raw materials and among the leading net importers of manufactured products.

"To improve, or even maintain, its economic position and create more job opportunities, Canada had to encourage entrepreneurs. Venture capital in areas other than natural resources was needed.

"Foreign ownership of industry will decrease only when Canada becomes a source of technological innovation, Mr. Maine said.

The Commons was debating a Progressive Conservative motion urging adoption of "a meaningful science policy that will lead to increased industrial research and development."

Admiral on Carpet

OTTAWA (CP) — Vice-Admiral Douglas Boyle, commander-today with Defence Minister Barnett Richardson to explain his criticisms of government defence policy.

Mr. Richardson said Monday that Admiral Boyle apparently went beyond his authority in making the statements and he wants them clarified. The remarks were made at a weekend meeting of Progressive Conservatives in Halifax.

Admiral Boyle met Monday with Gen. J. A. Dextraze, armed forces chief of staff, after being summoned to Ottawa.

Speaking to a Conservative MPs, Admiral Boyle said Canada is falling behind in its military commitments. He said he has had to cut sea and air time for destroyers and patrol aircraft because of fuel shortages. Maritime Command is the naval wing of the forces.

Hiring Freeze in Effect

OTTAWA (CP) — Statistics Canada has ordered a freeze on all hiring and promotion within the department, an internal memorandum says.

A department official says the decision was internal and not ordered by Treasury Board, overseer of government spending. Statistics Canada is belt-tightening in anticipation that budget cuts may follow the federal budget June 23, the official says.

The government has been under fire from critics for its large spending programs. Treasury Board President Jean Chretien has said the rate of growth in public service spending and pay raises will be restrained.

Gas Policy Coming

OTTAWA (CP) — A new federal policy on exports of natural gas to the United States likely will be released in early July, Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Monday.

The minister said he has received details of a National Energy Board study into gas supply, including recommendations on government action, but declined comment on contents of the report or the options for government.

Energy department sources say the long list of recommendations calls for no immediate action on exports and suggests a statement of what the government might do if domestic shortages occur.

Lewis Lashing Out At Miners' Pamphlet

TORONTO (CP) — NDP Leader Stephen Lewis lashed out Monday at Ontario government information distributed in Northern Ontario on health hazards facing miners.

He told the legislature that information in government pamphlets sent to homes in Elliot Lake, Ont., and reprinted by mining companies in advertisements last weekend contained "half-truths" and distortions.

Mr. Lewis attacked the three government ministries (health, labor and natural resources) which issued it, the medical profession for its part in the history of diseased workers and the general attitude of the government toward the issue.

He said the pamphlet:

—Reported 23 cases of silicosis and 47 cases of dust effects, although the government has traced 446 men with silicosis or pre-silicotic conditions.

—Stated 2-days of workers were required by law since 1955, but did not mention that before 1970, doctors did not consider it important to share results with the miners.

—Stated radiation standards set by the province are based on international research, but failed to mention companies now are exceeding those limits.

—Stated compensation to "help make up the difference" of wages lost by unhealthy miners switching to other jobs will be paid, but failed to report only 75 per cent of the difference would be paid.

Smuggled Guns A Mystery

TORONTO (CP) — Richard Potter, Ontario minister of correctional services, said Monday it is still not known how guns which enabled seven prisoners to escape from the regional detention centre in Ottawa were smuggled into the institution.

Replying to questions in the legislature, Mr. Potter said the investigation is continuing. The minister visited the institution Friday following the escape.

Three of the seven were recaptured hours after the break Thursday and four are still at large.

Mr. Potter blamed "human error" for circumstances which allowed the escapees to take charge of the prison's control centre.

Milkshakes Checked

OTTAWA (CP) — Milkshake samples from fast food chains are being tested for bacteria in federal laboratories.

Health Minister Marc Lalonde said in an interview that inspection of products such as milkshakes is a provincial or municipal responsibility but federal technicians are testing some chocolate milkshake samples to assist those jurisdictions.

Asked which chains are being investigated, Mr. Lalonde referred to the list of companies studied earlier by the Consumers' Association of Canada (CAC).

Balloonist Makes Point

YOUNGSTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — Professional balloonist Bob Sparks of Gladstone, N.J., completed his announced plan to fly over all five Great Lakes on Monday with a successful flight over Lake Ontario.

He said he took off from Toronto.

TOO MEAT IN YOUR DIET?

The great Canadian "meat gorge"—does it make nutritional sense? Is meat necessary to your health? Is a vegetarian diet more healthful than a meat diet? Statistics show that vegetarians are thinner, in better health, with lower blood cholesterol, than their flesh-eating fellow citizens—and they may even live longer! Many doctors—and most heart specialists—now recommend that we cut our meat consumption by a full one third. DO WE EAT TOO MUCH MEAT? You'll find some surprising answers in this timely report. Gardening Column

Make Your Own Compost

BY ROSS HAWTHORNE

This week we are going to open by discussing two gardening terms that are generally subject to a good deal of misunderstanding. These terms are: "manure" and "humus".

The term "manure" is generally applied to the barnyard or animal variety, but in reality has many more definitions.

Manure generally refers to any activity or material utilized in the fertilization of soil, the acceleration of vegetation or the increase of yield.

The term "humus" refers to that black or brownish black material commonly found in woodlands or marshy soils and is nothing more than decayed vegetable matter.

Humus in the soil makes it porous and friable, allows both water and air to enter and still freely and route to penetrate and expand. And so this week we're going to talk about how to make your own "humus" with which to "manure" your garden. In this case, the humus will be in the form of compost, which will provide the same results as barnyard manure, but without the potential dangers.

Compost is in effect, humus, but generally with a few extra added ingredients such as: wood ashes, limestone, various uncleaned catches of perch and catfish and in fact anything and everything organic that will break down and decay.

In undisturbed soils, such as in woodlands or marshes, humus is the result of hundreds or thousands of years of growth and death. Under such conditions, nature can produce about one inch of humus at the rate of anywhere from 10 to 100 years. But with your own compost manufacturing set-up, we're going to tell you how to produce its cubic inch of compost in about 6 weeks.

Compost can be made in a pile or a bin. A pile is easier but a bin is neater. If you have lots of land and lots of hiding places, then go the route of the pile. If yours is a city lot, then the compost bin is your best bet. But whatever your choice, start manufacturing compost now, and by the middle of the summer, you'll have a ready supply of deep dark humus.

Before getting into the construction of the compost pile or the compost bin, let's first look at raw materials. Because your raw material supply will be a determining factor in both the size and type of compost factory you construct.

Compost can be manufactured from straw, leaves, weeds before seeding), plant cuttings, vegetables, kitchen waste, grass clipping, sod, sawdust, and the neighbor's Hallowe'en pumpkins. And don't forget to get friendly with your local supermarket produce manager. Everyday the people in his department trim their lettuce, celery, etc. and every week they throw out hundreds of pounds of tired old vegetables — ideal material for making compost.

No, it doesn't need to smell. Or attract flies. Or be unsightly. Not if the materials are layered properly and the bin or pile landscaped with fast growing shrubs like golden elder. Which are some of the things we'll talk about next week.

Questions welcome: All questions are welcome and will be answered. Please designate if your letter may be used in a future column. Direct your queries to Ross Hawthorne, The Intelligencer, Belleville.

Rain Raises Malaria Risk In Rhodesia

— Rhodesia's health ministry has warned residents that heavy rains in recent weeks have increased the danger of malaria.

The ministry issued its warning following the death of a young man after his return from the swampy lowveld area where the malaria-carrying mosquitoes abound.

The ministry said the man had taken anti-malaria pills before going into the area but had neglected to take them afterwards. The pills should be taken for four weeks after exposure.

Dr. Clarke said the young man's death was unfortunate because no other serious disease can be prevented as easily or cheaply.

Home Of The Week

DESIGN R3-1001
1221 Sq. Ft.

The home illustrated combines the best features of ranch and split level designs. The floor plan comprises two basic squares joined with an offset that provides a spacious sheltered patio at the back and a well-protected front entry.

One square contains the sleeping quarters, separated vertically by three steps from the living areas in the other square. This arrangement provides a rather effective TV for sight and sound between the two areas.

The spacious living-dining area extends across the front of the house and can be reserved for the more formal activities while the family room and kitchen will be the centre for day-to-day family living.

Exterior treatment is conservative in brick veneer but there is an interesting accent of diagonal-boarded glass blocks to serve as the bathroom window.

Plans for Design R3-1001 cost $25 for the first set, $11 each additional set and are supplied by return mail. New second edition of two books "Home Designs for Canadians" are available at this newspaper's office for $1.50 each or by mail (see coupon below). Book 1 presents 96 designs for homes up to 1800 sq. ft. for 1 storey and split level, 1850 sq. ft. for one and one half and 2 storey. Book 2 shows 91 larger homes. British Columbia Village Auctioned off Piece by Piece

GISCOME, B.C. (CP) — Most parts of this village, in central British Columbia 20 miles northeast of Prince George, were scattered across Canada last April, auctioned off to the highest bidders.

After a two-day auction, 65 houses, a planing and sawmill, an Anglican church and varied fittings and facilities were dispensed across the country. About 1,500 people turned up for the sale and nearly $1 million was realized.

Northwood Pulp and Timber Ltd., which operated one of the largest sawmills in British Columbia here, closed it down last November and arranged to sell the company town. Northwood blamed the closure on depressed lumber markets, insufficient timber and expensive pollution-control standards.

The planer mill is headed for New Brunswick. The houses, many of them built on slabs and lacking modern amenities such as furnaces, sold for between $120 and $1,000. Eviction time for people still living in Northwood accommodation or on Northwood land was June 1.

"Most of the homes are old and generally the exteriors haven't been maintained over the years," said John Turner, principal of the elementary school.

The rental, as low as $30 a month, prolonged the death throes of Giscome.

Men who found jobs in neighboring mills or were relocated to other Northwood operations commuted until the deadline. Others remained while living on unemployment benefits.

"Until about maybe 10 years ago the road from here to Prince George was pretty lousy," said Mr. Turner. "People tell you that they used to go into town in convoys so they could pull one another out of the mud."

The general store was the post office, pool room and cafe. There was even a movie theatre, although movies were sometimes shown at the social centre. And even during the boom years, when there were up to 1,000 on the payroll, there wasn't a beer parlor.

Lillian Coulling, who taught school at Giscome for 17 years, said the decline of the community started long before the economic decline, when better roads came and the managerial staff became living in outside communities, such as Prince George.

"I can remember years ago when Giscome had its old families," says Mrs. Coulling. "We had a better town at that time; they were more interested in keeping the town nice.

"When they left, th etown itself started to go down."

She remembers a simple social life.

"We had dances in the community hall every second weekend. The hall was up on the rock and there were about 100 steps up to it. That sort of kept people sober—otherwise they fell off the rock."

Mr. Turner doesn't think the town is dead yet.

"It's slowly dying—although it's dying slower than most people had thought.

"Every couple of days a parent drops into the school office and says, 'We'll be off now,' and they drive up their kids and go.

"There are about 30 children left in town who come to school here and will definitely be going."

But the school will remain. It serves nearby communities, and it, and the few people working on the railroad, will be Giscome.

Tombstone Epitaph Winning Its Struggle

TOMBSTONE, Ariz. (AP) — The Tombstone Epitaph, a legendary frontier newspaper which chronicled the Old West's shootouts, is winning its fight against survival, thanks to 13 university students and their professors.

"These so - called kids have given us elder statesmen some insight into their ability," said Mayor Jack Hendricksen, owner of the Lucky Cass Restaurant here. "It seems some of these kids have more ability than us."

Earlier this year, the weekly Epitaph came dangerously close to publishing its own obituary. Tombstone, once a colorful mining city, had dwindled to little more than 1,000 residents.

For The Epitaph, that spelled declining revenue and a local circulation of barely 300.

Its first issue hit the bustling streets of Tombstone on May 1, 1880. For decades, it covered the adventures of pioneers and lawmen, including Wyatt Earp, from a rambling adobe building not far from the O.K. Corral.

Today, University of Arizona students work from an office at the Chamber of Commerce, sending their stories back to the Tucson campus for editing and eventually to a commercial printer for publication.

The new arrangement began early this year, depending on grants and money within the journalism department budget to finance the operation.

"It's strictly a local newspaper," said instructor Phil Mangelsdorf. "Right now we don't take advertising, although free classified advertising is accepted."

Mangelsdorf said he feels his department has enough money to keep the paper going for a year and should be able to arrange funding for it continue thereafter. Meanwhile, his students were receiving valuable experience.

"It's marvelous how these kids have come through. All of a sudden they've gone from a bunch of students to professionals."

Under the arrangement, two students drive the 70 miles from Tucson to Tombstone the Thursday before publication, covering local news for the next four days and returning to class on Monday. Other students edit the copy and write headlines, send it to a typesetter on campus and then on to a commercial printer.

"We've tried to compromise between the old-time makeup that The Epitaph had and some ideas that we think make the paper more readable," Mangelsdorf said.

Director Jan Austin at Pinnacle Playhouse

Donations Needed By Theatre Troupe

Jan Austin and the three young actresses she'll be directing in a one-act play for Theatre August have a problem.

They've decided on the play they want to present and are ready to start rehearsals, but haven't got the $100 they need for the royalty fee.

The play, Calm Down, Mother, written in 1965 by Megan Terry, is a "slightly comic drama" about women's search for identity, chosen by Jan for its relevance to International women's Year. The theme of the brief play is the idea that female anatomy defines female roles.

"I really feel that communities have a responsibility to do something about IWY," says Jan. "Everyone complains about the government mismanagement of money for advertising. But we can do something ourselves to make the year a special one."

With this in mind she suggested Calm Down, Mother, from which she had done excerpts in the drama course she's taken at Brock University this past year.

"I'm probably more interested in acting than directing," she admits, "but although everyone else was keen on the play, nobody wanted to direct. So I'm going to give it a try. It's really exciting."

Jan plans to go to Toronto at the end of the summer, hoping to pursue an acting career.

"I dream of being a professional actress someday," she says, "but I'm starting realistic enough in on being a theatre arts teacher if my dreams don't come true."

Acting under Jan's direction in Calm Down, Mother, are two local high school students, Ruth Smith and Julie Bishop, and a Loyalist student with drama experience, Catherine Cunningham. All the young women are interested in putting across the idea that women must search to be themselves.

"You see so many women molded into what their boyfriends or husbands are," notes Jan. "Now I'm not a militant feminist, but I really think you can be so much more than that."

Jan and the cast are hoping that local organizations, women's groups in particular, will come to their aid with donations to help make up the $100 they need before play production July 24-26. Interested groups or individuals can contact Jan Austin through the Pinnacle Playhouse, by leaving a message at 967-1442.

Today's Child

By Helen Allen

SHIRLEY

Can you imagine a 2½-year-old child so tiny she can walk under a baby's crib? That's Shirley, not yet as big as many infants of six months.

Though Shirley's growth has been so slow, she is in good general health, but you can tell from the picture that she has an eye problem. This little girl has only one eye and in it there is no sight. Her eyelids are always closed but she lifts one lid with her fingers as she is doing here. It is thought she can perhaps distinguish light from dark. When she is older she can be fitted with artificial eyes for appearance only.

Shirley may also have a heart defect though this has not been assessed. Whether she has or not, and despite her blindness, she is an active, independent child who appears to have lots of spunk. She doesn't just walk, she runs. In strange surroundings she feels her way with hands out in front but in a familiar setting she goes full speed ahead.

She seems to have so fear of anything.

She is vocal, though she really doesn't talk yet.

Shirley is a cute child with slightly curly fair hair and very fair skin. Several flat red birthmarks on her neck and chin are now fading.

Shirley is living in a small institution for children with handicaps. Until she came there six months ago she had minimal care and little stimulation. She was neglected and unresponsive. Now she's a happy girl full of laughter.

She has learned how to play. She explores toys with her fingers and she just loves to be cuddled.

Attwell — Grenke

First Baptist Church in London, Ontario was the scene for the spring wedding of Lynn Grenke of Belleville and Roger Attwell of London, performed by Rev. Malcolm Harlow.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Grenke. She wore a silk crepe gown with a train, featuring long ruffled sleeves, and seed pearl with French lace trim. Her cap trimmed with seed pearls, held a three-tier finger-tip veil. Her bouquet was white stephanotis surrounding a white orchid.

The matron of honor was the bride's sister Dawn Leppinen of Sudbury, and the junior bridesmaid was the bride's niece, Sherre Leppinen.

The best man was the groom's brother John Attwell of London and the usher was Bob Ray of Ottawa.

Soloist for the occasion was Beth Woodcock.

After a reception at the Aquarius Banquet Room, the newly-married couple travelled to Niagara Falls and the West Coast. They now reside in Vancouver, B.C.

He is the younger son of Wendell Camm of Stirling and the late Mrs. Camm and took his secondary school training at the Stirling-Rawdon District High School and Centennial Secondary School.

Birth Control

Read All About It — In the Comics

ROME (Reter) — Comic books for adults are teaching Italians about birth control.

Luigi de Marchi, general secretary of the Italian Demographic Education Association (AIED), has announced the results of an experimental information campaign affecting international attention.

"Because birth control teaching in Italy was legalized only four years ago, less than one-tenth of Italians use birth control methods," de Marchi said.

AIED's project, exploiting the popularity of the comic strips for adults called photo-romances, is the first concerted effort to devise a way to bring birth control information into tradition-bound rural regions.

Photo-romances, one of Italy's most popular forms of reading matter, are stories told with a series of photographs giving the appearance of still shots from a film. Dialogue is printed as in North American comic books.

"In the comic books, instead of taking pious, moralistic attitudes such as telling people 'if you have fewer children, you can educate them better,' we aimed at the visceral, emotional side. We simply tried to show that life is more enjoyable when one does not have to worry about unwanted pregnancies."

A future comic book, he said, will try to suggest that a man's virility is not necessarily related to the number of children he fathers, as many Italian males still assume. "We will try to introduce a new model for the Latin lover—a lover-hero so expert that he knows how to avoid making women pregnant."

The public opinion research institute Demoskopea found, in talks with 1,000 readers, that the birth control comic books had prompted big changes of attitude.

At Rieti, a picturesque farm town in a mountainous region two hours' drive from Rome, the number of couples using the pill doubled. In Novara, a more industrialized provincial capital in the north, the number rose by eight per cent to 20 per cent.

Another 27 per cent in Rieti and 16 per cent in Novara indicated plans to talk with health officials about taking the pill.

De Marchi said it was difficult to find prominent actors willing to appear in his photo comic books. Many considered the comics too lowbrow. Even so, such prominent entertainers as singer Gianni Morandi and film stars Paola Pitagora, Paola Gassman and Ugo Pagliai have appeared.

Parliament has yet to decide whether birth control advice is a state responsibility. Four bills are currently awaiting debate. One, signed by four Christian Democratic deputies, would make $16 million available for an information program.

Ann Landers

Drunk Blackmails Driver

Dear Ann Landers: Last night I returned to my place of business to clean up some paperwork. I finished about 10 p.m. and headed for the parking lot behind our building. I thought I saw someone sitting in my car but wasn't certain. When I opened the door I was shocked to find a young woman, about 22, either dead drunk or spaced out on drugs. She said, "Drive me home or I'll scream that you tried to rape me."

I decided to do as she asked because I didn't know if she had a gun or what she might do. She lived about five miles away. The whole time she talked about how she had messed up her head with booze and drugs and how rotten she had treated her parents and so on. At time she made a lot of sense, then she'd go way off the beam. When we reached the block where she lived, she said, "Drop me at the corner. I don't want to get you into trouble. My husband might be waiting. Thanks. You're O.K."

When I reached home I was shaking. My wife was furious. She said I was a damned fool for driving that woman home. She claims I should have thrown her out of the car and run for the police. Do you agree?—Scared Stiff

Dear S.S.: Your first mistake was leaving your car unlocked. This time it was a woman on boozo or drugs. Next time it could be a maniac with a Saturday night special or a piece of iron pipe.

Your second mistake was opening the car door when you suspected someone was sitting there. You should have turned around and gotten a policeman that very moment.

Canada's Food Guide Amended in September

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadians have only a few months left before learning once again that their diets may not be so nutritious after all.

In September an amended version of the federal health department's Canadian food guide, a menu for healthful eating, will be available to those concerned about what they eat.

The new guide is aimed at alleviating nutrition problems discovered by the 1972 Nutrition Canada study, which found that 20 per cent of Canadians were poorly fed while more than half were either overweight or lacking nutrients in their diet.

The emphasis in the amended guide will be on milk, fresh fruit, vegetables and cereals to clear up the calcium, iron and vitamin deficiencies found in the study.

"The guide won't give precise amounts of food that should be eaten, so it's possible to read the food guide and still eat too much," said Dr. Keith Murray, director of the health department's nutrition bureau.

Recommendations of a subcommittee on diet and cardiovascular disease will be submitted to a federal-provincial nutrition committee this summer and included in the guide, Dr. Murray said.

It is expected that the new edition will recommend diets that minimize the possibilities of cardiovascular disease.

"The recommendations will be amended in line with whatever is suggested by the committee and will take into account what people are actually eating," he said.

Women in Ontario's Legislature— It Helps If Your Name is Margaret

TORONTO (CP) — What does it take for a woman to be a successful candidate in the Ontario legislature?

Health Minister Frank Miller put that rhetorical question to a conference of Progressive Conservative women this spring.

"First of all her name has to be Margaret," he joked.

Margaret Birch and Margaret Scrivener for the Tories and Margaret Campbell for the Liberals together form the slim female minority in the male-dominated chamber.

But the Queen's Park observers would suggest the three have anything else in common—except, perhaps, that in the House they are seen more often than heard.

Mrs. Campbell, 48, who won the Toronto riding of St. Gorge for the Liberals in March, 1973, is most vocal of the three.

A front-bencher with a hearty laugh, the Liberal housing critic is a persistent advocate of rent review boards which she says the government insists on confusing with rent controls.

A former family court judge, alderman, controller and budget chief for the city of Toronto, Mrs. Campbell's credentials also include a term as chairman of the Metro welfare and housing committee, chairman of the mayor's war on poverty committee and a director of the Federal Central Mortgage and Federal Central Mortgage Housing Corp.

Criticism is sharper for Margaret Birch, 50, Conservative member for Scarborough East and critic for the government's three major policy fields.

NDP Leader Stephen Lewis says she is carried away with secrecy in the social development policy field.

The NDP leader has pursued without success information relating to government decisions on day care, group homes, guaranteed annual income and family benefits.

Answers to his questions in the legislature can receive only a brief, clipped reply, from Mrs. Birch.

Mr. Lewis said in an interview he has no word for Mrs. Birch—"irrelevent, in fact the whole ministry is irrelevant."

Mrs. Birch caused a storm over day care in Ontario last year when she announced the province was considering increasing child-staff ratios and lower qualifications for day care staff.

On the other hand, Margaret Scrivener, parliamentary assistant to Housing Minister Daniel Irvine has been making headlines with her speeches away from Queen's Park.

In one she accused the federal government of a "dirty tricks" campaign to help the election of provincial Liberals by withholding housing funds to the province. The remark was denied by Barney Danson, federal minister of urban affairs. But she was supported by members of her own cabinet.

Murray Gaskin (L—Huron Bruce) complained in the legislature of another speech in which he said the member for the Toronto riding of St. David drafted her own version of a possible Liberal cabinet.

He said she referred to him as "just a farmer" and asked the minister of agriculture to explain to her the importance of farmers in the province.

First elected to the legislature in 1971, Mrs. Scrivener is a former vice-chairman of the Metro Toronto planning board and was the owner-operator of a dairy farm complex.

Battered Babies Unwanted

The "battered baby syndrome," is at once simply one facet of a wider problem of maltreatment which arises all too generally, and, fortunately, something which has some clear and characteristic features of its own which enable us to isolate it and to make, as it were, a self-contained appraisal of diagnosis and treatment.

The child is often unwanted and has failed to secure an adequate emotional relationship with the adult concerned. There is excessive crying, perhaps vomiting, a lack of response to the parent, a general lack of a rewarding relationship from the parent's point of view.

All there are so often the characteristics of children when in the end get battered otherwise maltreated.

Michael Alison,
Britain House of Commons Debates, as quoted in Canadian Welfare

Dear Doris: I presented your column to a student taking teachers' college training and suggested that she write to you to obtain further information about the International People's College in Denmark, which was mentioned. Is it in the city of Copenhagen?

The above mentioned is a most unusual type of young person — very friendly — a keen worker at anything from gardening to teaching and interested in all the many interesting and worthy aspects of life and living in general.

She was intensely interested in the prospect of taking a three-month course at this college. Does the college issue a prospectus describing courses offered?

Friend of B.

Dear Freind: A broad interest beyond her own front door is a chief requirement for entrance. Your friend sounds an ideal candidate. There is no minimum scholastic requirement.

There are courses in the humanities, languages, activities, world affairs. You can get the prospectus by writing to International People's College, 3000 Elsinore, Denmark. One hour's drive from Copenhagen. They want and welcome Canadians; and they have been studying and socializing with.

Dear Doris: You quoted a letter from "Growing Old" in which she said she annoyed others when she turned on the T.V. loud enough for her to hear.

This happened in our home. We bought earphones ($15. to $20.) from our T.V. man. These plug into the back of most T.V. sets.

Now my husband sits in his chair near which these earphones are conveniently located, and either wears them like ear muffs or rests them on his chest.

The rest of the household listens normally — on the night, the sound on the main set is very low yet audible in the phones.

A wonderful gift from the family instead of flowers!

Anonymous.

Dear Anonymous: Fine idea. Why didn't I think of that. Earphones are solving other nuisances, too. And lots of little transisters — the delight of their owners — have special equipment which is like an earphone but much smaller, plugging still into the ear of the hearer.

Great blessing for a sick person too. Either to plug into or be plugged away from, with the other fellow hearing his favorite program.

VALLETTA, Malta (AP) — Film stars Lee Marvin and Roger More, currently filming here in Shout at the Devil, went to the rescue of director Peter Hunt during shooting Sunday at a huge water tank near here.

Hunt was standing on some scaffolding which collapsed, throwing him into the water, and Moore and Marvin went to his aid. Hunt was rescued unhurt.

Hunt directed the James Bond film Live and Let Die, starring Moore.

HANOVER, N.H. (AP) — Robert Keeshan, television's Captain Kangaroo, has been awarded an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters degree from Dartmouth College for having produced "the gentlest and friendliest TV show for children."

Keeshan has portrayed Captain Kangaroo for about 20 years. He began his show when his son, Michael, was four years old and his daughter, Laurie, was two.

Michael received his master's degree and Laurie was awarded her bachelor's degree Sunday in Dartmouth's 207th commencement exercises.

Keeshan was cited for introducing to children's television "good manners, good music and gentle education."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The producers of television's All in the Family have filed suit against Sally Struthers because of her refusal to continue in the series.

Tandem Productions, in its court action filed Thursday, is attempting to force Miss Struthers from appearing as an actress or celebrity until her contract with Tandem expires in 1978.

Miss Struthers, who plays Archie Bunker's daughter, Gloria, last week wrote Tandem saying she would refuse to appear in any future episodes of All in the Family, apparently because of a dispute over her contract, a spokeswoman said.

ROME (AP) — Norwegian film star Liv Ullman has won a David di Donatello, Italy's leading movie award, for her performance in Ingmar Bergman's Scenes from a Marriage.

The award by Italian film critics went to Miss Ullman as best foreign actress. The film prizes announced will be presented July 19 in Taormina, Sicily.

Other awards in the foreign film category went to Billy Wilder for his direction of Front Page and to Jack Lemmon and Walter Matthau for their performance in the movie.

Burt Lancaster was also cited for his role in Lucchino Visconti's Gruppo di Famiglia in un Interno—titled in English, Conversation Piece.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Fellow performers gathered here Friday to pay tribute at a funeral service for Ozzie Nelson, who was eulogized for a "quiet dignity and ever-present wit" that made the United States happier.

Tom Harmon, football player turned sportscaster, said Nelson's long-running television series, The Adventures of Ozzie and Harriet, "entertained America for 22 years without a dirty joke or a smutty scene.

"This close compatibility with the giants of show business," Harmon's daughter, Kristin, is the wife of the Nelsons' son Rick.

Among the 300 mourners were Danny Thomas, Dorothy Lamour, Ken Murray, Ralph Edwards, Jim Fybber McGee Jordan and Jim Backy, who portrayed Rick's friend on the television show.

Nelson, who underwent surgery for cancer of the liver eight months ago, died Tuesday at the age of 60.

TORONTO (CP) — David Haber, artistic director of the National Ballet of Canada, announced his resignation Friday after only 11 months in the job.

He cited "irreconcilable differences" with the ballet's board of directors over budget cuts and the choice of repertoire.

L. H. (Jock) McLeod, president of the ballet said it was a regrettable situation and the board would look immediately for another artistic director. Haber made his resignation effective July 31.

McLeod said the "irreconcilable differences" cited by Haber were with a majority of the board members, not limited to its executive committee.

Before joining the ballet last year and succeeding its founder, Celia Franca, as artistic director, Haber was with the National Arts Centre in Ottawa as its main attractions planner.

MOSCOW (AP) — Anatoly Karpov will play his first tournament as world chess champion in Yugoslavia next month, Tass reported Friday.

Karpov, 23, was named champion by the International Chess Federation after American Bobby Fischer refused to play under rules set by the organization.

LODZ, Poland (Reuter) — Artur Rubinstein, the 88-year-old pianist, Friday night made a sentimental journey to this Polish textile town which enshrines his boyhood memories—his first appearance here in 16 years.

Rubinstein, who was born in Lodz—the seventh child of a Polish Jewish family—appeared at the Lodz Grand Theatre to take part in a special gala performance marking the 60th anniversary of the Lodz Philharmonia.

For his return to the city where he spent the impressionable teen-age years of his life, Rubinstein chose to pla Chopin's Piano Concerto in E Flat, followed by Beethoven's 5th Piano Concerto.

Stratford Festival Begins 23rd Season

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP) — The Stratford Festival's 23rd season opened Monday night with an eye-filling production of George Bernard Shaw's Saint Joan, starring Pat Galloway as an endearingly simple Joan of Arc, a country girl with common sense and just enough to lead armies and confound the church.

Many of the critics found Saint Joan, directed by William Hutt, either overlong in its turning and staging, or too slow-paced in performance. But they gave high praise to Miss Galloway, who first played the part in 1960 for the Canadian Players in Toronto.

Dave Billington of Southam News Services wrote that Miss Galloway "triumphed over the chaos and mediocrity which surrounded her," just as Joan of Arc did in the 15th Century France.

Urjo Kareda of Toronto Star wrote she was dismayed by the festival's staging, "nutty, overdressed and pompous," when better things were expected under Robin Phillips, the festival's new artistic director. Kareda doubted whether Miss Galloway's Joan "could inspire beyond scenic across an intersection."

Robin Dorrell of Ottawa Journal, by contrast, found Miss Galloway "a beautifully fresh, believable innocent and enthusiastic" Joan of Arc. "full of country airs and rosy cheeks, blinking her innocent eyes to heaven, mad in a most glorious ordinary way."

Audrey M. Ashley of Ottawa Citizen wrote that, on the whole, director Hutt used the stage well and achieved some remarkable effects. But with all of Stratford's processions and costumes, the production "fails to erase the memory of the starkly simple version which the poverty-stricken Canadian Players took on tour so long ago."

Peter Crossley of Winnipeg Free Press, praised Miss Galloway for filling her role with passion. "She was, in short, the personification of all that Joan stood for, and the ideals for which she died."

The production marked the Stratford debut of Paul Keebne, an actor, singer and dancer best known for his musical comedy reviews. He played the cowardly, cringing Dauphin—later Charles VII of France—making him the comic of the piece.

Miss Galloway came from a north-of-England accent, which at first seemed out of place for a French maiden from the farm. But Shaw's play is unquestionably an English interpretation of French history, and no pretense was made of using French accents in the production.

Mervyn Blake, a veteran of many years at Stratford, played Peter Cauchon, the bishop of Beauvais who does his best to save Joan from, ex-communication at her trial. Max Helpmann was the archbishop of Rheims and William Needles a cool penetrating Inquisitor.

Leslie Yeo was Richard de Beauchamp, the Earl of Warwick, dedicated to the task of having Joan turned over by the church to the British force, to be burned as a witch. Terence Kelly played the chaplain, de Stogumber, whose total dedication to the same job is based only on the fact that Joan is French.

The festival's second new production of the season—Shakespeare's Twelfth Night, directed by David Jones of the Royal Shakespeare Company—opens Tuesday night.

By Oswald and James Jacoby

South made a really fine decision when he took out his partner's doubt of four spades. Correct defense would beat that four-spade contract, but if South tried to cash two heart tricks he would have been mighty sorry.

West led out his three top spades and that ended the heart contract, while East discarded the jack and then the five of clubs. Now South led out four of five rounds of trumps while looking intently at each enemy discard.

Then he paused to think about which minor suit finesse to take, finally tried the diamond and was one trick short.

South felt that he had gone wrong when faced by an absolutely even guess. Actually South had made a bad play and paid for it.

South had overlooked that one extra chance. Sometimes a king will drop singleton or doubleton. South could lead a club to dummy's ace and ruff a club. Pure enough the king would drop and there would be no need to try the diamond finesse.

Electric Shock Damage Evident

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My son was working on a wheel-balancing machine which had defective wiring. He had six volts pass through his body. Luckily the machine was turned off at time. Would this cause any lasting damage? Would any damages show up in later life?—Mrs. E. B.

If your son was unharmed initially, and if he exhibits no symptoms now, there should be little cause for concern about lasting effects from the experience.

The serious effects of electrical shock, whether from defective wiring or from lightning, are usually immediate and obvious. Your son was fortunate, since even low voltages (110 or 220) can be fatal if applied for relatively brief periods. The immediate effects would be sudden irregularity of the heart rhythm or a cessation of the heart, called "cardiac standstill."

Another reader has asked about arm pain after an electric shock. This could be due to muscle or tendon tear, the result of a particularly strong spasm of these structures in response to the wave of electricity passing through the body. Such injuries often take a long time to heal.

An ECG should set the mother, wiring shop, at ease as to the present condition of her son's heart.

Dear Doctor: My husband has hemorrhoids, and he has been told they are too small to operate on. He has bleeding in his bowel movements. Is this bleeding to be expected, or is there something to be done to stop it?—Mrs. R. S.

Bleeding can be a part of the hemorrhoid problem, but he must be sure that it isn't coming from a source higher up in the bowel, or from a fissure. A hemorrhoid is a distension of a vein. A fissure is a split in the membrane at the margin of the anus. An ulcer can occur with hemorrhoids.

Your husband should keep his stool as soft as possible. But he should have ample bulk in his diet. He can use stool softeners if his stool is too hard.

But I can tell you that local medication a not effective if there is an ulcer or a fissure.

As to your other question, which I didn't include above in your letter, if he is not getting along with his present doctor, why doesn't he switch, perhaps to one specializing in rectal disorders?

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My doctor says I have fibrositis, and I would like some information on this. I am 28 and have pain and stiffness in different muscles of my body.—Mrs. J. K.

Dear Doctor: Can you explain what fibrositis is? I have been bothered in my neck and shoulders for two years now.—Mrs. A. B.

This is one of the rheumatic disorders that affects the sheaths (fibrous coverings) of the muscles. Another name for it is "muscular rheumatism." It can result from injury, a strain, or an infection, anything that brings the characteristic inflammation of the sheaths.

Occasionally, there are so-called "trigger points," which could conceivably cause some pain.

Generally, treatment is conservative, consisting of rest, heat application, and pain relievers such as aspirin products. In severe cases, specific "trigger nodules" can be injected with hydrocortisone to bring relief. When muscle tissue in the back is involved, it is referred to as "lumbago," when in the neck "torticollis." The term "charleyhorse" is used to describe the condition in the leg.

It is important to distinguish fibrositis from one of the collagen (connective tissue) diseases. These can cause symptoms similar to fibrositis. Collagen tissue constitutes the supporting structure of the body.

Every Death Suicide Says Florida Doctor

VANCOUVER (CP) — "In developing a preventive health care system, you must get people to take responsibility for their own physical and emotional health," says Dr. John McCamy of St. Petersburg, Fla.

Dr. McCamy, who specializes in preventive medicine, said people fill themselves with poor diet, lack of exercise, stress and indifference to ecology.

"Every death is a suicide," he said.

Dr. McCamy has worked with a team of 30 doctors around the world to develop a health program which will prevent illness. He collaborated with specialists in nutrition, metabology, psychology, biology, ecology and medicine.

"The aim is preventive medicine is to raise each individual's consciousness.

"Most people know what causes a coronary, for example; he said. "Contributing factors are eating refined carbohydrates — sugar and white flour—smoking, obesity, lack of exercise, intake of too much alcohol or coffee, stress, high blood pressure and high cholesterol."

When the risk factors are added, the chance of a coronary can be predicted.

"And if you can predict the chance, you can change it."

But the potential victim must be aware of the danger.

"What we try to do is see prospective parents before they conceive and teach them health of concepts before they conceive affects the health of the child."

The difference between preventive medicine, which aims to maintain optimum health, and traditional medicine is that the latter waits until a diagnosis and treatment of illness after it occurs.

Nine out of 10 doctors practice traditional medicine, he said.

"Medicine well and they do the best they can but most doctors have never seen a healthy person.

"Average hospital statistics in community health are drawn from the hospital sick population and I can think of no worse model."

Dr. McCamy said most doctors know little about nutrition, the first step in improving health.

Wall Tells Loyalist Board to Remain Silent on Contract Issue

By ROBIN CHASE
The president of the Loyalist College teachers' local says individual college boards of governors should say no involvement in current negotiations between the provincial government and the colleges of applied arts and technology (CAAT) academic division of the Civil Service Association of Ontario (CSAO).

Paul Wall commented in a Monday interview: "It's a provincial matter anyway and I don't think that it's a situation where an individual board should get involved."

The Loyalist board learned last week that Sheridan College's board of governors has urged the management bargaining team to dig in their heels against the CSAO and maintain present teacher classroom hours (workload) at the current level.

Job security and workload provisions are the only outstanding issues in this still-unresolved contract which should have gone into effect Sept. 1, 1973.

How salary provisions have already been handed down in a March decision by Justice Willard Estey of the Ontario Court of Appeals and head of the arbitration board.

The Sheridan board has apparently sent letters to other colleges boards including our own, one of which was received by Loyalist last week. Its action marks the first time an individual board has been named involved in the contract dispute.

The Loyalist board has sent the issue to its management committee for study before deciding whether to recommend something to the management board.

"They (boards) have the normal channels in which to get involved," Mr. Wall said. "They should be as far as it goes.

When asked if individual board action might create bad feelings between the CSAO and the colleges, he remarked, "it certainly would because the reaction to a public stand might be, 'what the hell are they doing', when there are normal channels."

Mr. Wall would not comment directly when queried as to whether the Loyalist board should follow Sheridan's lead. He only observed was, "I'm glad it's the Sheridan board that came out with that recommendation and not the Loyalist board."

Mr. Wall pointed out that any board moves at present are "redundant because it's in the hands of the arbitrator."

He explained Justice Estey has received job security and workload proposals from both sides and was to make a final decision May 31. However, no word has been received, he added.

Board Okay's Special Classes To Assist Pregnant Students

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

BANCROFT — The Hastings County Board of Education here Monday night set up the mechanics to organize a special class for pregnant students if and when it is needed.

The only problem that now remains is no one seems to know just how many students become pregnant during the school year and how many leave school because of it.

Board chairman Jean Hutchison said that maybe five a year are affected while another source has been quoted as saying about 30 leave annually due to pregnancies.

The program, as approved Monday night, is an extension of the already existing home-hospital instruction service which would be given to pregnant students on an individual basis.

The board's new policy will allow these four girls to form a special class to continue their academic subjects as well as receiving guidance and advice from medical and para-medical personnel.

The board's superintendent of special education E.T. (Ted) Morris said there is evidence to show that these students, under the stress of pregnancy, can provide each other with mutual support by being in a class situation.

Bancroft trustee asked whether the board was condoning these situations by providing special educational services.

Director of education Eric Hamilton replied by saying the program does "not involve a moral issue. "Perhaps," he said, "we are simply fulfilling our obligations to each student as set out by the ministry of education."

Stirling trustee said there was no moral issue involved in the matter and that the board was just "extending a sympathetic and humane approach to help this problem."

Trustee Bancroft said the program centred around the fact that the class would probably be held in Belleville where students from centre and North Hastings could not participate.

However, the program, as outlined Monday night, can be adapted to various centres in the community. The proposal also said the students may use the normal bus routes. In the case the board's home-bound instructor has dealt with each case on an individual basis.

Belleville trustee Richard Williams wanted to know the current statistics on pregnant students but the administration council was unable to provide them.

It was suggested that the class would meet three times a week for about eight hours of instruction.

Contest Winner

Lynda Calloghan, a Grade 7 student at Holy Name of Mary Separate School at Marysville, won first place in the Kingston and area Rehabilitation Council essay contest. The contest was designed to increase student awareness of the problems of the handicapped.

Win 'A God-send'

William Fotheergill, 67, of 286 MacDonald Ave. in Belleville, a patient in Queen's Selkirk Unit of Belleville General Hospital, says he can really use the $1,000 he won in Sunday's Olympic lottery draw.

"I've had a lot of expenses," he says. "It's a godsend."

His 65-year-old wife, Marjorie, a paraplegic, is a resident of Quinte Beach Nursing Home in Deseronto.

What are his plans for part of the money?

"I'd like to take a trip if I get well enough," he says. "I'd like to go to the east coast or even visit Alaska."

Bravery Rewarded

Two Picton residents will receive bronze medals for bravery from the Royal Canadian Humane Association by assistant Ontario Provincial Police commissioner N. McCombe of Toronto Wednesday at noon at the Belleville detachment office. Peter Cole of Main St. and Gladys Porter of Albert St. will be cited for the rescue of Leslie Curran of Oshawa who fell from his boat at Athol Bay on August 11, 1974.

Four Held After Crash

BRIGHTON — Four juveniles were arrested early today by provincial police here for possession of a vehicle reported stolen from Deseronto.

Police said today the arrests were made after the vehicle owned by Mary Lynne Garrett of 324 Main St. was in collision with a telephone pole on Marplewood Ave.

Driver Training Latest Course

BANCROFT — A comprehensive driver education program may become a credit course for secondary school students in Hastings County.

The Hastings County Board of Education here Monday night gave the driver training task force a mandate to develop, in conjunction with the curriculum committee, a driver training education course that could be counted as a credit towards a secondary school diploma.

Stirling trustee Donald Williams, who headed the task force, said his fellow trustees similar programs are already under way in other jurisdictions across the province. He said Ernestown school officials have long emphasized driver training as a curriculum requirement.

Belleville trustee Ed Paquet objected to the course on the grounds that it would be a credit course. "I hate to see another credit course come in and remove an academic subject," explained Mr. Paquet.

Mr. Williams said in a car dealer, said the course would be more than just training behind the wheel of a car. "This course would take an in-depth look at what happens when a person gets behind a wheel — psychologically."

The course would require board and ministry of education approval. The board Monday night also granted $600 to send 10 area teachers to a special driving instructor course.

The board also passed a motion to establish its own driver instructor course for local teachers here in 1976. "It's a badly needed skill in this county," explained Mr. Williams, who also said a driving education program could save many lives.

Volunteers Count

Volunteer agencies need volunteers to function.

This was the message Gordon Mottis, director of the United Community Services (UCS), presented to the weekly meeting of the Quinte District Club, Monday evening.

House after a three-day meeting of UCS representatives in Edmonton last week, Mr. Mottis recited case histories of people in seemingly hopeless situations, who were aided through UCS programs and services made possible by a volunteer workers.

"The volunteer makes the difference," he said.

"A hundred years ago, in Canada, hard work, thrift and self-help would pull a family through hard times," he said, "but in a extreme case the local parish or community would help."

Now social agencies are necessary to help all people in a community, not only the poor.

The government can't provide all the services of the UCS, he said.

The government must be uniform with the aid it gives, but the UCS can tailor the benefits to the individuals and their unique problems, he added.

For The Winners

Those big fluffy toys — almost as symbolic of the midway as the ferris wheel — are unpacked by Margot Kettle as Conklin show gets organized at Quinte Exhibition Grounds Monday. New attractions are included in this year's Conklin show for the Exhibition which runs June 12-15.

'Government at Fault'

Vacant Apartments Scarce

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

There's only one thing rarer than mortgage money and that's vacant apartments.

Phil Bennett, president of the Quinte Real Estate Association, said during an interview Monday: "We have a zero vacancy rate."

This means, at least statistically, there isn't an apartment to be had — a situation that has been looking for the last two years.

He said his company has approximately 100 units for rent and as soon as one is emptied there's someone waiting to fill it. "We don't even have time to paint or clean up the rug before the next tenant is moving in."

To the apartment hunter: "I don't know of anyone with a vacant unit."

Mr. Bennett said the only way to rectify the situation is to stimulate the building industry.

But, standing in the building way is restrictive municipal legislation and "the money boys" pulling the financial strings.

Mr. Bennett said it is becoming exceedingly difficult for the builder to construct a building and get a fair return on his investment in the face of steadily rising costs of heating, hydro and mortgage money.

"And now members of both senior governments are talking about rent freezes and ceilings," he said.

"Even with escalating costs, I think builders would go ahead if the government would keep its mouth shut," said Mr. Bennett. "Don't get me wrong. I'm not knocking the conservatives who brought out the $1,500 first-time home buyer grants, the combination of all three levels of government.

He criticized civic administration for placing a holding freeze on land for the next two years ago, "when mortgage rates weren't prohibitive and builders could get a return on their dollar."

"Now the city is loosening up but money is too expensive."

"Mortgage money costs bring it right back into the hands of the federal government," said Gerry Joyce, vice-president of the Ontario Real Estate Association.

The decision to vary the interest rates charged by the Bank of Canada is a "political" one, said Mr. Joyce.

He suggested that acts governing financial institutions be altered allowing higher percentages of institution assets to be loaned out in mortgages.

Both men suggested the rental accomodation problems now being experienced in the city may be eased somewhat by construction of senior citizen and geared-to-income projects.

When these projects are completed, some apartments will be made available to the younger families which would not be eligible for government subsidized housing, said Mr. Bennett.

One Body Found, Four More Sought

NAPANEE — Ontario Provincial Police divers have recovered the body of a man who was one of five people to drown in a boating accident May 25 on the channel between Amherst Island and the mainland just south of here.

A police spokesman said today the body of Donald Lougheed, 27, of Napanee was discovered at 8 p.m. Monday near Conway on the mainland, about six or eight miles west of the probable scene of the accident.

The spokesman said Lougheed's body was found in almost the same localities as the body of his wife, Patricia, 23, which was recovered the day of the accident along with the body of Deborah Gibson, 23, of Napanee.

Still missing and presumed drowned are Bradley Gibson, 21, of Amherst Island, Robert Gibson, 24, of Napanee and Robert McGinnis, 28, of Kingston. The search continues today.

Police also released the cause of the accident. The spokesman said the motor apparently stalled the 15-foot boat began to fill with water and the six occupants decided to try and swim to shore.

Break-in Foiled

A 30-year-old Belleville man has been charged with break and enter with intent in connection with a break-in at a city apartment early Monday.

A city police spokesman identified the man today as Robert Paul Moore of Apt. 3 at 82 Victoria Ave.

Police said a man accosted by two friends broke into an apartment at 281 Ann St. at 6:30 a.m. The two others, who police said were "among the kids," were not charged. An arrest was made shortly after the incident.

Firemen Seek Donations

TRENTON — Trenton firemen began canvassing town businesses Monday to raise money for the annual fireworks display on Canada Day, July 1st.

Bob Baker, chairman of the Firefighters Fireworks Fund, said Monday the week-long canvas will see firemen knocking on doors of local merchants, professional persons, and industries.

The town fire department said it hopes that individual Trenton citizens will also donate money for the "expensive" fireworks display. "We're going to depend on people to come to us to donate," he said. A number of staff precinct cities firemen canvassing individual homes.

The elaborate display will culminate week-end activities co-ordinated by the Trenton Rotary Club and Chamber of Commerce.

Damage was estimated at about $300 to a 1973-model Monte Carlo, a Buick station wagon and a Glendale motor home parked at Elliott Motors 70 Ltd. at 366 North Front St. sometime Friday evening or Saturday morning. A city police spokesman said Monday vandals stomped upon the roofs of the Monte Carlo and the station wagon and damaged a side door and panel of the motor home in the incident reported at 10.30 p.m. Saturday.

City police are investigating an incident of vandalism early Sunday when a passerby spotted someone smashing a window at Wray's Warehouse Carpet Sales at 201 Pinnacle St. A police spokesman said damage was estimated at $20.

Kerik's Crew Strikes Again

What makes Constellation Carpets and pitcher Ken Kerik unbeatable in the Belleville Industrial Softball League?

By the time other league members find out, it may be too late to do much more than reflect on what might have been.

With Kerik scattering seven hits, Constellation picked up its ninth win in as many starts, Monday, dumping UIC 8-2. Kerik has pitched all nine wins.

The winners erupted for two three-run innings and that was enough. UIC served single runs in each of the second and third innings.

Blaine Mullins supplied the Carpetmen with a double and a triple in leading the offensive. Mike Callaghan collected a pair of singles while Tom Cain doubled. Ron Mitchell, and Kerik each supplied a single.

Tops for UIC was Al Walker with two singles. Bill Healy slammed a double.

Kerick struck out four and walked two while fashioning his seven-hitter.

Joe Scanlon worked the first four innings for UIC, touched for seven hits, fanning one and walking six. Rick Sullivan took over in the fifth and held the winners off the scoreboard, striking out two and walking none while limiting Constellation to one hit.

While Constellation's streak continues in the east division The Intelligencer has a streak of its own in the west section. A Monday 9-2 loss to Post Office was The Intell's sixth straight setback.

The win enabled Postles to take a two-point lead atop the west division.

Norm Lockhart wiped out any hope The Intell had of getting back on the win track, firing a solid four-hitter. He notched 10 walkouts and walked only one.

Ron Colliden took the loss. Touched for 12 hits, he fanned three and walked one.

Lockhart helped his own cause at the plate, meeting the ball for a triple, double and single. Bob Whadyka, Ron Marriott and George Johnson belted a triple each and Soup Campbell stroked two doubles.

Total hits came from Kevin Joudwa with a double, and Maurice Switzer, Tony Gonzalves and Colliden with a single each.

In last night's game, Devolin scored three runs in the first and went on to defeat Roraback Real Estate 5-3.

Four errors by Roraback helped Devolin's cause. Wayne Casselman allowed only six Devolin hits, striking out six.

John Burnside had two hits for Devolin, along with a triple for Randy Lambert.

Harry Macdonald and John Faulkner singled for the losers — their sixth hit in as many starts.

Pepper Fires SHBL Three Hitter

Shannonville and Melrose were rained out of their scheduled South Hastings Baseball League game on the weekend and the teams made it up Monday. But as far as Shannonville is concerned, it should have rained again.

With John Pepper firing a solid five-hitter, Melrose posted a 15-3 win. The winning pitcher struck out seven.

Loser Bill Barberstock, nicked for 15 hits, fanned five.

Pepper helped his own cause at the plate, hammering a home run and punching two singles. Rick Meagher helped himself to a triple and three singles. Randy, Terry and Bruce Pepper each collected a brace of singles.

Murray Maracle's double was the big hit for the losers.

Mixups No Problem

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Minnesota Twins had their batting order mixed up while Texas Rangers had their school ties mixed up Monday night. Both teams won anyway.

Danny Thompson and Dan Ford batted out of order for the first nine innings of Minnesota's 11-10 triumph over Cleveland Indians because Twins manager Frank Quilici gave the public address announcer a different lineup card than he gave home plate umpire Lou Diaro.

Nobody on the playing field noticed the error until the inning

Going To Hawiians

TORONTO (CP) — Rick Cassata, a six-year CFL veteran, said Monday he has signed a one-year contract for $40,000 to play with Honolulu Hawaiians of the World Football League rather than one for three years with Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League. He told Mike Anscom of Global Television that while he expects new Argo coach Russ Jackson, general manager John Barrow made him feel "like he was doing Rick Cassata a favor."

losing, when some exasperated Cleveland fans began yelling to DiMuro.

"I did notice the crowd yelling in the ninth, but I wasn't sure why," said DiMuro. "Even if I did notice it, I couldn't have said anything about it because the home team is supposed to mention it."

Meanwhile, the Rangers mistook their game with Boston for batting practice, hitting four home runs—giving them seven in two games—in a 12-4 rout of the Red Sox.

Elsewhere in the American League, Oakland A's beat Baltimore Orioles 4-3 in 11 innings, Kansas City Royals defeated Detroit Tigers 5-2, Milwaukee Brewers beat Chicago White Sofeated New York Yankees 5-

"I just followed the little redheaded guy like I've been doing for the past week and never lost 1-0 and California Angels thought anything about it," said Thompson, who should have succeeded Ford to the batter's spot at Cleveland. He finally did, in the 11th inning, and drove in Eric Soderholm with the winning run.

The Twins had trailed 10-6 at one point, but rallied for four runs in the ninth inning to force the overtime.

Jim Sundberg hit a grand slam homer for Texas in the second inning. Jeff Burroughs hit his 14th of the season and fifth of his last six games in the third, then Toby Harrah and Jim Spencer added two-run homers in the eighth to complete the rout.

The Red Sox rugs came on Bernie Carbo's second career grand slam.

Vida Blue, not one to waste effort, came out of the bullpen in the 13th inning to pitch and preserved the Oakland triumph. Joe Rudi's single had chased home Bill North with the winning run minutes earlier.

But the A's were not out of the woods until out of the bullpen came Blue with two outs and a runner on second. It was his first relief appearance since 1972.

Amos Otis hit an two-run, inside-the-park home run in the eighth inning to highlight Kansas City's victory over Detroit. Veteran Lindy McDaniel picked up the victory with five innings of four-hit relief.

Darrel Porter's home run in the ninth inning provided Milwaukee's winning margin in a game. Porter had driven in all four of the Brewers' runs.

Bobby Coll scored Dave Collins with a ninth-inning single to carry California past pitcher John Catfish' Hunter and the Yankees, ending New York's eight-game winning streak.

STAN SIGNED

LANDOVER, Md. (CP) — Veteran Stan Gilbertson, who retained in February along with Garnet Bailey from St. Louis Blues, has signed a two-year contract with Washington Capitals of the National Hockey league. Gilbertson, 30, of Duluth, Minn., scored 11 goals and 18 points in 25 games with the Caps.

If You Can't Join 'Em Go Out and Beat 'Em

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

There was a time when Dave Parker dreamed about playing baseball for Cincinnati Reds. Then he grew up and left town. A lot of the Reds' fans probably wish he had never come back.

"I always wanted to be a ballplayer," Parker said Monday night after hitting a three-run homer that wrapped up a five-run first inning and started Pittsburgh Pirates on their way to a 9-3 win over the Reds.

In Monday night's other National League games, Los Angeles Dodgers blanked Montreal Expos 4-0, St. Louis Cardinals beat Atlanta Braves 5-4, Chicago Cubs defeated Houston Astros 4-3 in 10 innings, San Francisco Giants beat New York Mets 5-4 and San Diego Padres defeated Philadelphia Phillies 5-

It appears that, as far as Parker is concerned, if you can't be one of the Reds, it's nice to beat them. "It's always nice coming home and beating the Big Red Machine," he said.

Pitcher Ken Norman was the victim of the early Pirates attack. Reed Stennett singled, Al Oliver singled, Willie Stargell walked, Richie Zisk hit a two-run single and Parker unloaded his eighth homer of the year.

Rawly Eastwick took over from Norman and stopped the Pirates until the fourth inning when Stennett singled, Oliver singled, Willie Stargell hit his ninth homer of the season and Zisk topped things off with his third homer.

Pirates' pitcher Jerry Reuss recorded the win.

The Houston Astrodome nearly suffered a first—a rainout.

Instead, Houston suffered through its ninth consecutive defeat, the result of Jerry Morales' tie-breaking double in the 10th inning for the Cubs.

The game was delayed 54 minutes by a torrential downpour that flooded roads around the indoor stadium, causing both fans and players to be late, and knocking out communications at the ballpark.

Los Angeles pitcher Andy Messersmith struck out 12 Expos en route to a four-hitter and his second consecutive shutout.

Ted Simmons ruined pitcher John (Blue Moon) Odom's debut bid with the Braves by hitting a tie-breaking two-run homer in the fifth inning that carried the Cardinals past Atlanta.

San Francisco, trailing New York 4-1 tied it up in the bottom of the ninth and then the Giants' Bruce Miller grounded a ground-ball single.

John Grubb and Enzo Hernandez each drove in two runs to push the Padres past the Phillies. Grubb drove in his single with two doubles and Hernandez had four of San Diego's 14 hits.

ROD CAREW

Carew Leader

NEW YORK (AP) — Second baseman Rod Carew of Minnesota Twins is easily the leading vote-getter in early balloting for the American League All-Star team, the baseball commissioner's office said Monday.

Carew, hitting .418 going into last night's games, has 757 votes among the early returns. The runner-up at second base is Bobby Grich of Baltimore Orioles with 15,777. The second top vote-getter is outfielder Reggie Jackson of Oakland A's with 49,335.

Second in voting for the three outfield positions is Hank Aaron, an all-time great but an American League rookie. Aaron, a designated hitter for Milwaukee Brewers after 20 years in the National League, has 48,387 votes. Joe Rudi of Oakland is third with 30,765. Just 313 votes more than Bobby Bonds of New York Yankees.

JUDGED DANCER'S IMAGE

GEORGETOWN, Ky. (AP) — Funeral services will be held today for Lewis Finley Jr., a former Kentucky racing steward and thoroughbred breeder, who died Friday at the age of 62. As Kentucky State Racing Commission steward in 1968, Finley sat in judgement when Dancer's Image won the Kentucky Derby and was later disqualified because of the finding of phenylbutazone in its urine.

DAVE McNALLY

McNally Hangs It Up

BALTIMORE (AP) — Pitcher Dave McNally, who won 181 games for Baltimore Orioles before being traded to Montreal Expos last winter, said Monday he is retiring from baseball.

"I've decided to hang it up," he said from his home in suburban Lutherville, Md. "I'm not throwing the ball. I have no second wind and there's no ray of hope that it'll get better."

The 32-year-old left-hander said he has been having trouble ever since spring training and had been lucky to winnnip three of his first four National League starts for the Expos.

"I kept saying I was going to get better and if there was any hope at till that I would, I would stay with it," he said. "But I couldn't put up with this all year."

McNally had experienced some arm pain in other years, but he said there was nothing physically wrong with him this season.

He won 20 or more games for the Orioles for four successive American League seasons, 1968-71. He slipped to 15-17 in 1972, was 17-17 in 1973 and 16-10 last year.

He said he informed Montreal general manager Jim Fanning and manager Gene Mauch of his decision Monday by telephone.

McNally said he will remain in the Baltimore area until his children get out of school for the summer, then move back to his hometown of Billings, Mont., and open an automobile dealership.

McNally lost six of his last eight starts for Montreal, and had a 3-6 record after dropping a decision Sunday to San Diego in the opener of a doubleheader.

Mauch and Fanning urged the left-hander to reconsider his decision and said the door stil open for his return to the team.

The pitcher earned a reported $115,000 with Baltimore last year and sought a raise and two-year contract after coming to the Expos along with Rich Coggins in exchange for Mike Torrez and Ken Singleton.

However, McNally and the Expos had not reached agreement on a new contract at the time of his departure.

During 16 years with the Orioles, McNally pitched 12 full seasons with Baltimore and four times won 20 or more games in a season. A year ago he made 27 starts and relieved in two other games, compiling a 16-10 record.

Walks Away From Crash

MOSPORT, Ont. (CP) — Racing driver Jon Woodner of Berkeley, Calif., walked away without injuries Monday after his Formula 5000 machine crashed into a safety barrier during a practice run on Mosport's road circuit.

Woodner was preparing himself and his Lola T-400 for Sunday's Formula 5000 race when the machine climbed a curb on the Mario Andretti straightaway and crashed into the fence.

"It just got up on the curb and drove into the guardrail," said Woodner.

He said damage to his car was limited to the front end and that was expected to be repaired by today.

Prior to the crash, Woodner had been clipping the 2.45-mile road circuit at more than 110 m.p.h. The lap record for Formula 5000 cars is 116.18 m.p.h. held by Brian Redman of England.

NFL Faces Charges

Tangled Web Was Weaved

NEW YORK (AP) — The tangled legal mess which engulfs the National Football League is headed for yet another courtroom, this time on a government agency's complaint that the league has not acted right in some of its dealings with the players' union.

Already besieged by a pair of federal suits challenging rules which bind a player to one team and a suit brought by former players, the NFL now is in a fourth court.

The latest charges, 15 of them, were issued Monday in a complaint filed by the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB). It alleges, among other things, that the NFL instituted a 15-minute overtime period and a punt rule without consulting the players, that it withheld information about such things as salaries and injuries and that four union officials were cut from their teams because of union activity.

If that isn't enough to distract a fan from the game, consider this:

—The Joe Kapp case, in which a federal judge has ruled the Rozelle Rule and portions of the college draft to be illegal, now goes to a jury trial to determine damages owed Kapp, in late July or August.

—Now on trial in a Minneapolis federal court is a suit brought by former quarterback Ken Mackey, in which the Rozelle Rule and other NFL restrictions on binding a player to one team are challenged.

—Scheduled to begin July 7 in Providence, R.I., is a suit brought against the league and union by retired players who are seeking a piece of the pension plan.

With all that going on, and with a hearing on the NLRB case now scheduled for July 22 in New York, rookies are to begin reporting to NFL training camps July 8 and veterans on July 15. All this while, last season's strike which resulted in no labor contract still has not resulted in an agreement between the players and the owners.

In filing the complaint, the NLRB rejected 17 other charges which the union had filed against the league. Most important among those was an allegation that the NFL had failed to bargain in good faith.

But it carried forth a charge about the league making changes such as sudden-death overtime outside of collective bargaining, and an allegation that union officials Bill Curry, Kermit Alexander, Tom Keating and Ken Stabler were cut or traded because of union activity.

Also carried forth is a charge that Miami Dolphins told playing-coach Nick Buoniconti and Stanfill, because "of their participation in the strike," to return bonus money "paid for signing standard player contract."

Now, Ali's Too Good To Make Predictions

TOKYO (AP) — "My crown is just too heavy for Bugner to carry back to England," says world heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali.

Ali arrived Monday in Tokyo for a one-day stopover to rest before continuing on to Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, where he will meet Joe Bugner of Britain in a title fight on July 1.

"I feel good and very happy to fight in a land where people never have seen a heavyweight fight, happy to share my experience," the 33-year-old champion said at a news conference.

Asked his prediction for the fight, Ali said: "I have no predictions. I'm too good for that. But I do predict he will not take my title back to England."

The champion had said earlier he would knock down the Briton "probably in the 10th."

Ali said his training in Kuala Lumpur would be different. "I will mostly do running. Not much boxing. Not much punching. Just running will make my legs stronger."

He also said he is ready to fight Joe Frazier "probably in Manila." Frazier is one of two men who have beaten Ali in the heavyweight ranks.

A young man claiming to be a businessman for Japanese wrestler Antonio Inoki told Ali that "Inoki can make you sleep in 30 minutes," and handed a letter of challenge to Ali.

The champion replied: "Ali can make the wrestler sleep in five minutes. Tell him I'm ready. I hope he is serious."

The letter says the winner receives $10 million," the young man said.

Later, Ali was asked, "What does money mean to you?"

"Money is good if you can make it in an honest and clean way," Ali said. "I like to take my money and help as many poor people as I can."

Bid to Match The Big Three

NEW YORK (AP) — Belmont Park and Hollywood Park are bidding for the services of Avatar, Foolish Pleasure and Master Derby, the three colts who divided thoroughbred racing's Triple Crown.

And Belmont appeared today to have an edge over the California track.

Kenny Noe, racing secretary for the New York Racing Association (NYRA), announced Monday that Smiley Adams, trainer of Preakness winner Master Derby, had accepted an invitation to oppose Foolish Pleasure and Avatar in a special $300,000 race at Belmont June 28 or 28.

Noe also announced he had received acceptances from Leroy Jolley, trainer of Kentucky Derby winner Foolish Pleasure, and that Jolley would make a firm decision later in the week.

But Noe said he had not been able to contact Arthur A. Seligson Jr., who owns Avatar, or Tommy Doyle, who trains the Belmont Stakes winner.

Avatar left New York on Sunday, the day after his Belmont victory, and flew back to Hollywood Park, which has offered to increase the purse of its regularly - scheduled Swaps Stakes if two of the three colts would join the field. The Swaps is set for June 29.

The added money for the Swaps was increased to $150,000 from $100,000 last week before Avatar, who is based in California, won the Belmont and F.E. Kilroe, director of racing at Hollywood Park, said at the time:

"There is a strong possibility that the Swaps may become our first $300,000 presentation."

On Monday, Kilroe criticized the NYRA's proposed race because of the conflict with the Swaps and said racing associations must "consider each others' advertised programs before they become embroiled in a self-destructive struggle.

In announcing the proposed three-horse race at Belmont Park, Jack Dreyfus, chairman of the board of the NYRA, indicated the purse might be more than $300,000 if suitable arrangements could be made for television coverage.

The special race would be at 1¼ miles, the same distance as the Swaps and each colt would carry 126 pounds. The Kentucky Derby is at 1¼ miles, the Preakness at 1 3-16 and the Belmont at 1½.

IN MEMORIAM

MCDONELL — In loving memory of a dear husband (Irene), who passed away June 8th, 1973.
Peacefully sleeping, resting at last, The world's weary troubles and trials are past.
In silence she suffered, in patience she bore,
Till God called her home to suffer no more.
—Sadly missed by daughter Bernadette and son-in-law Bernard and grandchildren Deryl and Cathy.

WOODS — In loving memory if a dear mother, Gerry, who passed away June 15, 1973.
We can not need a special day, To remember our mother.
For the days we do not think of you, Are very hard to bear.
If all this world were ours to give, We'd give it to you gladly.
Sweet memories are all we have, Lovely smiling faces we miss.
—Sadly missed by brother Jim and Barb.

ANDREWS — In loving memory of a dear mother, Hannah Andrews, who passed away June 15, 1974.
Sleep on dear mother and take your rest, God knows best.
Of happy times we once enjoyed, And things we shall be long employed.
But one year ago God called you, To this I have no choice to do.
For all your love and care, And an aching heart we leave you.
—Always remembered by daughter Joan and son-in-law Art.

ANDREWS — In loving memory of a dear grandmother and great grandmother Hannah Edith Andrews who passed away June 15, 1973.
Sleep on dear one, sleep on and take your rest,
We watched you fade away, Our hearts were almost broken.
You fought as hard as you could, But whether we were sleeping, Or could not see you weep,
We knew the time was near,
To enter that silent home.
—Sadly missed by Lynn, Joe, Joey and Lisa.

ANDREWS — In loving memory of a dear grandmother and great grandmother Hannah Edith Andrews who passed away June 15, 1973.
God knew that she was suffering, That the days were hard to cling, So He closed her weary eyelids, And whispered softly "Come home." Jesus kissed her baby's lips of clay, By the valley of rest so fair,
Some flower, we know not where, But God knows and He cares.
We will meet our loved one there.
—Missed by Gerta, Ann, Angela, Janet, Christine and Michelle

Gilbert May Remain A New York Ranger

NEW YORK (AP) — Rod Gilbert, the right winger who last played for New York Rangers, appears on the verge of returning to the National Hockey League club despite free-agent status that permits him to sign with any team in hockey.

In a telephone interview from Las Vegas where he is playing in a celebrity tennis tournament, the 13-year NHL veteran said "some new things have come up" and he's optimistic about returning to the Rangers, for whom he scored 97 points last season.

Gilbert's contract with the Rangers had lapsed after the season ended, and there was speculation the 34-year-old all-star would sign with New England Whalers of the World Hockey Association. But he said Monday night that "things look fluid."

"We're trying to work out some things that would keep me in New York."

One thing Gilbert had wanted was the security of a three-year, no-trade contract—a matter to which Rangers general manager Emile Francis refused to agree.

First Place Arrows Stung

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec Caribous broke open a tight contest with four straight goals in less than six minutes of the third period and stunned Maryland Arrows 77-11 in the only National Lacrosse League game Monday night.

The victory over the first-place Arrows was Quebec's fifth in 16 games this season. They also have two ties for 12 points, three fewer than fifth-place Boston Bolts, Maryland, 13-4, leads second-place Montreal Quebecois by two points.

Dave Durante and Travis Cook scored three goals apiece for the Caribous, Brian Wilson, Brian Evans and Bruce Mudrick added two each, and Terry Robert, Sean Murray, Cawkett and Pat Differ contributed single goals.

Paul Sugrale and Blair Campbell led the Arrows attack, which has produced a league-leading 114 goals, with two each. John McKenna, Terry Davis, Guy Cody, Brian Tukker, Wayne Granger, Joe Todd and Bob Shaw had singles.

Maryland outshot Quebec 69-59 before 3,111 fans at the Coliseum.

Raes and Scrappers Split Doubleheader

NEWMARKET, Ont. (CP) — Newmarket Raes and Hamilton Scrappers split a doubleheader in Ontario Fastball League action Monday.

In the first game, Newmarket downed Hamilton 3-1, as Bill Lunney "struck out seven" in gaining the victory.

In the second game, Hamilton beat Newmarket 5-4. Lunney was the loser with Bill McNeilis getting the win.

League play resumes today with Belleville at Toronto for a doubleheader, Hamilton at London and Newmarket at Oshawa.

USSR Visits

The Only Way Says Campbell

MONTREAL (CP) — Representatives of the National Hockey League and the Soviet Union's ice hockey federation met Monday to discuss the proposed visit of two Russian hockey teams to North America during the 1975-76 season.

The proposal would see each of the two Soviet teams play six games in Canadian and United States NHL arenas in late December and early January.

N.H.L. president Clarence Campbell earlier maintained the series fitted the league's schedule, "and, for the time being, I believe it is the only way to develop the game of hockey."

Building an early 3-1 lead, Belleville Broadloom was never headed on the way to a 8-4 Eastern Ontario Baseball Association Peewee victory against Thurlow Plate's Concrete. It was the third win in as many days for the Belleville team.

Staggering Social Statistics Prompt Study at Quinte Secondary

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

Backed by some staggering social statistics, Quinte Secondary School will launch an experimental project next fall to help solve some of the social, family and attitude problems now affecting a large portion of its student population.

Frank Chapman, vice - principal of the Quinte high school, went before the Hastings County Board of Education in Bancroft this week to gain acceptance for a pilot project that he describes as more than a supermarket approach to teaching students with family, personal or health problems.

He shocked trustees by revealing that between 30 and 40 per cent of the school's student population comes from one-parent families. "Quinte Secondary School can now be called inner-city school with the exception of ethnic populations," explained Mr. Chapman.

Mr. Chapman said about 70 of Quinte's 1,200 students have chronic attendance problems. Since September 80 students have dropped out of the school. He also said about 15 students come from homes where alcoholism is a major problem.

"We now serve a predominantly low-income area of the city including five low-rental housing projects, "explained Mr. Chapman. The school is located on College St. near Front St. North. About 60 students are bussed in from Thurlow and Tyendinaga. He said the school has dramatically changed its complexion since 1970 when over 90 per cent of the students were country kids."

Mr. Chapman has maintained that for the school to achieve its academic objectives it must first treat the social and family problems that prevent a student from learning. The pilot project will involve a community contact team, composed of teachers, social workers, para-professionals and laypeople.

He said the contact team will have a nucleus of four people: counsellor Jack Blake, nurse Margaret Wiggins, an attendance counsellor and ex-guest teacher Pat Holland.

"A second advisory team will consist of a cross section of people like a police officer, health unit representative, mental health personnel, probation officer, principals, a trustee and a board superintendent. Some Loyalist student are also expected to play a role in the pilot project.

"The team will first serve the student giving immediate assistance — it will then go into the home, if allowed or invited, to give help, and we can go on an immediate or short term basis," he added. He said all community agencies in Belleville have offered their volunteer assistance in the program.

Mr. Chapman, in an effort to sell his program, also told the trustees that 10 per cent of the attendance counselling for the board occurs at Quinte Secondary School and its feeder elementary schools.

Mr. Chapman also pointed out that Quinte has six students on probation and that more than 10 per cent of the population has general dental health problems.

"There are those who believe that our schools have been forsaking a change for its own sake that we participate in a frightening lack of imagination — that we have a supermarket approach rather than the exhaustive, knowledgeable approach which complifies rigor, precision and exactness," argued Mr. Chapman who along with other has been working months to develop this new concept.

The pilot project has developed out of Hastings County Board of Education task forces and Alternatives in Education. The task force has continually supported the Quinte project and the board gave its approval.

Athletes Almost Received Bum Steer

MONTREAL (CP) — A provincial meat inspector told the Quebec Police Commission inquiry into organized crime Tuesday that 1,200 pounds of horse meat meant to feed athletes at the Quebec Games at Rouyn was seized in an 11th-hour raid by authorities.

Laurent Brisé'amour testified the horse meat, disguised as pure-beef hamburger, was seized by Quebec Provincial Police (QPP) and agricultural department inspectors at a local high school cafeteria where the athletes were to eat their meals.

He said it came from Salaison B and M Inc. of Royn, which had the contract to supply meat to athletes at the games.

The inspector added the seizure touched off a series of raids in the Rouyn-Noranda area, resulting in the seizure and burial of more than 20,000 pounds of meat.

He said the meat was seized from hotels, restaurants and grocery stores in Rouyn, 300 miles northwest of Montreal.

Aurel Desjardins, an employee of Salaison B and M at the time, testified he worked in the firm's receiving depot when crates of horse meat arrived with the stamp "Quebec Approved."

He said the original labels identifying it as horse meat were taken off the boxes but the "Quebec Approved" label was kept on.

Jean-Pierre Bonneville, 54, a major shareholder and a company director, denied any knowledge that his firm was selling its products with horse meat.

Joseph Chanter, 59, a provincial government employee, told the inquiry that prior to the August 1973 raids, horse meat was widely sold as beef in northwestern Quebec.

Hostage Killed, Convicts Seized

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) — A bold attempt for freedom in another country by three inmates serving life terms ended brutally early today when their 15 hostages apparently turned on them.

Mary Steinhauer, one of hostages being held at the British Columbia penitentiary by the convicts, was killed. The others were freed.

An ambulance attendant said she was shot in the chest.

One convict, believed to be Andrew Bruce St. ... originally from North Vancouver, was in hospital and was being operated on. A second hostage suffered a head bump.

The other two, Claire Wilson, 32, originally from Campbell River on Vancouver Island, and Douglas Lucas, 29, from Winnipeg, were reportedly being held in city police cells.

The two were seen leaving the prison yard by van.

Medical Bulletins: one of five intermediaries named by the three convicts, said the hostage seige ended when the hostages—14 classification officers and one guard—attached their captors.

He said the attack apparently misfired. The three convicts had held the hostages since 11 a.m. EDT Monday with three kilograms of explosives. They were not believed to have possessed firearms.

Mr. Breimberg said a penitentiary official noticed the attack in the classification centre where the hostages were being held in a small room. He said the official alerted "a tactical squad."

Mr. Breimberg, a writer with The Western Voice newspaper and a former Simon Fraser University professor who with three convicts mistakenly thought head of the Communist Party of Canada, said he and three other intermediaries had gone to a hotel for their first rest in almost 40 hours.

Gary Bannerman, an open-line broadcaster with radio station CKNW and another intermediary, also said the three planned the attack on their captors.

He said Mrs. Steinhauser's death was not in vain.

"She did a great service for all the hostages," he said. "The ultimate ironic tragedy was that Mary had a strong affinity for the inmates."

Mr. Bannerman said he believed Mrs. Steinhauser had been shot and stabbed.

He said she was sitting on a sofa outside the tiny vault with Lucas and Bruce when the attack occurred. The other hostages locked themselves in the vault with Wilson who had passed out.

One report said one of the hostages grabbed Wilson and threw him to the floor.

Debatement arguments for hte resulted in the shots being fired. Mrs. Steinhauser was shot and one of the convicts was shot in the mouth, one report said.

Jim Murphy, regional director of the federal penitentiary service said Mrs Steinhauser, 32, was dead on arrival at hospital.

The three Hiers demanded they be let out of Canada. They said they would kill their hostages if their demands were not met.

Food, Housing Costs Boost Consumer Index

OTTAWA (CP) — The largest rise in food prices so far this year, as well as higher housing costs, helped push the consumer price index eight-tenths of one per cent higher in May, Statistics Canada said today.

After steadily declining in each of the previous four months, beef prices rose again in early May. Fresh fruit and vegetable prices also were up sharply.

The higher food price rise was expected. The Food Prices Review Board, which has started compiling its own price reports, had noted the trend two weeks ago. It said meat, vegetables, fruit and dairy product prices were rising more quickly than had been expected.

The board's index is based on a weekly monitoring of food price changes and is published within a week of the most recent survey. It covers about 85 per cent of the food items the consumer price index contains. Statistics Canada's report is based on a survey done about a month ago. It says the rise in the food index during May was the largest for any month this year, but still is well below the rate of increase in the comparable 1974 period.

The food prices board is predicting about a 15-per-cent rise in food costs this year.

Higher costs for housing also were an important factor in the May change in the over-all index, accounting for about one-quarter of the increase. These higher costs applied to both rented and owned accommodations, Statistics Canada says.

Higher costs for food accounted for about 40 per cent of the increase. The rise in the over-all index of 1.1 per cent was the largest for any month this year.

Ottawa Considers Changing NATO Role to All-land Contingent

OTTAWA (CP) — Under mounting from Europe, Ottawa is giving serious consideration to changing Canada's NATO contingent to an all-land element, informants say.

Informants said this week that the government is leaning towards such a move despite recent indications that Defence Minister James Richardson favors an all-air element.

The informants said Tuesday that a strong indication of current thinking in the prime minister's office was given in a Commons speech last week by Jean-Pierre Goyer, Q—Labelle), chairman of the House defence and external affairs committee.

Mr. Goyer recommended that an all-land force replace the present mixed air and land force of 1,000 men. He also suggested a modernization program for the aging Centurion tanks used by Canadians in Europe.

Canada is reconsidering the future of its NATO commitment as part of an over-all defence structure review.

'Handful' of Ballots May Swing Saskatchewan

REGINA (CP) — Saskatchewan politicians began a nervous wait for the results of voting in today's provincial election, uncomfortably aware that a comparative handful of votes could decide the outcome.

Even in the 1971 election, where New Democrats took 45 of 60 seats, it would have taken only 4,677 more Liberal votes in 16 ridings for that party to form the government with 31 seats. Alternatively, 4,463 more NDP votes would have given them all 60 seats.

The Progressive Conservatives, who last elected a member of the legislature in 1964 and ran only 16 candidates in 1971, waged a full-scale campaign that has left observers arguing about whose vote they will cut into.

Other new factors are the strong campaigns being waged by independents in three ridings, the radical improvement in Saskatchewan's economic situation since 1971, and the absence of an overriding issue like the 1971 hostility to the decaying Liberal government of the late Ross Thatcher.

New Democrats imported former Saskatchewan premier T. C. Douglas from his British Columbia federal riding for several speeches.

Although most of the rhetoric on federal-provincial relations concerned resources and transportation, all parties said they would defend the province's right to the major share of resource revenue and would fight any federal plans for a large-scale railline abandonment.

Oil Hike Postponed

LIBREVILLE, Gabon (AP) — The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries has postponed its decision on the increase in the price of crude oil that it expects to make in the fall. Valentin Hernandez Acosta of Venezuela, chairman of the oil cartel, said a new price structure would mean an increase of less than 20 cents a barrel, and the effect on retail prices of petroleum products should be almost unnoticeable.

Ordeal Ends

MONTREAL (CP) — The manager of a nearby Laval credit union and his family were released unharmed today following a $200,000 extortion attempt. Gilles Charbonneau, Laval assistant police director, said bank manager Jean Guy Berube, his wife and his two children were released following negotiations between an armed man and police after heavily armed police surrounded the Caisse Populaire St. Vincent de Paul shortly after 8:30 a.m. EDT. He said 20 bank employees held for a while, were also released unharmed.

Backed by Indian Claims Commissioner

Native Rights Cause Gets Shot in Arm

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Indian Claims Commissioner Lloyd Barber raised high hopes Tuesday when he told the Native Council of Canada he firmly believes Metis and non-status Indians have valid aboriginal and land claims.

Spokesmen for the council, which represents 750,000 Metis and native people who have lost Indian status for a variety of reasons, said the Barber speech was a historic one.

"It's the first time that anyone with any authority in Ottawa has made such statements," said Tony Belcourt of Ottawa, a former council president.

Wally Firth, NDP member of Parliament for the Northwest Territories, said Mr. Barber would not have made the same speech five or 10 years ago. It showed the need to have more Canadians informed about native affairs.

Mr. Barber cautioned delegates that he has no power to make settlements but only to investigate claims and suggest settlements. He said the claims of Indians who lost their status were not as well known as those of Indians who remain within the Indian Act and are recognized as Indians by the federal government.

"But that does not make their claims any less real," he added. The claims were well established in Canadian law.

The federal government has agreed to negotiate claims of registered Indians in areas where no treaties were signed, Nonpalisons are under way in the Yukon and northern Quebec and are pending in Northwest Territories and British Columbia.

But no government has ever paid attention to the claims of native people who have lost their registration roles of the Indian affairs department.

Mr. Barber, appointed to office in 1969 by Prime Minister Trudeau, also was unsure whether his terms of reference include looking into claims of non-status Indians.

"Perhaps I'll be told to keep my nose out of there, but right now that's the way I interpret my mandate," he said.

Songsters Make Debut

By EUGENE LANG

A large congregation was in attendance Tuesday evening at Bridge Street United Church to hear the internationally famous Cambridge Heath Songsters of the Salvation Army from London, England. The group is making its first North American tour of 12 Canadian and U.S. cities.

The two-hour program presented was not only entertaining musically, but also spiritually uplifting. The choir of 14 female and 11 male voices exemplified a high degree of training under the direction of Victor Handscombe, who brought forth many hymns and sacred songs of Army familiarity with a blending of beautiful tone and fullness of sonority.

They played approximately 15 selections, most of them unaccompanied, in the way demonstrating extreme clarity of diction and symmetry of harmonic interlining. To give a touch of present day trends the final group of three hymns was sung in a jazzy fashion of syncopation heightened by rhythmic impetus.

Two singers from the group were heard in solo numbers, first memo-soprano Margaret Harrington imparting soulful religious feelings in her offering, and second Jacqueline Procter releasing soft phrases with sensitive fragility.

Safely resounding notes came forth from the bass ensemble in their rendition of any late 19th century German Sonata movement.

A real eye-opener to everyone was the Xylophone virtuosity of Kenneth Cushing in his three selections. Round after round of applause greeted each of his appearances.

The piano accompaniments were needed Christine Barnes supplied the proper carry, keyboard background most admirably. In the two solo numbers she attested deftness of finger action in the C.P.E. Bach Sonata, showing profundity of tonal washings in her handling of Debussy's velled overlapping of harmonies in The Submerged Cathedral. When not at the piano she appeared as one of the songsters.

The master of ceremonies was Maj. Norman Bearcroft, secretary for bands of the Salvation Army of Canada. His dry British humor mixed with tongue-in-cheek witticisms not only brought smiles to the listeners but, and out of laughter many times.

The opening prayer was given by Canon Peter Tett of St. Thomas Anglican Church following a welcome to both participants and congregation by J.C. Col. Harold L. Sharp, divisional commander of the mid Ontario division of the Army. Closing prayer was offered by Rev. George Ward, minister of the host Church, which now is celebrating its 50th anniversary.

The local Salvation Army Band provided music previous to the concert and at intermission.

All in all a really enjoyable evening and one that the local Sally-Ann can be proud of sponsoring.

Improved Water System Leads To New Senior Housing Centre

DESERONTO — Town council has received word that provincial government plans to build a long-awaited senior citizens' housing project here.

Sam Knapp, town clerk-treasurer, said an architect and an Ontario Housing Corp. (OHC) representative will discuss the undertaking with councillors.

Clarke Rollins, MPP Hastings, has announced the Ontario housing ministry has given the approval to development of 36 units to house the town's elderly.

The proposal follows a needs study carried out by OHC earlier this year, said Mr. Knapp.

It ends a wait of several years for such a project. Originally, 10 units had been proposed about three years ago. Then the proposal foundered after the community received bad publicity about its water supply system, said the town half official.

Since that time, the town has signed an agreement permitting the province to assume responsibility for municipal waterworks, said Mr. Knapp.

Tenders are already in for construction of a pumphouse and the final phase — construction of a distribution system — now is up for bids. The entire system should be completed in 12 months, he indicated.

Water Levels Low Despite Rainfall

TRENTON — Heavy rainfall experienced in the southern portion of the Trent-Severn Waterway this weekend was not matched in equal abundance further north and therefore little prospect is seen for any change in popular low levels on the canal system, this summer.

In the Haliburton and Kawartha resort areas rainfall was not sufficient to fill reservoir lakes Parks Canada officials need to use this summer to maintain canal optimum navigability.

The assessment of the effect of this weekend's rains came from Waterway water control officer Bruce Kitchen Tuesday. Though Trenton and Peterborough received plenty of rain, he said, the Lindsay area was not so fortunate.

"My own garden is soaked," said Mr. Kitchen from Peterborough. "But the rain didn't get to Lindsay and the northern lakes. I had hoped for an improvement there."

Lake design is "waiting on rain," he said.

He said the lake, south of Lindsay, is a perimeter lake — one that feeds the canal system but is not itself fed by major streams or rivers.

Upon such lakes depends control of water levels on the canal, Mr. Kitchen said. If water is insufficient, problems could result.

Further north, about 40 reservoir lakes remain only 85 to 90 per cent full. There, "we're still in a fairly short situation."

He said some of the more northern lakes in the reservoir system have already been tapped for water.

Museum Completes Chancel Restoration

PICTON — Plans for formal dedication of a stain - glass window in chancel area of the Prince Edward County Museum by former prime minister John Diefenbaker were announced today by museum curator James Goodleg.

The museum, opened in 1973 is a former Anglican church.

The window was donated to the museum in 1973 by Picton's late mayor H.J. McFarland in memory of his mother. No formal dedication service has been held to date and only recently has the chancel area been completed.

A carpet woven in England to duplicate the original floor covering near the altar arrived at the museum this spring and now is in place.

A ceiling fixture originally used in the church has been salvaged and will be re-hung in the chancel area.

Intricate stencil work on the walls of the church has been renewed by Prince Edward craftsman Vernon Hayes who also re-painted a sprinkling of stars on the 30 foot blue ceiling of the chancel.

Donna McMeister, a student in museum technology from Algonquin College who is employed this summer at the county museum notes a history of the old church has been compiled and contains numerous interesting facts.

In 1830 there was a total of 39 pew holders with top prices paid for a front seat.

The first three rows of the church were rented for one pound and 15 shillings each a year and the next three rows for one pound-each. All other seats were rented for an annual fee of 15 shillings.

Collections were taken in a small bag fastened at the end of a long pole according to notations from a book compiled by a Picton woman interested in the church and its history.

A clerk was appointed to make responses for the worshipers and it was the sexton's duty to open the pulpit door for the rector in the service and then shut it behind him.

In 1840 the old Anglican church had a choir of about 40 persons.

The names of some of these early-day singers are on record at the museum.

The chancel area, renovated when the church was converted to a museum, today includes several pieces of its original furnishings. Among these are pews and altars and a church organ.

Furnishings in the chancel area were financed by Lake Ontario Cement Co. Ltd. here.

PICTON — Prince Edward County Memorial has received accreditation status from the Canadian Council on Hospital Accreditation.

Announcement of the award was made following an inspection of the hospital by a final staff representative and further assessment by the board of directors of the council.

The Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital first was accredited in 1966 and will retain its updated accreditation until the next official survey called at the discretion of the council.

In the survey of the hospital, all aspects of the quality of patient care were studied and detailed reviews and analysis of actions by the board of governors, the medical staff, administration, nursing staff and other departments conducted.

How Old Age Pension Came About

A Useful MP is an Ideas Man Whose Brainwork Can Have Long-term Benefit

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — What good, really, are the Honorable Members of the House of Commons, except to vote for or against legislation proposed by the cabinet as drafted by public servants.

It is an old if cynical question, based on the widely held public proposition that elected MPs are trained political seals — those on the government side of the House routinely voting for the ruling administration and those on the opposition side against it.

Old and cynical although the question may be, it is getting asked more frequently these days since the Honorable Members, calling for restraint in government spending, were sort of unrestrained themselves in voting their pay and allowances up one-third from $28,000 to $34,000 with the country's most pressing economic problem issued by forecasters.

There are many answers to the question.

It is a particularly convincing and compelling one has just been given — not by any one person, whose prejudices and preferences might be suspected — but by the way things work out, by public and political opinion, as it fact, by the very functioning of the parliamentary system.

The short answer is that any MP worth your vote has to be, first and foremost, a good ideas man.

For that is where, originally, despite the vast liberties of the huge public service establishment serving the cabinet — the government's usually gets its policy inspirations.

An MP leaves out an idea onto the floor of the Commons. It gets kicked around — picked up by some thoughtful senior public service mandarin — worked on and passed along to a cabinet minister as a possible project to be processed by a departmental task force — locked along to the full ministry — presented to the Commons — chewed over in special House Committee — and later, perhaps years later, becomes law.

Like when J. W. Woodsworth, founder of the old CCF, now the New Democratic Party, and through five Parliaments the MP for Winnipeg North Centre, first issued the Old Age Pension ball into parliamentary play.

Fittingly, for he is Woodsworth's successor in the Winnipeg Centre seat, MP Stanley Knowles has kept it rolling, now for a while by no means living the life of ease, the elderly can encourage to scrape by.

But that is history.

What is the years ahead may become history is an idea that a Lethbridge Conservative MP, Kenneth Hurlburt thrusted out one September day in 1973.

People feel rapid and take any more public service strikes, he said, as why not do something about stopping them before they start?

His proposition:

Have Parliament impose substantial financial penalties in equal measure on public service unions and their employers, the government and its crown corporations for every day of failure to settle an illegal strike.

To make it more interesting to both the unions and their bosses, and to make it hurt and the price of non-settlement as high as $100,000 a day, he said.

"Think how fast," said Ken Hurlburt at the time, "wildcat strikes in the Post Office or Air Canada would be over — or they wouldn't have time to start."

So what happens?

Nothing much.

Except a more sober two years later a joint Commons-Senate special Committee is studying labor relations in the federal public service.

Prime objective: stop those strikes.

But how?

Well, Jacob Finkelman, chairman of the Public Service Staff Relations Board, has come up with a revised of Ken Hurlburt's idea.

Set up the required legal machinery, he says, for the prosecution of unions and their officers who counsel or cause illegal strikes, and of employers who illegally lock out employees.

If the Committee buys it and Parliament passes the resulting legislation, it will prevent the government ducking — as it often does now — its responsibility of cracking down on public service trouble-makers who rob itself and forcing the helpless taxpayer with illegal strike blackmail and intolerable inconvenience.

Enthusiasm of Youth

Mark Potts of Centennial secondary school is a young man of keen intelligence and awareness, as befits a student chosen to participate in the Adventure Citizenship program.

Potts told local Rotarians recently of his experiences in the 25th anniversary program and he gave them something more than a routine recital of events. It is generally a packed itinerary and the Centennial youth found his a "valuable learning experience."

Quebec is in the news again and hilliest it is he was in a Quebec village with another student, from Drummondville, there developed a lively exchange on the labor scene in the province, and the separatist movement, among other topics.

A coin collector and history buff, Potts enjoyed a visit to the Canadian War Museum, and to various foreign embassies and other points of interest in the capital.

As a gastronomic experience, the first of three meals in the elegant Chateau Laurier proved that even the best of names in the hotel world can occasionally be a bummer — what he described as a "not-so-glorious repast of chicken pot pie." Happily, the two subsequent banquets there "more than made up for the first."

A parliamentary-style discussion among the students enlivened the atmosphere at the University of Ottawa, revealing the students' awareness that politics, whether we like it or not, are inseparable from the human condition and that we ignore this fact at our peril.

The debate was on the subject: "Should the Terms of Confederation be Renegotiated?" The participants were divided into ten groups of 27, and each had to make a case for one of five designated areas of Canada. Potts represented the Maritime provinces and he said "tempers flared as the students demanded more rights for their regions."

Finally, the motion was carried and the Centennial student had this significant contribution of the debate for the service club members: "Perhaps by the time we are old enough to be members of parliament, the renegotiation of the terms of Confederation will be a very real part of Parliamentary sessions."

Who knows? It might well be a subject as heated and diversive as the flag debate . . . but, let's hope...not yet.

Death In The Forenoon

It is easy to understand the feelings of one whose dog has been struck and killed by a car and the driver keeps on going. Such as the occurrence described in a letter on this page.

A Belleville resident such an incident on 401 near the cut off for Napanee, the difference being that he reported it to the police.

Viewpoints

Ottawa Journal

Ah, yes, last month's sudden hot dry spell might have been unseasonable and uncomfortable, but at least, as it was then we could be fewer black flies and fewer mosquitoes. It is a little early for any judgment about the mosquito crop. But, clearly, somebody forgot to tell the black flies that hot dry weather was bad for breeding. Ask anyone just back from a fishing trip in Algonquin Park or a weekend at a Gatineau cottage. If the black flies are any less plentiful or voracious or malevolent this year than in any year of recent memory, only an entomologist knows.

Consumers Beware When Current Oil Surpluses are Gone

By KEVIN DOYLE

WASHINGTON (CP) — Nearly 19 months after the industrial world was staggered by a series of international oil price increases, relations between consumers and producers seem to be further sinking, despite efforts by Western politicians to improve the situation.

At a recent meeting of the energy committee of the Paris-based Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD), U.S. State Sec etary Henry Kissinger made the latest attempt to allay mounting consumer-producer tensions, but it fell largely on deaf ears.

Among other things, Kissinger recommended establishment of international commissions to deal with pricing and supply of separate raw materials including oil.

The suggestion was rejected by the Arab states. The Third World states who fear their bargaining power would be weakened if commodities they supply were separated from oil.

The Arab oil states, too, remain determined that petroleum be considered only in relation to other raw materials and not as a substitute with a value of its own.

The oil-producing states, members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC), now are threatening to increase prices even further, by as much as 35 per cent, to compensate for erosion of their incomes from world inflation and weakening dollar.

The difficulty of reaching some kind of global accommodation, however, means they have arisen from divisions among the consuming states themselves as well as from disagreement with the producers.

The price of petroleum skyrocketed at a time when stocks in the West were low and demand was high. Earlier contingency plans for co-operation in such an emergency were abandoned with haste.

British, French, West German and Italian ministers rushed to the Middle East, saying to the producers, in effect: "We are friendlier than they are. Please can we have some more-oil."

When the immediate crisis abated, economists and politicians in the industrial states began looking for ways to co-operate. But they have achieved too little and too late.

Kissinger organized a consumers' conference here last year to try to reach differences but that had limited success.

Meanwhile, the producers voluntarily imposed a nine-month price freeze which ends in September.

In April, there were two more major attempts in Paris to promote co-operation. Both again ended in confrontation.

The first, among the consumers, was intended to adopt a Kissinger proposal for establishing an international oil floor price of, say, $7 a barrel to prevent any future price fall making uneconomic the development of alternative energy sources.

About a week later, France sponsored a preliminary meeting among oil producing ministers and individuated countries to draw up an agenda for a future conference on commodity pricing—but delegates could not agree what they should talk about at that conference.

Meanwhile, observers estimate that a current oil surplus among the consumers will disappear within four months, leaving them once again at the mercy of the producers.

An Efficient Provincial Cabinet

By DON O'HEARN

Queen's Park Bureau

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — Looking down at the house the other day during the question period it occurred to me that something which probably hasn't

Proof of this is evident with just a glance at the government front benches.

The government desks are studded with men and women who came into the house in 1971 and number-ed among them are some of the best ministers.

In all, nine members of the cabinet came into the house for the first time in the last election, and in addition to these there is a large group of parliamentary assistants who entered in the same year.

The ministers include John Clement and Sidney Handleman, two men who are outstanding and who would add strength to any cabinet.

Facetes Tom Wardle and Darcy McKeough they could be the best ministers in the government.

Clement, 44, and lawyer, has a remarkable down-to-earth and retentive mind. At present he is carrying the portfolios of justice secretary, attorney-general and solicitor-general.

He had held the portfolio only a few months when he had to pilot his estimates through the house and the green of the ministries he had attained in a very short time was fantastic.

Handleman, 54, an economist, has the same faculty of being a quick study.

His ministry of consumer and commercial relations is probably the most complex in the government.

Again, he has held the portfolio for only a few months. But he has grasped it even down to small details.

Other members of the class of '71 in the cabinet include Finance Minister Frank Miller, Transportation Minister John Rhodes, Housing Minister Donald Irvin, Labor Minister John MacBeth, Energy Minister Dennis Timbrell, Tourism and Industry's Claude Bennett and Provincial Secretary for Social Development Margaret Birch.

They are for the most part a capable crew.

It is testimony to the premier that he personally picked many of them as candidates.

This, of course, also means that if his government should be defeated there will be little or no blame on his cabinet.

Ontario Lets it be Known PLO Are Unwelcome Here

By GEORGE KITCHEN

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The controversy in Canada over whether Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) observers should be allowed to attend the UN crime conference in Toronto in September has drawn anxious attention in high UN circles.

Highly-placed officials in the UN secretariat are watching with considerable concern to see what stand the Canadian delegation will take on the contentious issue.

There is acknowledgement that the Canada government has been placed in an awkward and embarrassing position by the domestic outcry, including Ontario Premier William Davis's written protest to Prime Minister Trudeau that admission of the Palestinians would be regarded as an "affront and provocation" by the province of Ontario.

Observers have point out that more than just the Toronto crime conference is involved. The issue also encompasses Habitat, the UN conference on human habitation, which is to be held in Vancouver next year. If Canada takes a stand against admission of the Palestinians to the crime conference, the UN is almost certain to cancel the Toronto arrangements and hold the conference elsewhere. It then would have to cancel the Vancouver conference, which is a far more elaborate undertaking involving thousands of delegates and expenditures of 5 million or more.

The position of the PLO is that it was given observer status at the last session of the UN General Assembly in New York and thus has a right to attend UN meetings and conferences as observers.

Pierre Juneau, UN official in charge of making arrangements for the conference, Gerhart Moeller, chief of the UN crime prevention division, expressed the opinion that Canada, since it invited the UN to hold the conference in Toronto, has an obligation to accept the status the UN attached to attending delegations.

There was a UN precedent for host countries which refuse accredited delegations, going back to 1948 when another group granted observer status applied to Israelis and murderers." That group was the Jewish Agency which, within a year, came to become the government of the new state of Israel.

There have been no objections to PLO representation at Toronto from the Israelis, whose people have suffered more than any from attacks by Arab terrorists.

Canada is virtually committed to accept the PLO delegates since it already has negotiated, though not yet signed, an agreement with the UN covering the conference.

It is standard procedure when UN conferences are held in the UN and the country in-volved to enter into an agreement spelling out responsibilities, including the privileges and immunities the host country-in this case, Canada-will grant to the delegates to the conference.

The agreement for the crime conference includes an agreed provision that Canada will grant privileges and immunities to delegates designated by the UN secretary-general. The PLO representatives fall into that category.

Vietnam Remembered

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

"For over ten years I have heard people speaking regarding the American role in the Vietnam War. I, as a young 20's, when the war was first on the Marse, and maybe historians will agree, was one of that never ex-pressed opinion that I considered your views facile, simplistic, inhuman, illogical, rational, lacking historical perspective and emotionally biased by a 'good-guy-bad-guy' world-view. Blinded by your reverence for patriotism especially as it was embodied in the American people, you have been able to dismiss the countless grave atrocities perpetrated in the name of peace and freedom and now present these to your public as exemplary. How have you been able to get away with it?

In the late 50's and early 60's there was a totally unprejudiced the South Asian situation, intelligent and experienced observers such as Bernard Fall and others who were either little read, or actively condemned by American propaganda. Vietnam was a large-scale war, born of political expediency, fought for an unpopular chauvinism, came to be a battleground for the interests of the "free world" and was supported by editors and others (even Canadian) who posed as constitutionalists with Christian virtues and principle, values, we were told, which distinguish us from all those who oppose us. The hypocrisy, brutality and profound immorality of this behavior was apparent then and gradually, thanks to the diligent news reporting of many journalists, the courageous opposition of political leaders such as Senators Fulbright and Kennedy, the active dissent of military men (Colonel Gavin and the massive reaction of the American people, a sense of shame emerged.

Dietrich Bonhoffer asserted that the modern era began when man first saw what was fired on the Marse, and maybe historians will agree that we have never ex-pressed or even thought of the Vietnam War in the same terms as Hanoi. Perhaps now we will begin to see the false values which have supported war and the terms in which we have perhaps now, in the wake of Watergate, we can begin to recognize the moral and humanitarian ineptitude of our political philosophy.

Dog Killed

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

I am writing regarding an incident that happened this morning. A man hit and killed my dog on County Road 24 or Corrigan Highway Sill, about a mile east of Marysville. That motorist did not have the decency to stop to find the owner of the dog or to see if he was dead.

I have been driving, and have had a driver's licence for quite a number of years. For that period of time I have seen a lot of dogs and cats on the road, but I always slow down to give them a chance to get off of the road. I figure that animal wants to live as well as a person.

Bell Canada Seeks Boost

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

I see that Canada's most considerate company is out to get it again.

It seems that almost every month those in charge of the robbery operations of the Bell Telephone Company have a different reason for gouging the pocket of its subscribers.

This time the assault is to be primarily upon long distance rates. This is what they have to crafily hide behind when those catchy little TV commercials inform you how cheap it is to phone our dear ones.

This corporate giant has been gouging the public for far too long. Wasting money with consultants, leasing out their phones, musical phones, touch tone phones and other gimmicks calculated to illiterate the customers especially their parties still leaves much to be desired.

Now good people, I hope that their long over-worked and under paid workers are soon having a union to speak up for them. Perhaps this is why they are so cranky and rude to the probable demands of their underpaid employees.

Family Planning Needs Motivation Says Councillor

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

"Family planning and birth control are only as effective as the people who are motivated," says the family planning program co-ordinator with the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit.

Gale DePaoli said Tuesday the program will not work if people in the two counties are not interested.

The new program was announced in December by Frank Miller, provincial minister of health. It is designed for individuals planning voluntarily to have the number of children they want, when and if they want them.

There are three services offered at present — information about all eight contraceptive methods; individual counselling on family life, human sexuality and conception control; and dispensing of prescription contraceptives, in cases of financial difficulties, on a referral basis from local physicians.

"Family planning is a preventive service," Mrs. DePaoli pointed out. "The service is there if individuals want to use it."

Conversations are confidential when people telephone the health unit office in Belleville (966-5500) to speak with her, she said. "On an individual basis when people call in, there's no need to give your name."

At present, the thrust of Mrs. DePaoli's duties involve an interpretation of the program's services to those who seek information on it and a survey of the two counties to gather information on the people and other ongoing services for residents in family planning on a broad spectrum.

Those community services available include general counselling, sub-fertility and infertility counselling, services for unwed mothers, and pharmacies. The pharmaceutical aspect is to determine the manner in which birth control methods are being advertised and displayed and to make pharmacists aware of the health unit program.

Mrs. DePaoli explained a concrete program should develop in about four months following the current study period. She said it will likely be a joint effort among the health unit and such groups as Birthright and the Family Planning Volunteer Association, with herself as co-ordinator.

"I like to think that what I am doing will draw in other groups," she commented.

Engineer Stresses Downtown Development

Bell-Con Engineering president Bill White said Tuesday downtown businessmen must move to update their shopping area now before downtown momentum is lost.

Mr. White was speaking at a luncheon meeting of the Belleville Kiwanis Club.

Mr. White said it is "extremely important" to retain the city's downtown core as the commercial "centre of gravity" and not let too much emphasis move into the peripheral shopping areas.

He urged club members to consider a far-ranging redevelopment project for the downtown as a city centennial project in which now vacant land near the river could be used for office space and shopping facilities.

"Belleville has come through a period of slow growth and now is starting to take off," said Mr. White.

Speaking of the entire city in general terms and specifically of the downtown, he said the work must chiefly be done by the free enterprise sector . . . not by municipal government.

He said city council could participate in rejuvenating the downtown through control bylaws, minimum standards legislation and possible tax concessions but that the bulk of the work would have to be done by individuals.

Friendly service.

"Where Your Dollar Buys More"

This chocolate torte is typical of the rich desserts given here.

Desserts: Sinfully Rich, Wonderfully Good

Man cannot live by bread alone.

For that reason, dessert was invented.

Dieters beware, the recipes that follow are not for you. They are rich and sweet and even expensive. And they are all sinfully delicious — and sinfully sinful.

Chocolate Layer Torte

two cups cake and pastry flour
½ tsp baking soda
½ tsps. salt
one-third cup cocoa
½ cup shortening
two-thirds cup granulated sugar one-third cup lightly packed brown sugar one tsp vanilla
one egg
¼ cup water
two cups heavy cream
½ cup lightly packed brown sugar
two tbsp. instant coffee powder

Preheat oven to 350 degree F. Lightly grease 2 baking sheet. Sift together flour, baking soda, salt and cocoa. Cream shortening. Blend in sugar, beating until light and fluffy. Beat in vanilla, egg and water. Stir in dry ingredients, combining well. Chill, if necessary. Divide dough into four equal portions. Roll out each on a lightly floured surface into a slight-thin circle. Trim evenly, using an eight-inch layer cake pan as a guide. Slide onto prepared baking sheet.

Bake each in preheated 350 degree oven for 12 to 13 minutes. Cool.

Whip cream until almost stiff. Beat in brown sugar and coffee, beating until thick enough to spread. Spread on three cookies and stack. Top with remaining cookie and dust lightly with icing sugar. Chill overnight. Serves eight.

Cassata

Filling:
one lb. Ricotta cheese
¾ cup sifted confectioners' sugar
¼ cup cream
½ cup chocolate chips
two tbsp. chopped citron
½ cup chopped glazed cherries.

Shell:
one cup sifted flour
½ tsp salt
three tbsp. sifted confectioners' sugar
one tbsp. butter
one small egg slightly beaten light red wine

This complex and delicious recipe requires some special equipment — but you can make it yourself from one inch dowel rod. Cut the dowelling into five or six inch lengths and sand lightly to remove any rough edges. Wash and dry thoroughly. You should make about three or four.

Combine all filling ingredients and refrigerate until just before serving. (The filling is best prepared early in the day for evening serving.)

To make the pastry shells, which are tubes, cream butter and sugar. Add flour and salt. Stir in egg and enough wine — start with one tbsp. — to make a dough that you can roll thinly.

Roll out rectangle.

Roll to paper thinness. Cut into rectangles. Begin heating vegetable oil for deep frying.

Wrap rectangles carefully around dowelling and seal with water or egg white. Drop into hot fat and fry until dark golden brown.

These pastry shells are very delicate and must not be made more than a few hours ahead of serving. Do not refrigerate, store in an airtight container.

For serving, fill with filling which should be firm, and dip the ends into ground pistachio nuts. Dust lightly with confectioners' sugar.

Serve immediately.

Chocolate Mint Squares
¾ cup butter
¼ cup sugar
three tbsp. cocoa one beaten egg
½ tsp vanilla
two cups fine graham wafer crumbs pinch salt
½ cup chopped nuts
one cup coconut

In a saucepan, combine sugar, butter and cocoa. Stir over low heat until the sugar dissolves. Carefully beat in egg. Remove from heat and add remaining ingredients. Press into greased nine inch square pan. Chill. Cover with frosting and glaze. Cut into 32 squares.

Frosting: Cream ¼ cup soft butter, blend in two cups sifted icing sugar, two tbsp cocoa powder and two tbsp hot water. Combine and flavor with ½ tsp. peppermint extract and tint green.

Glaze: In top of double boiler, stir three oz. semi sweet chocolate and one tbsp butter until melted and blended. Spread over mint frosting.

Pound Cake
one pound softened butter
one pound icing sugar two pound flour
six eggs
two tbsp frozen orange juice, undiluted
one tsp. vanilla

Cream butter very well. Add one pound icing sugar, blending slowly. Add one pound flour, blending well after each addition. Add six eggs, two tbsp orange juice and one tsp vanilla. Bake one hour, five minutes, at 300 in a tube pan. (Two loaf pans may be used.)

Ann Landers

Boyfriend Wants Surgery For Big - Nosed Girlfriend

Dear Ann Landers: Our 22-year-old daughter is a college graduate and has a good job.

Melanie started to date a nice young man three weeks ago. She was never very popular and now she is in seventh heaven because of this wonderful romance.

Yesterday Melanie told us her boyfriend said she'd be gorgeous if she had her nose done. Her father and I are against it. Melanie's nose has character. It is not a cute little button but so what? Furthermore, not all nose operations come out well. When I reminded Melanie that two of her friends had it done TWICE and it ruined her looks, she replied, "I'm willing to take my chances."

The girl has her own money and wants to have the surgery done during her vacation in August. We say if the young man doesn't love her with this nose she should drop him. What's more, if you'd see the two of them together you would say HE is the one who needs a new job, not her.

What's your opinion, Ann Landers? — Furious In Florida

Dear Fury: Melanie didn't ask me. Had she done so, I'd have told her it's HER nose. She should decide. If the operation is a failure, she'll have a reminder in the middle of her face for the rest of her life. If it's a success, she'll be forever thrilled.

Dear Ann Landers: I and I have been married 18 months. It's the second marriage for us both. Our sponsors are deceased.) We decided to live in my home because it's more conveniently located.

Two months ago L's 21-year-old daughter moved in. She lost her job (the third in four months) and this move was supposed to be "temporary."

Now I'm sure she'll never move. (Free, too.) The girl hasn't changed her clothes since she moved in. I keep the door locked.

My husband's 17-year-old son knows everything there is to know. He corrects everyone, quotes authorities at every subject, and finished two subjects last year. I know he wouldn't believe my side this kid assumes his father. The only time he's decent is when his dad buys him another gun.

We both have good jobs. I furnish all the food, pay all my own bills, including doctor, dentist and clothes. We keep separate bank accounts and I have no idea what he has in his.

Before we married, my time and money was my own. Now I'm an unpaid housekeeper for this man and a doormat for his children. Last week he mentioned that his dad is "getting on in years" and we should take him in. This would mean an added role for me—nurse

What should I do, Ann?—What I Was Single Again

Dear What: I don't need to tell you what to do. Your situation is a clear indication of the direction in which you are heading.

Dear Ann Landers: I teach junior high school and am strongly concerned about a summer-school student who was transferred to my class last week. He is only 13 and I smell liquor on his breath every morning when he comes to school. Is it possible that a 13-year-old can be an alcoholic?—Ohio Teacher

Dear O: It certainly is. And I urge you to get that youngster into counselling at once. He is in desperate need of help.

Doris Clark

Apologizing Often Just Rude

"There are occasions on which I all apologize rudeness."

— Samuel Johnson (as quoted in Nova Scotia Social Services, Spring 1975)

What sort of occasion, I asked myself. The sort in which you are saying, "I'd have done it sooner, but —" I'm sorry; but I'm — each one of these is followed by a lame excuse which really reveals to the listener that you just weren't interested enough to give their request or your problem priority.

So while there is an important place for apologies, there are times when an apology just won't do. A person of integrity comes through. Does what he is asked. And cheerfully. And doesn't need to apologize either for forgetting or for just plain forgetting.

Dear Doris: I will be supervising from teaching in June, and I would like to know what to say or touch upon when asked to speak at the retirement party.

— Forty Years a Teacher.

Dear Forty Years: Such occasions call for staunch good cheer. So much of memory and emotion are tied up in all those years. Your friends give the party to honor you; they can hardly realize how much you might rather fall through the floor than make a speech about it!

How about this: "When I started out I was full of ideas and ambitions about the shaping of young minds; I looked forward to the friends I would make. I've made them and more.

"I could tell you many things about our good times and worried times — but I plan to remember best those lovely times when we shared thoughts and when, through our efforts, together, I saw a light dawn in a learner's eyes! That is the greatest thrill a teacher can have.

"I will miss you all. Come and see me. But don't expect me to consign myself to a rocking chair. My retirement from teaching means freedom to start on some of the other life-adventure I have been dreaming about.

"Thank you all for your friendship and love — and for giving me this happy farewell party."

Former RCMP Commissioner Feels Car Has Impaired Police Relations

KEMPTVILLE (CP)—North America's first ombudsman, former RCMP Commissioner George McCellan, plans to write his autobiography this spring and in it he's going to have to come to terms with the policeman in society—a situation he believes has been impaired by the automobile.

Mr. McCellan, 67, retired as commissioner in 1967 and acted as Alberta ombudsman until last year when he and his wife Betty took a years long holiday. Now back in Edmonton, he's looking for the discipline to write the first draft from some 10 boxes of notes on anecdotes about his career.

"I find now that I'm retired . . . I don't have the discipline," he said during a conversation at his home.

It was a preference for discipline and the "anticipated hunger" of the Depression that brought him into the RCMP after training at Royal Military College in Kingston, Ont., and a brief career editing a weekly newspaper in Quebec.

"Within two weeks after I joined (the RCMP) I knew this was what I wanted," Mr. McCellan said. "I guess I'm the sort of man who responds well to a disciplined life and I found no hardship in discipline."

Although 20 pounds overweight, Mr. McCellan retains a sharp, military appearance which belies his friendly, chatty nature.

Asked about the image of the policeman, he said it is not as bad as has been made out and is improving. But it was not yet good.

The ombudsman, he said, brought the average citizen in contact with police who once dealt almost exclusively with criminals only.

The result is almost every citizen at some time comes in conflict with policemen.

As well, the world has acquired an "obsession" with civil liberties to the point where youngsters in school are well aware of their rights but an equal awareness of responsibility hasn't been hammered home, he said.

Instead of the sense of obligation to help the police comes the sense of not wanting to get involved.

The policeman sees isolation in society, finds it hard to be a part of the community and begins to draw into his peer group which "stands together as an embattled band."

Mr. McCellan said the policeman fears society does not respect his welfare and puts him on the firing line as judge, jury and executioner.

There's no deadline for the autobiography but during the next three years of writing Mr. McCellan intends to set some records straight with his book.

"The years I was commissioner were very difficult years. Those were the days of the Dorion inquiry and the Munsinger case.

"There was intense bitterness in Parliament. It was an extremely messy period and it was a hell of a period to be in my position."

Despite the problems, he still has to think hard about whether it was more satisfying being commissioner or Alberta's ombudsman.

"Of course I had great satisfaction having started at the bottom as a very young officer and gone all the way to the top. . . But I was so damned busy for that four years defending the force, trying to keep us from getting involved in this war that was going on in the House of Commons, that I never really had no time to enjoy being commissioner.

"When I retired I was dead tired."

"If as ombudsman, he couldn't look back on three decades of experience, he at least could open up new doors for the development of ombudsman's offices in several governments on the continent.

"I was dealing with little people who had been unable to get justice or felt that they had been done wrong, and here I was in a position of a great deal of authority to help them out. It was very satisfying. I was not dealing with the criminal element, I was dealing with people who had been misinformed, uninformed, passed over or forgotten with nobody to go to and here we were taking their cases, getting them settled . . ."

Nothing short of the "second coming" will enable governments to get away from the need for ombudsmen, he said, for if there was little evidence of malice on the part of government officials in his experience, there was an abundance of error, lack of communication and impersonality that an unbiased and independent individual must have the authority to dig through and correct, usually on the personal level.

Alberta Opportunity

Montreal and Toronto may be Canada's financial centres, but Pumka is where it's at in Alberta for small and large business loans. Pumka is the home of the Alberta Opportunity Co., a crown corporation designed to provide financing to encourage the province's economic growth. Ed Clarke, AOC managing director, says government funding is not competing with the private sector. The AOC aims in only if a person is unable to obtain financing through regular channels. (CP

Township, City Near Agreement on Water Sharing Proposal

By COLIN BRUCE

With only minor modifications, Sidney Council is prepared to sign a water agreement with the city of Belleville that will give the green light for construction of a 75-home subdivision on the city's western limits.

In the works for several months, the housing development being undertaken by Reg Breault has been held up while negotiation were completed between the councils of Belleville and Sidney Township.

The township's only modification hinges on standards of curbs — standards that township officials feel could be set by an independent engineer. In the sample agreement, city staff have asked Belleville subdivision standards be used as the yardstick for the township subdivision.

Reeve Lord Wolman is expected to meet with city staff soon to discuss the change.

"I think if this agreement is signed this will be a precedent-setting agreement between the township and Belleville," said Councillor Reg McCourty.

In return for water servicing Belleville will charge 10 per cent more on subdivision water and sewer bills. The developer will also be responsible for construction of a storm sewer down Avondale Road.

The township's major benefit from the arrangement will be approximately $210,000 in new assessment for municipal tax calculations.

Workers Picket Marmora Site

MARMORA — Hastings County road workers entered their fifth week of strike by protesting work on this community's main street Tuesday.

John Boyle, a spokesman for local 793, International Union of Operating Engineers, charged union workers were crossing picket lines to work on the roadway.

County administrator Carl Bateman said in an interview today the main street in Marmora is a county road but Hastings County is not doing the work.

When Marmora council proceeded with sewer placement, it was agreed village council would take care of re-building the roadway.

"The union has the right to strike but we have the right to maintain our roads," said Mr. Bateman.

He said: "There is nothing new in the negotiations between the county and the union."

Wage parity is major issue in the dispute. The union is with the 22-member local demanding $1.31 an hour catch-up money to bring their wages in line with other municipal workers and a 50-cent increase on top of that. Average rate now is $3.31 an hour.

In addition, the union is demanding a reduction of hours worked before overtime rates apply. At present, time and a half rates do not apply until 55 hours. The union wants this figure reduced to 40 hours.

Work Continues

Work on Marmora's main street Tuesday continued despite a one-man picket line protesting work on country roadways during the current strike of county operating engineers. John Boyle, a spokesman for the union, spent most of the day walking beside workers.

Town Still Looking For Ideal Replacement

DESERONTO — The wait for a prospect to purchase the Ideal Vendors industrial site still goes on as the plant waits out its final shutdown phase, a company official indicated here Friday.

The manufacturer of vending machines here since 1949 last week began a purchaser for its premises since the parent Eddy Match Ltd. first announced the shutdown affecting 700 workers last January.

"The intent is to keep it (the property) until we sell," said Richard Moore, plant general manager.

"We're certainly not going to sit here on a plant indefinitely."

While some prospects have scrutinized the possibility of purchase, so far "we didn't have anybody looking at it that showed interest enough to put an offer in," said Mr. Moore.

One reason for the slow response is that, "generally speaking" industry is not in an expansionary phase, he added.

Town officials have been concerned over a replacement operation since the closeout of the town's largest industry — although its workforce came from various communities — was announced.

Jack Mitchell, chairman of town council's industry and publicity committee, told The Intelligencer his group has not received any direct information from the company on the situation.

But, said Mr. Moore, rapport still exists with council and the province's trade and industry ministry.

If there has been no information forthcoming "that's because there was nothing happening" said Mr. Moore.

Ideal Vendors would be first one to find out if we were successful in finding another company."

Phasout of the workforce began in April. Production halted May 30 with the release of 70 workers. Now there are about 40 employees left and they'll be let go at intervals to the end of August as the Ideal Vendors totally winds down its operations, said Mr. Moore.

After that some warehouse employees will stay on. The company has sold its inventory of finished products and service parts to another Canadian company.

Meantime, another project developed by Ideal Vendors — an automatic stake-sharpening machine — is still an "ongoing proposition" and will be kept by Eddy.

The project is still in the prototype stage although it was given field tests at Belleville's Dick Ellis Rink last year. The results were "excellent" said Mr. Moore.

However, he couldn't say if the parent company would decide to produce the installation here if it continued with the project.

Annual operating losses were blamed by an Eddy Match executive when the shutdown of its vending machine division was announced.

Meantime, on the corporative level, a bid has been made to purchase Eddy Match itself, the majority of whose shares are held in Britain.

Control of the directorate in Toronto said they would meet today to discuss an offer from Warrington Products of Toronto to buy all shares at $25 a share.

Mobile Test Centre Checks Car Emission

By the end of this week there will be fewer automobiles in the Belleville area without exhaust emission controls.

Just how many depends on the results of week-long testing now under way in downtown Belleville.

Site of the operation is the city's Market Square where — in cooperation with city police — a mobile team from the Ontario environment ministry is running random tests of passing automobiles.

The equipment is parked outside Memorial Arena, where a police officer flags down automobiles and motorists are requested to have their vehicles tested.

The carbon monoxide and hydro-carbon exhaust discharges are metered while the ministry team examines the engine to ensure emission controls have not been damaged — or removed.

The emission mechanisms have been mandatory since 1969 with the passage of the province's Environmental Protection Act.

Henry Jansen, supervisor of the mobile ministry group outlines the purpose of the tests on about 80 vehicles daily.

There are "all kinds of reasons" why some emission controls are removed from automobiles, he said, mostly greater fuel economy and power boosting.

Present motorists are given three weeks to have a letter in the ministry stating they are rectified their omissions.

Response to such warnings generally is "very good" says Mr. Jansen.

Under the act, motorists who have deliberately tampered with emission controls may be fined up to $5,000.

"Generally, when people hear that they're anxious to get the controls on and report back to us," says the environmental official.

Arthritis Goal $5,745

The goal is $5,745 for the Belleville branch of The Arthritis Society in its campaign this year, Ted Kelly, branch chairman has announced.

He said the money will be used for research and education in the quest to find the cause and cure for arthritis. It is estimated over a quarter of a million people in Ontario have some form of arthritis, he added.

"In Ontario alone, The Arthritis Society is attempting to raise $1.25 million, of which $500,000 will come from the United Way, including Belleville and district," he commented.

"The remainder of the support will come from the society's own campaign in the many communities where there is no United Way," Mr. Kelly added.

Each year, in Ontario, wage earners lose about $100 million as a direct result of arthritis. It is anyone's disease — striking young or old, male or female, and usually in the prime of life.

Libraries Share Staff

A report recommending a closer relationship between Belleville and Tyendinaga Township library boards was presented to the monthly meeting of the city library board Tuesday.

The policy statement, introduced by Steven Gropp, chairman of the Tyendinaga library located in the Recreation Centre in Shannonville, recommended exchange visits between the board members at meetings.

Currently, Belleville receives a relatory from the smaller library to furnish professional librarian services because Tyendinaga library does not have a librarian on staff.

Former Warden Dead

Harleigh Hamilton, former warden of Hastings County, and a prominent member of the Belleville General Hospital Board of governors died today.

Mr. Hamilton was taken ill and died in hospital.

He was reeve of Sidney township in 1956-62, county warden in 1961 and a former chairman of the hospital board on which he was still active.

Raw Sewage Found In Trent Canal System

By AL ZARAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — A strong possibility exists that cottage owners along the Trent River are discharging sewage from outdoor toilets and septic tanks into river water, several Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority officials said Tuesday.

Clayton Thompson, a member of the fish and wildlife board, said Tuesday he has personally seen raw sewage floating in the river.

But, he said, he "can't tell whether it comes from boats or cottagers" though he is "suspicious that there are cottages that dump into the river."

"I know the staff is going in there," he said, "I feel that more work has to be done to stop it."

Mr. Thompson's comments Tuesday came a month after he initiated a move at the board level to urge the authority executive to call for stricter policing of river pollution.

His personal observation, he said, is limited to a stretch of river upstream from his Hordes home, about seven miles west of Stirling.

Environment ministry officials in the municipal and private abatement section in offices in Toronto, Kingston, and Peterborough said no recent reports of increased pollution problems have been reported.

Kingston and Peterborough officials said they recently received a letter from the Frankford-based authority that outlined what was called a "general concern" with river pollution.

Jacque Bourque in Peterborough said Tuesday no specific pollution incident was mentioned in the letter.

He said, emphasizing his information was hearsay, that some cottagers keep wastes in holding tanks that "suddenly spring a leak", and sewage finds its way into the river.

Responsibility for various facets of pollution inspection and control rests with the authority, the provincial environment ministry and municipal health units.

Authority secretary-treasurer Bill Lawson said Tuesday several fish and wild life board members have mentioned sewage in finding its way into the Trent River.

Some septic tanks, he said, are located on hard rock, (precluding filtration), and there's "no way they can be adequate".

The result said Mr. Lawson, is that cottagers pump out tanks at first and then simply get a hose and feed sewage into the river.

"Last year, we had operation Clean Sweep," he said. "And we found all kinds of infractions." He did not mention specific incidents.

Authority chairman, Bill Carter said Tuesday he had not evidence cottagers were deliberately discharging wastes into the river.

But Carter said problems do exist along the river from pollution from septic tanks. Heavy rains or overflow of the river on flood plains on which cottages are built can, and does, occasionally, cause leaching out of septic tanks.

But he said the problem will continue until cottages are removed from flood plains.

Sidney Land Study Outlines Growth Areas

An interim study towards an official plan for Sidney Township gained qualified approval of council Tuesday night.

The interim report's most significant areas deal with future growth in the township and how this growth will be spread throughout the municipality. The basic premise of the report hinges on township growth settling in and around existing urban centres — a fundamental approach council has already agreed to.

But, council Tuesday decided that this basic philosophy should not stand in the way of continued "estate residential" development in other areas of the township. Neither should it stop "scattered development as long as residents don't turn into over-populated strips," said Councillor Reg McCourty.

Responding to a Quinte Planning Board request for comment on the report, council will also specify the need or "blocks" of township land in the vicinity of Belleville and Trenton be set aside for industrial development.

Streetside Check

Streetside checkpoint set up by mobile team from the Ontario ministry of environment is running random tests on automotive emissions in Belleville this week. Drivers discovered without necessary controls have three weeks to rectify faults or face possible prosecution. Checks are being done on Market Square.

Tech Club Project Aids Handicapped

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

Nine members of the Moira Tech Club took three-months to build a chair for Cheryl.

The chair is a device that will help Cheryl Sullivan, a resident at Cheshire Homes perform an ordinary task — taking a shower.

Cheryl is paralyzed from the waist down and the Moira Secondary School Tech Club, under the sponsorship, of technical department head Elmer Voteary, set out this year to design and construct a special chair so that she could take a shower.

The chair, simple in appearance but complex in design, is the product of much brainstorming, measuring and quite a bit of enthusiasm. The club was originated this year with a mandate to build something in the community that is not readily available.

Earlier in the year the club constructed toys and puzzles for several nursery schools in the area. The club appealed to various organizations for a project idea.

The club was overwhelmed with projects but finally decided Cheryl's need was great enough to warrant an all-out effort.

The club members are Ken McRae, John Smit, Mike Lemmermeyer, Greg Gaiser, John Bennett, Gary Franks, Walter Vos, Terry Calnan and Rick Graveson. The chair is being presented to Cheryl this week.

The chair, which is made from red cedar and several metal parts will fit partially into a bath tub, with one leg resting on the side. Apparently, a person can shift from a wheel chair to the special seat.

As a last minute item a safety belt was attached to the chair for added protection against injury. The club obtained a used seat belt from a nearby auto wrecker.

Mr. Voteary said the entire material cost will be about $20 for the project. He said he hopes the club will continue this type of work next year.

A Chair for Cheryl

Elmer Voteary, technical head at Moira Secondary School, displays the special chair to be used by a paralyzed resident at Cheshire Home on John Street. The chair, built by nine members of the Quinte Tech Club, will enable Cheryl Sullivan to take a shower. Mr. Voteary was the staff advisor on the project.

Arena Nearly Ready

Deseronto recreation director Jack Layfield (right) checks interior of community's new arena with carpenter Jack McFarlane. Started last October, Mr. Layfield reckons the building should be ready for summer indoor recreation. Official opening is expected some time in the fall.

Deseronto Community Centre May be Ready for Summer Use

DESERONTO — Finishing touches now are being placed on the Quinte district's newest community arena here.

And Jack Layfield, this town's recreation director, expects to have it in use this summer.

Already there have been demands for making the building available for such sports as floor hockey and tennis, said Mr. Layfield, Tuesday.

He said he expected such recreation pursuits could be in swing through July and August before the arena — and its 80 x 180 feet ice surface — is readied for its first winter season.

Construction of the arena, estimated to cost about $400,000, started last October.

It should have seating for 300-400 and "lots of standing room" when completed said Mr. Layfield. It also contains a community meeting hall over its service area.

However, the public may soon have an opportunity to see the finished product for themselves, many of whom have contributed to funds to make up the difference in cash available from local and senior governments.

Mr. Layfield said organizers are hoping to hold an opening next month.

The official opening will be some time in the fall.

Nixon to Pay Visit

Ontario Liberal leader Robert Nixon will be in Belleville Friday night.

The event will be held at the Four Seasons Hotel, starting at 6:30 p.m.

Security Causes Headacdes

TORONTO (CP) — On rare occasions, a member of a school party visiting a certain gallery of the Royal Ont'r'o Museum complains of a headache—and is led away by a guard.

That child has exceptional hearing, said Hal Harvey, assistant controller in charge of operations. Normally, only dogs can detect a sonic device that operates at 22,000 cycles.

The device is one of a number of electronic techniques that guard the museum's treasures from theft or vandalism, reinforcing conventional security methods and the vigilance of the institution's guards.

"We've seen us pretty tight here," said Mr. Harvey, whose uniformed and plainclothes staff are trained not to miss a thing.

To the casual eye, glass or plastic display cases are the only barrier between hundreds of millions of dollars worth of treasures and potential thieves.

But Al Lawrence, chief of the security section, said the guards are only the first line of defence. The second line is the locks on the cases, which are constantly changed as more efficient types are manufactured.

The third line is the electronic gear walkie talkies, ribbon alarms stuck to cases, oscillating and steady television cameras, entry-proof vaults and ultrasonic devices like the one that gives the odd child a headache.

Even the location of the guardroom is a matter of security which senior officials prefer not to discuss with outsiders.

Left-handed liberation movements in the New York area and Japan are protesting against discrimination. They say it begins when children who favor their left hands are tested and forced by their parents and teachers to develop right-handedness.

Left-handers also face problems in "right-hand man," the cash registers, playing instruments like guitars or fiddles and using scissors or fishing reels, all of which are constructed for right-hand use.

The newly-formed League of Left-Handers in New Milford, N.J., plans to protest in front of offices of companies which manufacture equipment.

The organization is primarily concerned with abolishing the idea that left-handedness is a bit unnatural or strange. The negative attitudes are projected by sayings such as "left-handed compliment" as opposed to "right-hand man," the league complains.

League founder Robert Gedan said the prejudice against things left can be traced back to Roman times. Prior to 1500 at least in Greece, left-handedness was thought to be superior and the Greeks' term for left, sinistro, was the root of the word sinistral.

But the Latin word for left was "sinister." The French word for left, "gauche," has always meant clumsy and awkward.

Oil-shortage Slump Changes Labor Scene

TOKYO (Reuter) — Japan's management and labor, severe recession, touched off by the oil crisis of 1973, has radically altered traditional postwar relations between management and labor.

But most labor unions have hit a brick wall in the shape of a 15-per-cent wage-rise barrier erected by management and backed by the government.

So far, about 12 per cent of more than 3,700 unions affiliated to the major trade union organizations have reached wage settlements.

Increases average 14 to 15 per cent. This compares with original demands of more than 30 per cent and last year's average of 33 per cent, when unions fought strongly for wage boosts to offset rampant inflation.

Things have changed now. For one thing, the government succeeded in bringing the annual inflation rate below 15 per cent by March.

For another, fiscal 1974, ended in March, was Japan's first year of negative growth—about minus one per cent in real terms—since the Second World War.

Unemployment in February broke through the one million barrier for the first time in eight years.

Labor experts say the radical change in economic climate at home and abroad has improved relations between management and labor, while chafing union solidarity.

A major shock to the labor movement came when the union at Kanebo Ltd., a major textile producer, accepted a management proposal to freeze wages in return for guaranteed employment and a bigger say in decision-making.

The move caused bitter criticism among unions inside and outside the textile industry.

Unions at five other major synthetic textile firms found themselves obliged to accept management proposals to delay basic wage increases for six months.

The 370,000-member Federation of Textile Workers Unions expelled the Kanebo union.

But a Kanebo spokesman said the union recognized that the rapid change in economic conditions lay behind the management's wage-freeze proposal saw full employment and job security as the most important thing.

The textile industry has been hard hit by the business slump. Faced with stagnant market conditions and rising competition from Southeast Asian producers, textile firms have cut production by 30 to 40 per cent, and laid off tens of thousands of workers.

Wage rates are no longer low and as productivity and profits shrink, management is finding things harder.

Team Tracing Micmaces

ANTIGONISH, N.S. (CP) — An archeological team will soon begin a search for the footfalls of Micmac Indians on the sands of time in northern Cape Breton.

The team, headed by Dr. Ronald Nash of St. Francis Xavier University, will be working on a project for the Union of Nova Scotia Indians (UNSI) to survey lakeshore areas near Wreck Cove to discover traces of ancient Micmac tribes.

A $30,000 federal-provincial grant will help the team of eight to carry out their project during the summer months.

In addition to Dr. Nash, the field party consists of four Micmac high-school students and three students at St. Francis Xavier.

Dr. Nash said the team will survey the shoreline and a surrounding area several hundred yards in radius in search of evidence of prehistoric Micmac sites. One known location at Debert, near Truro, can be radiometrically dated to almost 8000 BC.

The evidence they will be looking for includes flint chips, pottery, arrowheads and scrapers.

"Where you find evidence on the surface, there is an indication of previous activity that may have been covered over by time," said Dr. Nash.

Where artifacts are uncovered, the location will be marked for future excavation.

Dr. Nash was cautious in describing th expectations of the team.

"From what little we know, Micmacs spent most of the year living around river-mouths with easy accessibility to fish and game, and they embarked on major inland hunting expeditions only in February and March of each year.

"So we don't expect to locate a lot of sites, but what we do find will be exciting since there has been virtually no archeological work done in Nova Scotia."

For reasons that are not academic, it is important that the work be done now to confirm or reject theories of ancient Micmac settlement in the area.

The Wreck Cove area chosen for the search is the site of a planned hydro-electric development of the provincial government and in a few years the alteration of water levels and stream flows may destroy any evidence that may exist.

"What we will be doing is termed salvage archeology," said Dr. Nash.

"If any sites are found, they will be excavated either this summer or next summer."

Any artifacts uncovered will be analyzed at St. Francis Xavier next fall and will ultimately be located in a proposed Museum of Micmac History or the Nova Scotia Museum.

TOO MUCH MEAT IN YOUR DIET?

The great Canadian "meat gorge"—does it make nutritional sense? Is meat necessary to your health? Is a vegetarian diet more healthful than a meat diet? Statistics show that vegetarians are thinner, in better health, with lower blood cholesterol, than their fish-eating fellow citizens—and they may even live longer! Many doctors—and most heart specialists—now recommend that we cut our meat consumption by a full one third. DO WE EAT TOO MUCH MEAT? You'll find some surprising answers in this timely report. The Nova Scotia Research Foundation's Centre of Ocean Technology is less than a year old, but already its scientists are turning out a mishmash of eerie scientific devices for relaying information about the ocean. Saskatchewan Conservative Gave Himself Mammoth Job

SASKATOON (CP) — In early 1972 a 27-year-old management consultant gave himself a new challenge: to unify a moribund political party and make it the government of Saskatchewan.

With characteristic determination Progressive Conservative Dick Collver broke that goal down into smaller objectives and methodically started attaining them one at a time. Now the remains only the last and biggest step: to get enough votes on election day June 11.

In the beginning he had to learn to make a speech.

"My first political speech was given at the leadership convention of the Progressive Conservative party in March of 1971," he recalled in an interview, "first time I'd given a speech of any kind let alone a political speech."

After practising for days in front of his wife Eleanor, he arrived at the Regina convention in a highly nervous state only briefly dispelled by a comment from his wife.

"She was very helpful. Don't the steps . . . I said to Eleanor, 'Well anyway, if nothing else happens I'm going to get two votes.'

"She said, 'What makes you think you're going to get two?' "

Then came the big moment:

"I got up to give the speech and my knees started to shake. My hands started to shake. I broke a piece off the podium. I grabbed it so hard. Nobody knew it but it actually came off in my hand."

The delegates nevertheless elected him leader and he began the long process of creating a party to lead.

After deciding he could not afford the time to write and practise speeches in advance, he learned to speak extemporaneously. Crisis crossing the province in a camper truck he began meeting members and candidates.

The party's membership totals 48 in December, 1972—passed 100 in early May and despite the fact the party did not even enter candidates in three-quarters of the ridings in the 1971 election, a full slate was achieved that year well before the election call.

A full eight months into the campaign, Mr. Collver started a gruelling series of small-town speeches and maintained that has taken him into as many as a half-dozen communities a day.

His audiences found an unorthodox politician almost certainly the only one in the province to list trail-bike riding as a hobby—who deliberately sought to speak in moderate, "positive" terms and who made a point of saying the other parties have done many things of benefit for Saskatchewan.

Unfair Labor Practices

Board Rejects the Charges

NEW YORK (AP) — A charge of unfair labor practice made during last summer's strike by the National Football League against the players' union was rejected Tuesday by the National Labor Relations Board.

The action, issued by NLRB regional director Sidney Danielson, came on a management charge that the union refused to bargain player salaries in good faith.

At the same time, Danielson deferred action on a charge by that the union failed to bargain freedom issues such as the Rozelle Rule in good faith.

However, Danielson made a strong statement about the bargaining of salaries which could weigh very heavily in future negotiations between the league and the union, the NFL Players' Association.

"The subject of player salaries, including minimum and guaranteed player salaries is a mandatory subject of bargaining. A party may not refuse to bargain, or waive bargaining, on that subject without the consent of the other party."

And Forrest Kerck, executive director of the NFL Management Council, sounded the first gun on what seems to be the next battleground for the league and its players.

"We accept fully the labor board's observation that collective bargaining on all salaries is a duty of the union that cannot be waived unilaterally," he said Tuesday.

"We have had the concept of a union wage scale under advisement for some time, but have not pursued it actively pending efficiency of our position by the NLRB," he added.

But Jim Kemp, Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFLPA, expressed hope the two conferences.

NLRB charged the NFL with 15 unfair labor practices, including discrimination against some players who led the walkout from training camps last year.

Oliver Testing UOP Shadow

JACKIE OLIVER

MOSPORT, Oct. (CP) — The arrival of Jackie Oliver and the UOP Shadow Formula 5000 team plus steady downward times by Jim Hulman's David Hobbs marked the second day of testing at Mosport Park for the Formula 5000 weekend June 13-15.

Hobbs, the 1974 winner here, recorded the fastest time on the 2¼-mile track Tuesday, matching the lap record of a minute, one minute, 16.4 seconds, a lap average speed of 116.18 miles an hour.

The time matched his 1974 qualifying time and the official Formula 5000 lap record held by Brian Redman of England. Mario Andretti of the U.S. set the fastest qualifying mark last year with 1:14.8.

Oliver, the 1974 champion of the now defunct Can-Am series, arrived in the Shadow but was hampered by clutch problems. The Shadow DN6 finished third in the 1975 F5000 opener at Pocono, Pa., on June 1 with Oliver at the wheel.

"We are confident the car will be in shape for Sunday's race and that we can improve on our third-place finish at Pocono," said Oliver.

Mo Carter of Hamilton and Tomasz's Ludwig Heimrath both arrived in the Inma GT section Tuesday. Carter driving a Camaro, was unable to test his car extensively due to engine problems. Heimrath arrived late in the day and was unable to test his Porsche Carrera to any great degree.

Qualifying runs for both Formula 5000 cars and co-featured Porsche race will be held Friday. Saturday features the 20-lap GT qualifying heats, a 30-lap Inma GT race and the 40-lap GT final starting at 4 p.m. EDT.

Sunday will see two 25-lap qualifying heats for the Formula 5000 beginning at 11 a.m., a 20-lap sedan race and the 40-lap Formula 5000 feature. Formula 5000 feature event of 40 laps at 4 p.m.

Big Comeback For Solomon

PARIS (AP) — Harold Solomon of the United States fought back from the edge of defeat Tuesday to reach the quarter-finals of the French open tennis championships, outlasting compatriot Brian Gottfried 5-7, 1-6, 7-6, 7-6, 6-4.

Solomon saved two match points in the fourth set and lived up to his reputation for being in the most gruelling and dramatic match seen here since the tournament began a week ago.

In other games Tuesday, defending champion Bjorn Borg, the 19-year-old Swede, mastered Stan Smith 6-2, 6-4, 6-0, and Adriano Panatta of Italy beat Elliot Teltscher 6-3, 6-4, 6-4.

Solomon, leading Gottfried 5-3 in the first set, then dropped eight consecutive games. Gottfried raced through the second set 6-1 and broke service for a 3-1 lead in the third but Solomon changed tactics and took the set on a tie-breaker.

In the fourth set, Solomon trailed 3-5, came back 5-4, then stood at 15-40 on his serve. Gottfried needed two points to win, but Solomon served two aces and set up a tie-breaker.

Trailing 6-5 in the tie-breaker, Solomon was set to win another tie-breaker.

"Today is my experienced coach," came the direct reply. "I know what should be done from the sidelines. I know what to do on the field. We always will talk it over before the match."

Of Pele's reception to New York can be taken as a criterion, soccer may be headed for a boom in the United States where heretofore it has generated only mild interest.

Some 100,000 people jammed the Ti Club's Hunt Room for the formal contract signing and news conference crowded with Pele's friends and scores lined the sidewalks of sophisticated 52nd Street to watch the South American ace arrive and leave.

Pele will start earning his salary—reported to be anywhere from $4.5 million to $7 million for three years—in an exhibition game Saturday against Dallas at Randall's Island here. CBS will televise it nationally, starting at 2:30 p.m. EDT.

Pele made an impressive showing when he appeared with his wife, Rosemarie. He was poised and articulate as he fielded a barrage of questions.

"Everybody has a mission, a goal," he said. "I always had a dream that some day in the United States would know soccer as the rest of the world knows soccer."

Pele arrived later Tuesday at Veterans Stadium in a chauffeur-driven limousine with his wife to participate in ceremonies before the Cosmos played Philadelphia Atoms. He was greeted by scores of photographers and reporters dogging his every step. A crowd of 20,124 was turned out—about 9,000 more than the average attendance at Philadelphia.

Pele Has All Right Answers

NEW YORK (AP) —Fame and fortune have failed to spoil Pele, the world's greatest soccer player.

"My talent is the gift of God—I came into this world to make me," said the 34-year-old Brazilian soccer coming out of retirement to sign a three-year contract Tuesday with New York Cosmos of the North American Soccer League.

"Have you ever thought that at 34 you may be getting too old to play top flight soccer?" a reporter asked him at Tuesday's madcap news conference.

"If you take care of your body as I have," he replied. "It is possible to play until you are 45 or 50."

"The Cosmos can't be considered a world club team," someone else pointed out. "How do you think you can adjust to ordinary players?"

"On every team, they responded politely through an interpreter, "there are great players, good players and just players. I have seen the Cosmos. We have all classes of players."

"But you are the best player in the world," another reporter said. "Have you played all over the world, you have visit countries that have no coach such as Gordon Bradley (the Cosmos' young coach) tell you what to do?"

"Bradley is my experienced coach," came the direct reply. "He knows what should be done from the sidelines. I know what to do on the field. We always will talk it over before the match."

Bailey Connects for Circuit Smash

Bob Bailey slammed home run as Montreal Expos nipped Los Angeles Dodgers 5-4 Tuesday. Winning pitcher Steve Renko scattered eight hits to get the win. He needed late relief help from Chuck Taylor to nail down the victory.

Reds Glad to See Bucs Go

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cincinnati Reds manager Sparky Anderson was happy to say goodbye to Pittsburgh Pirates Tuesday night after watching them plunder his pitching staff.

"I'm glad to see them go," said Anderson.

"When they're going like that, it doesn't matter who you pitch against them," Anderson said after the Pirates banged out 17 hits and beat the Reds 9-5.

Coupled with Monday night's 9-3 loss to the Pirates, Cincinnati's pitchers were raked for 18 runs and 35 hits in two games at Riverfront Stadium.

The Pirates embarrassed starter Pat Darcy and five other Cincinnati pitchers Tuesday night.

"Maybe this is the start of something big," said Willie Stargell, who collected three doubles and a single and drove in five runs.

The Pirates, usually known for their heavy hitting, have been carried most of the year by their pitching staff.

In other National League games, Houston Astros beat Chicago Cubs 4-3, Philadelphia Phillies blanked San Diego Padres 7-0, Montreal Expos nipped Los Angeles Dodgers 5-4 and New York Mets defeated San Francisco Giants 5-0. The St. Louis-Atlanta game was postponed by rain.

Sam Hinds, 3-1, making his first start of the season for Pittsburgh, was the recipient of the hurty Pirate support. He went five innings to pick up the victory.

The Pirates jumped on Darcy, 1-4, for three runs in the first inning on singles by Richie Hebner and Al Oliver, doubles by two-run double and Richie Zisk's doubles.

Hebner walked, Oliver singled and Stargell doubled them home for two more runs in the fourth, then they scored twice again in the fifth when Zisk singled and Manny Sanguillen hit his second homer of the year.

The Pirates got their final two runs in the eighth inning when Hebner walked, Oliver and Stargell single Zisk hit a sacrifice fly.

Ross Grimsli singled home the tie-breaking run and pitcher Doug Konieczny doubled home another in the eighth, leading Houston past Chicago.

Cesar Cedeno walked to open the Astros' rally, stole second and took third when Chicago catcher Steve Swisher threw the ball into center field. Alex Mitchell May was intentionally walked. Cabbie broke a 2-2 tie with a double to provide Houston with a 4-3 lead and the eventual winning run.

Ryan Shelled Palmer Steals The Spotlight

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

All eyes were on Nolan Ryan again, looking for another no-hitter. They should have been looking at Jim Perry.

In his last two games, Ryan had thrown a record-tying fourth career no-hitter, beating Baltimore Orioles, and had followed that up with a two-hitter. He was expected to do something similar when he and his California Angels team-mates showed up in New York Tuesday night.

But it was Perry who came the closest. For 5 2-3 innings, Perry flirted with a no-hitter against Baltimore. It would have been his first.

Then Al Bumbry ruined it with a single up the middle. So Perry, one night after the Cleveland Indians and acquired by Oakland A's only three weeks ago, finished with a one-hitter as the A's beat the Orioles 3-0.

Ryan, meanwhile, got a taste of things to come before he even took the mound against the Yankees.

The U.S. Army, in a pre-game ceremony celebrating its own 200th birthday, flew in a 21-gun salute with a couple of Tomahawk cruise missiles and adventurely blew out one portion of the centre field fence and set fire to another.

Then the Yanks rolled on Ryan with four runs in the second inning, on Chris Chambliss' homer, and whipped the Angels, 6-1.

In other American League baseball action, Chicago White Sox shelled Milwaukee Brewers 9-2, Texas Rangers defeated Boston Red Sox 8-3, Kansas City Royals edged Detroit Tigers 4-3 and Minnesota Twins beat Cleveland 5-3 in 12 innings.

A two-run homer by Gene Tenace in the fourth and a solo shot by Claudell Washington in the sixth gave Perry all the runs he needed.

"It was probably the worst I've pitched all year," Ryan said after his bid to become the first 11-game winner in the majors this year went sour in his fourth defeat.

He walked lead-off batter Thurman Munson in the second inning and Chambliss hit a homer to start the four-run inning and the Yankees added two more runs in the sixth to chase Ryan out of the game.

Chicago's Wilbur Wood scored his fourth victory in five decisions even though Milwaukee knocked him around for 10 hits.

He got it because the White Sox had 14 hits, the big one being Pat Kelly's 10th homer which led a four-run fifth inning.

John Mayberry's home run lifted the Royals into a tie in the second inning. Cookie Rojas' RBI grounder put them ahead in the fifth and George Brett's eighth-inning single sparked the Royals to victory.

Brett's hit offset Willie Horton's 14th homer of the year for Detroit in the ninth.

Steve Bryk's tie-breaking single in the 12th inning and a subsequent bases-loaded walk to Tony Oliva gave Minnesota its winning edge against the Indians.

Jeff Burroughs hit his sixth homer in the last seven games and 13th of the season to help Texas rout the Red Sox.

Contracts For Minors Studied

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Minor Hockey Association contracts which bind youngsters to pacts with one organization for extended periods of time should be outlawed, Ian Deans, member of the Ontario legislature for Wentworth, told interior General John Clement Tuesday. Children as young as 10 years of age have been signed to six-year contracts with one organization, Mr. Deans said.

Mr. Clement said his staff is looking into the nature of some minor hockey contracts.

It may be possible to give the Ontario athletic commissioner's office the added responsibility of investigating contract arrangements in minor leagues sports, he added.

This one got past USSR goalie Vladislav Tretiak during Team Canada '74 series with Soviets. Tom Webster is the marksman. Tretiak will make tour of Canada during summer, giving lessons to young goaltenders.

Soccer Ace – Talent from God

Tretiak to Tour And Give Lessons

OTTAWA (CP) — Vladislav Tretiak, the goalie on the Soviet Union's national hockey team, will tour Canada next summer giving exhibition lessons to young goalies, Soviet Tass News Agency said Tuesday.

A spokesman for the semi-official Soviet news agency said Tretiak, who played against Team Canada in 1972 and 1974, will be invited Canada with a delegation of Soviet hockey officials if the U.S. and Canada do not have a team.

While the Soviet delegation holds talks on hockey co-operation, the spokesman said, Tretiak will tour the country meeting professional and amateur players and giving exhibition lessons.

Officials for Hockey Canada, the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association and the National Hockey League said they had not yet heard of the delegation's visit.

The delegation will discuss terms international hockey contacts in Canada and the U.S. as well as the 1976 tournament between Canada and the Soviet Minister Marc Lalonde, the Soviet spokesman said.

The NHL has proposed tournament would bring teams here from the Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia, Sweden, Finland and the U.S. to play against the best available Canadians, which would include amateurs and professionals from both the NHL and World Hockey Association.

The NHL has opposed such a tournament, NHL officials currently are meeting in Montreal with another Soviet delegation on a proposed series of games during the 1975-76 season between two Soviet teams and various NHL teams.

Mavety's Bat and Waite's Arm Power Macs

How do you lose a three-bill-ster?

You lose a three-bitter by striking out the power man in the lineup. That gets his dander up. The next time he comes to the plate and you hit him with a pitch. That really gets his angry. The third time you face him, you throw him something across the plate. Then the ball sails over the left field fence, the score is 1-0 and you lose.

That's what happened to Wayne Colley Tuesday night in Oshawa against the Belleville McDonald's. The Tony's hurler limited the Macs to just three hits, but lost 1-0. He had the misfortune of throwing the wrong pitch to Larry Mavety in the top of the sixth inning.

In the second half of the Ontario Football League doubleheader, Mavety pounded out another home run out of the park, but it wasn't enough as the Macs went down 2-1 at the hands of Barry Timbers.

Ted Waite was the first contest for the locals. It is their second win of the season against a dozen losses. Waite sent seven Oshawa batters to the bench on third strikes and walked a pair while giving up four hits — all singles.

The McDonald's other two hits off Colley were both singles. One was by Doug Jones and the other by Wayne McTaggart.

The Tony's never posed any serious scoring threat as Waite held the top half of the Oshawa order at bay. Dave Stewart, the sixth man in the order, and Bob Solomon, seventh, each singled twice.

Both clubs played flawless ball.

Jim Chase took the loss in the night cap, allowing two runs in the third inning. Oshawa put together a triple and three singles to score them. Chase was relieved in the fifth by Scott Reid when Tony's started another rally. Reid quickly extinguished the fire with some heads-up defensive work by Dale Duvall. The bases were loaded and Reid forced Timbers to hit to the second baseman George Redshaw, the runner on third, was then forced out at the plate on the throw by Duvall.

It had wasn't Redshaw's night. In the third inning he was thrown out at the plate by left fielder Pete Harrison.

Belleville threatened to score in the third when Harrison led off with a double. He died at third base. In the sixth, Steve Ling led off with a single and got to third, but like Harrison, went no further.

Mavety pounded his secondbaron run of the night when he led off the fourth.

Timbers gave up four safeties in all. Frank Robinson had the only other Mac hit — a single. The winning pitcher walked two and struck out two.

Chase and Reid combined to fan four and shut five while giving up seven safeties.

Redshaw and Jack Sneddon both had two singles each for the winners and Solomon pounded a triple.

Deputy fire chief Bob Emerson presents Al Ryan with the low gross trophy at the Bay of Quinte Country Club was the site for the sixth annual Belleville Firefighters Tournament held Tuesday.

The event opened with all entries playing 18 holes of golf, then returning back to the clubhouse for a banquet, and award presentations.

In all, 56 golfers took part in the annual affair.

The prizes were awarded in two categories, as there were awards for out-of-town guest winners, and local winners.

The top low gross participant in for the day was Bill Shannon of Toronto with a 79. He was followed with a 79 by Ritchie Waitsland of Brockville and Belleville's Al Ryan.

The low net for visitors was Hilly Jackson of Brockville with a 73, followed by Bob Bruyea and James Hadden of Toronto, also with 73a but they had the higher handicaps.

For the local Belleville firefighters, Don Smith won the low net with a 75. Gene McGrath, Jack O'Neill and Ron Hiles had 75s, but they had lower handicaps.

Tournament organizer Fred Hockings got things running smoothly to get the golfers out on the course, but the final tabulation of the scoring was a little hectic.

"There were so many scores that were identical for the low net, that we went with the higher handicaps," said Hockings.

Howard and Robert Streak Ends

When the roof falls in, it sure comes down with a crash. Howard and Robert Printing will testify to this fact. Until Tuesday night's Bardon Football League game at Alemite Park the Printers were undefeated. Their streak was stopped at six, however, as they dropped a 10-0 decision to Bardon Supplies.

In the other GFL contest, Wednesday, Tyrone Tomlinson didn't allow Rorabeck Real Estate's streak to end. The Juniors handed the Realtors their seventh loss in as many starts when they defeated the last place club 41.

Earl Foster was a one-man Bardon show as he limited it and it to two hits, both singles, and cranked a second home run over the centre field fence. Foster blanked seven Printers and issued one walk.

The schedule of Solunar Periods, as printed below, has been taken from Mrs. Richard Alden Knight's Solunar Tables. Plan your days so that you will be fishing in good territory or hunting in good cover during these times, if you wish to find the best sport that each day has to offer.

The Major Periods are shown in boldface type. These begin at the times shown and last for an hour and a half or two hours thereafter. The Minor Periods, shown in regular type, are of somewhat shorter duration.

Warren Ostrander was on the Bardon onslaught hit with a triple, a home run and a single. He collected three RBI's. Doug Noble had a triple, Ken Demille added a single and counted a trio of RBI's, and Ted Walbrack popped a pair of singles.

Sprackett gave up six hits while striking out six and walking one. Wayne Casselman went the distance for the losers. He set seven down on third strikes and walked one while allowing eight Juniors' safeties.

Dwayne Dextator started the fifth inning rally with a triple. Bob Campbell and Sprackett then singled back-to-back. An error, a fielder's choice and another error resulted in the winners four runs.

Pete Stalkovich, out for the first time in the '75 season, made his presence felt with a pair of singles.

Teams Move Up On the Leaders

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Marlboro Arrows and Montreal Quebecois, involved in their own game of tag for first place in the National Lacrosse League, were served notice Tuesday night that two more clubs want to play.

The standing Arrows suffered their third straight loss, a 20-12 shellacking by fourth-place Long Island Tomahawks, while the Quebecois were stymied 15-14 in overtime by third-place Philadelphia Wings.

Jimmy Jones scored five goals and Dave Willong added four for the Tomahawks, who outshot Maryland 41-40 at Uniondale, N.Y. Doug Hayes scored twice and assisted on six goals for the winners, who have 18 points. They trail the Arrows by six and the Quebecois by four.

Meanwhile, before 4,350 fans at Philadelphia, the Wings climbed within three points of second-place Boston. Rick Boucher scored the winner at 7:56 of a 10-minute overtime period after the teams deadlocked 13-13 in 60 minutes.

Larry Lloyd scored his second goal of the game and Ron Ryan connected for the Wings in the first two extra minutes before Montreal's Jim Crew made it 14-13. Boucher re-established the two-goal edge and Bill Shea's goal for the Quebecois at 8:31 was meaningless.

Jim Wasson, Garry Collins, Jenny Lapinski and John Grant also scored twice for Philadelphia, while Ross Jones led the Quebecois with three goals and three assists. Dale McKenzie and Serge Loiselle scored twice each for the losers.

League action resumes Thursday night as the Quebecois play at Long Island.

Pat Fallon added four goals for the winners, while John Scott, Rick Herrington and Dan Russel scored two apiece. Single goals went to Doug Maynard, Terry Keeling, Ken Tyler, Scott Cameron, Brian Travers and Mike Lachapelle.

Kevin Seitzer led Brantford with three goals. Claude Gauthier scored twice and Jim Walker and John Mouradian had one goal apiece.

The losers received twelve penalties including three ten-minute misconducts.

WFL Seeks Exclusive Rights

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says World Football League clubs have each selected Canadian and National league clubs for exclusive rights to players who are released or who play out their options.

The selections were made on May 8 in Montreal, Birmingham, the newspaper said, and the WFL Houston Thunder, for example, chose Ottawa Rough Riders and Saskatchewan Roughriders in the Canadian Football League and Oakland Raiders and Minnesota Vikings in the NFL.

Hugh Wyatt, assistant general manager of the Portland club, told the Globe and Mail in an interview: "We have no intention of violating CFL player contracts. The idea is to avoid a mad scramble with other clubs when the CFL and NFL begin releasing players."

General manager Leo Cahill of Memphis Southmen was quoted as saying the only danger he saw in the draft of CFL and NFL teams was that it could make the WFL look weak. "We don't want people to think we're going around collecting scrags. That wasn't the purpose."

Wyatt told the newspaper his club may send someone to keep an eye on the camps of the four clubs Portland picked out, even if "he wouldn't be very welcome." And Cahill was quoted as saying that "it is behooves us to have someone at a CFL camp, we will."

The Globe and Mail said the WFL team draft went as follows: Birmingham Vulcans—Winnipeg Blue Bombers, Atlanta Falcons, Kansas City Chiefs, Chicago Winds, Edmonton Eskimos, Pittsburgh Steelers, York Jets, Memphis Southmen—Toronto Argonauts, St.Louis Cardinals, New England Patriots, Philadelphia Bell—Montreal Alouettes, New York Giants, Washington Redskins; Portland Thunder—Ottawa Rough Riders, Saskatchewan Roughriders, Oakland Raiders, Minnesota Vikings; Sac. Antonio Wings—Calgary Stampeders, Hamilton Tiger-Cats, Dallas Cowboys, Houston Oilers, Los Angeles Southern California Sun—British Columbia Lions, Los Angeles Rams, San Diego Chargers; Shreveport Steamer—New Orleans Saints, Chicago Bears, Cincinnati Bengals; Hawaii Hurricane—San Francisco 49ers, Denver Broncos, Philadelphia Eagles; Jacksonville Express—Miami Dolphins, Cleveland Browns, Green Bay Packers; Charlotte Hornets—Baltimore Colts, Detroit Lions, Buffalo Bills.

Dennis Baril Gets the Job Done

Supplied with another capable relief job by right-hander Dennis Baril, Trenton Sale Farm defeated Belleville Legion Branch 99 by a 9-6 score, Tuesday, at Centennial Park in Eastern Ontario Baseball Association action.

Baril, rapidly establishing himself as a solid reliever came on in the first inning to take over for starter Paul Dickenson with Trenton 99 staging an early rally. Dickenson had one of those nights. He couldn't find the plate.

Belleville scored four times in that first frame, but over the final six innings, Baril checked the Branch 99 team, holding the home side to just two more runs.

Down 4-3 after three full innings, the Trenton team erupted for a five-run burst to take command in the fourth. The winners added two more in the sixth.

Rory Radford and Steve Carr split the pitching chore for Branch 99. The two lefties were touched for eight hits while fanning 13 and walking three.

Belleville collected seven base hits, two of them off the Trenton starter. Touched for five hits in six innings plus Baril fanned six and walked only one.

Brian Hanson continued his solid hitting for the winners, stroking three singles in four trips. Chris Walsh had two singles while Baril clouted a double and Dan Scott and Rick Doucet each banged a single.

As usual, big Ken Revoy hit the ball hard for Branch 99 but was held to a single when he lined a screamer off third sacker Dan Scott. Radford supplied a pair of singles with one each for Bruce Bell, Steve McCrory, Joel Hayward and Lindsay Bradley.

In an EODBA Cyke contest at Parkdale, Belleville Elliott Motors slugged Trenton LA Braves 23-4. No game report was submitted.

Ron Bateman scattered six hits in taking the victory, with help from his batteries.

Terry Hiddleston, Ralph Frances, Gene Frances, and Ron Andrews all collected three hits for the winners with Hiddleston smashing a homerun.

Wayne Trice and Andy Prudden had two singles apiece for the losers.

Black Guerrillas' Raids Turn Farms Into Forts

CENTENARY, Rhodesia (AP) — More than two years of raids by black guerrillas from Tanzania have turned this fertile northeast crescent of farmlands into an armed camp.

Helicopter gunships patrol the rolling hills and fields of corn and tobacco looking for infiltrators. Black and white troops of the Rhodesian defence forces hunt the Chinese-backed enemy on the ground.

Farmers and their families carry rifles and pistols while tending fields and herds of cattle.

They return to homes that have been converted into mini-fortresses with bedroom strongholds and elaborate warning systems surrounded by barbed wire fences.

Floodlights illuminate the perimeter and the thick bush beyond. Watchdogs roam the compound.

After dark, farmers never stray from their 'agric-alert' two-way radios.

Even the four-year-old daughter of one farmer knows how to operate a radio, used to notify a nearby base camp in case of attack.

They don't play cops and robbers any more," observed the farmer's wife referring to her children. "The only game they know now is terrorist".

It's a way of life," added another farmer, who said guerrillas shot up his panel truck several months ago in an ambush.

Farmers ask reporters not to identify them in stories, ever since Chris Kleynhans was quoted in a local newspaper in 1973 as saying he was not afraid of the guerrillas.

Two days later, Kleynhans' wife was killed in a grenade attack on the farm and Kleynhans was wounded.

Since Dec. 9th, 1972, when the first Centenary farm was hit, the government says at least 862 persons have died as a result of the bush-fire war.

The victims include at least 363 guerrillas, 130 black civilians, 46 members of the Rhodesian security forces, 18 South African paramilitary police helping fight the war and 17 white civilians.

A cease-fire was announced Dec. 11 as several black African countries sought to work out settlement terms with South Africa and Rhodesia. But the white government in Salisbury says one guerrilla faction has ignored it.

Incursions by African "freedom fighters" from Zambia began more than a year before Rhodesia declared itself independent of British rule in 1965.

But the small raiding parties, led by the Soviet-oriented Zimbabwe African People's Union (ZAPU), met little success between 1964 and 1970. Zimbabwe is the name black nationalists give to Rhodesia.

Rhodesian officials say ZAPU limited itself to harassment with land mines and small-scale raids after 1970 leaving the field clear for a Chinese backed movement called the Zimbabwe African National Union (ZANU).

ZANU was granted the use of bases in neighboring Mozambique, run by the Front for the Liberation of Mozambique (Frelimo), which fought Portuguese rule in that country for more than a decade before winning a settlement with Lisbon last year.

Backed by Frelimo's supply network and with better guerrilla training behind them, ZANU insurgents launched their offensive in late 1972.

Rhodesia responded by setting up a joint operations centre at Bindura, about 60 miles northeast of Salisbury, the capital.

The centre has representatives from the army, air force, civil administration and police.

The main combat zone arches along the northeast border with Mozambique, where thousands of tribesmen have been resettled in fenced and guarded compounds.

The white-dominated government has been handicapped in the war by international sanctions and diplomatic isolation brought on by Rhodesia's break from Britain.

Arms and equipment come through the back door and South Africa has had to bolster the Rhodesian effort with an estimated 2,000 paramilitary police.

Most farmers and their wives are members of the police reserve.

Many farmers put in a 12-hour day on the farm and six hours of police duty at night while wives share shifts at the strategic centres, running the switchboards of the radio alert system.

The pattern of attack has a grim familiarity.

Farmhouses are surrounded, sprayed with bullets followed by grenades lobbed through windows and blasted with rockets or explosives before the attackers melt into the night.

Security forces are sometimes delayed in responding by landmines on approach roads.

While farmers have often been described as the strongest supporters of white supremacy in Rhodesia, where about 274,000 whites hold political power over the black majority of 5.5 million.

"No one will shift us," one farmer in the Centenary district was quoted as saying shortly after the first attacks. "This is our land and we plan to stay."

But the relentless war and a growing economic squeeze are forcing some farmers to reconsider and many, as one put it, now are "restless."

A few have abandoned their homesteads while some of those who remain now say a political settlement must be reached with the black nationalists.

Economic factors have hit the farming community hard.

Farmers cite lower prices for corn and tobacco, the major crops, coupled with the steeply rising cost of fertilizer and an increasingly critical shortage of black labor.

African farm workers are suspected by whites of possible guerrilla sympathizers and viewed as collaborators by the black insurgents.

Caught in this crossfire, many have quit work on the farms and moved to better jobs in the cities.

Landlocked Rhodesia, plagued by international sanctions, has growing difficulty in exporting farm produce.

Much of it went through neighboring Mozambique to the Indian Ocean ports of Beira and Lourenco Marques when Mozambique was controlled by Portugal.

Provinces Want Housing Money

OTTAWA (CP) — Provincial housing ministers demanded more federal money and raised questions about a subsidized home ownership program but received no promises from Urban Affairs Minister Barney Danson at a meeting Tuesday.

Mr. Danson said after the meeting that most provincial housing ministers indicated they wanted more housing money.

Ontario Housing Minister Donald Irvine said he asked the federal government to increase its housing budget for the province from $232.2 million to $447.7 million this year.

The ministers also discussed the federal assisted home ownership program (AHOP) and some asked about progress on changes in the program to allow private lenders to participate.

Mr. Danson told reporters later that he is concerned about the slow response by private lenders. Along with money the federal government lends directly, the changes were aimed at unleashing almost $1 billion a year in private money.

The government has not yet issued regulations under the AHOP provisions for private lenders and has almost exhausted its budget of $241 million for AHOP under direct lending provisions this year.

Mr. Danson said another meeting of housing ministers may be held later in the year, possibly September.

The general feeling of ministers was that the day of the low-cost single-family home is "something of the past" in major cities, he said. People wanting such houses will have to look outside major centres.

Mr. Danson said the federal government was trying to develop designs for multiple-family housing that would not be high-rise.

He said one of the major provincial requests was for more public housing money provided under federal-provincial shared-cost programs.

Mr. Irvine said he wants the federal government to substantially increase housing funds for provinces so that housing construction will rise sharply before the end of the year.

Mr. Danson said changes to the AHOP program approved by Parliament earlier this year have not yet "caught hold."

Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. (CMHC) officials were discussing the new provisions with private lenders and modifying amortization periods to make AHOP more attractive to lenders.

AHOP is intended to help families with one or more children buy a modestly-priced house without spending more than 25 per cent of their income for monthly mortgage payments and municipal taxes. Eligible persons get loans at subsidized interest rates as low as eight per cent.

Admiral Gets Knuckle Rap

OTTAWA (CP) — Vice-Admiral Douglas Boyle returned to Halifax Tuesday after receiving a slight rap on the knuckles from Defence Minister James Richardson for outspoken comments made during the weekend.

Admiral Boyle was called here to explain to Gen. Jacques Dextraze, chief of defence staff, and Mr. Richardson, the remarks he made to a group of Progressive Conservative MPs in Halifax.

The admiral said the defence department needs more money, that he cannot use his ships as he should because there is not enough money for fuel and that he hopes the government will not compromise on requirements for a new long-range patrol aircraft.

The admiral also was quoted as saying some equipment acquisitions money should be spent on the navy and that Canadian tax money is wasted.

Mr. Richardson said he supports much of what the admiral said about defence, but the admiral should not have talked of other departments.

Munro Blames Walkouts

GENEVA (CP) — Labor Minister John Munro said Tuesday that industrial strife in Canada might not diminish significantly even if inflation is brought under control.

Mr. Munro told delegates to an International Labor Organization meeting that several other factors have contributed recently to increases in industrial unrest.

"It would be wrong to conclude that when inflation is brought under control, a return to normalcy will be just around the corner," he said in a prepared text.

Inflation has been said to be a major cause of strikes which pushed last man-days in Canada to a record 9,255,000 days in 1974.

He said figures show it is not collective bargaining conflicts in the manufacturing industry which led to the strikes but increases in walkouts in the white-collar sector—public services, hospitals, schools, transportation and communication.

Planning Asbestos Ban

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government intends to ban importation of blue asbestos and sale of consumer products containing from asbestos fibres.

Through the Hazardous Products Act, the government also intends to ensure non-consumer products containing asbestos bear labels "which give information on their contents and safe use," the consumer affairs department and health department said in a news release.

The statement said research has revealed that exposure to "free asbestos fibres is a potential health hazard which can result in cancer. . . . Experience outside Canada shows the hazard may be greater with blue asbestos."

Blue asbestos is not produced in Canada, but small amounts are imported from South Africa for use in the manufacture of asbestos-cemented sewer and water pipes.

The consumer products to be affected by the proposed regulations on free asbestos fibres include some humidifier plates, certain types of modelling clay and joint sealant.

Broadcasters Feeling Pinch Of Cable Television Success

OTTAWA (CP) — Domestic broadcasters called on the Canadian Radio-Television Commission (CRTC) Tuesday to clamp tight controls on the country's growing cable television industry.

Complaining that they are losing audiences and advertisers to outside competition, the broadcasters appealed to the CRTC to either defer or reject a series of proposed new regulations for 400 cable companies across the country.

Murray Chercover, president of CTV Television Network Ltd., told the 13-member government broadcasting regulatory body that cable operators should be barred from competing directly with conventional television broadcasters until if it means massive deletions of programs for cable subscribers.

Cable operators in the audience at the three-day hearing laughed in apparent disbelief as Mr. Chercover suggested that they be forbidden from carrying imported programming already available from local television stations.

Earlier in the day the Canadian Cable Television Association told the commission that cable, operators should be subsidized by the CRTC have minimum of federal regulation if they are to meet subscriber demands for a greater variety of programming.

Mr. Chercover and officials of the 270-member Canadian Association of Broadcasters (CAB) said it was this variety that is fragmenting local television audiences and posing serious threats to the future stability of television broadcasting.

Mr. Chercover told the hearing a ban on duplicate programming could mean deletion of up to 80 per cent of prime time programming imported by cable from U.S. and other non-local television stations.

There were grounds of dismay in the audience at the public hearing when Mr. Chercover said cable subscribers need not be faced with blank screens during such blackout periods.

Cable companies could replace the offending programs with community programming or printed news and public service messages, he suggested.

The hearings are centred on proposals for regulating the community programming channel run by cable companies, use of converters to bring a greater number of channel choices to cable subscribers; licensing of supplementary program channels to carry re-runs of popular shows, movies and sports and proposals for a pay television system in which subscribers would receive special programming on payment of a monthly or per-program fee.

Neither CTV nor the CAB were enthusiastic about the proposals which, they said, would only further fragment domestic television audiences.

Besides the program deletion suggestion, Mr. Chercover asked the CRTC to defer action on supplementary program channels, additional use of converters and implementation of a pay television network. Community programming is fine—as long as it is not allowed to become too professional and remains a local, non-profit endeavor, he said.

John O. Graham of Richmond Hill, Ont., cable television association chairman, rejected claims that the industry is harming domestic broadcasting seriously and urged the CRTC to go ahead with supplementary programming channels and licensing of converter services.

Mr. Chercover said both the privately-owned CTV and the publicly-owned CBC television networks have suffered severe audience losses with the subsequent growth of cable service in recent years.

The cable industry, soon to reach 80 per cent of television set owners, is undermining the national unity objectives of the Broadcasting Act by introducing more and more non-regulated foreign programming, he said.

He said Canada now is served by seven television networks—three domestic and four foreign imports from the United States. Besides the CTV and CBC English and French networks, add the Global Television Ontario

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Thursday, June 12

Aries (March 21-April 19) You're a mix-up temperamentally early in the day. Toward evening you regret, in your cool, easygoing self.

Taurus (April 20 - May 20) Have some or double-check important work you handle today. They could make a mistake easier than you could.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) You're likely to spend too much for something you want today. You're too impatient to wait till the price is right.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) If you've had a disagreement recently with a family member, a small token gift from you would work wonders for healing wounds.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) Your initial approach to a problem today will be wrong. Look at it from the opposite angle to find the solution.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't be bashful about returning something if you can get the same item or better terms elsewhere.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Be tenacious in pursuing a goal you feared was not attainable. If you re-examine your program, you'll find your chances are better than you thought.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 - Nov. 22) Guard your moves closely in any competitive situation today. Time's on your side if you delay your hand prematurely.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23 - Dec. 21) Step back a little to get a clearer perspective on how to solve problems in a shared undertaking in which you're involved.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19) Hear out the other person's terms if you're making an agreement today. His offer may be better than you would have dared to make.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18) You need a sounding board to bounce your ideas off today. Tell them to one you respect and whose advice you'll listen to.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) As the day wears on, you become more pragmatic and productive. Leave your most-challenging tasks for the afternoon.

Win at Bridge

Today, Queen Reigns Supreme

Oswald's reply was longer. It was: "Forty years ago when you were a baby the correct play would have been the 10 in those early days of contract, players were taught not to lead from kings if they could other lead. In fact there was a bridgeplayer's Hell where the floor sinner was continually on lead against the devil while holding all four kings. Today, however the queen is the lead try."

CARD SENSE

The bidding has been: 1 1

West	North	East	South
			1 N.T.
Pass	2 N.T.	Pass	Pass
Pass

Opening lead — 2 ♠

By Oswald and James Jacoby

In accordance with our policy of being kind to declarers most of the time, we have given South a sure thing play at trick one. West has led from the king-jack of spades and he can play either the queen or 10 from dummy with complete success.

This didn't help the South who actually drew the ace-jack in a rubber bridge game. He studied, cogitated, thought, finally took a coin out of his pocket, tossed it while saying, "Heads I play the queen."

South asked which card we would have played. Jim replied was, "The queen—there are lots of ways to win the trick. I could pass a jack-ten suit against notrumps, few who hate to lead from a king."

To Your Good Health

Pregnancy Fears Grip Young Wife

By G. C. Thesleson, MD

Dear Dr. Thesleson: I have a problem, and I hope you can help me.

The fact is that I am scared stiff about becoming pregnant. Nobody seems to believe how really scared I am.

I am 20 years old and have been married two years, and now it is getting close to the time for having children. Every time my husband starts talking about it, my head starts hurting and my stomach cramps, I get feel shaky all over. My girl friends already have never to talk about the delivery process around me, because I get close to fainting.

Is Lizzy anything or any way I can get this fear out of me? I'm so uncomfortable about it I can't even enjoy sex anymore. I want to have a happy marriage. The strange thing is that I love children—N. G.

A fear as profound as yours is not at all normal, and I frankly would advise you, or other women like you, not to have children until they have come to terms with the problem.

What can one say? Pregnancy is a normal condition, I assume, it is physical for you to have. Well, some discomfort can be expected as your stomach becomes enlarged, and there may be little aches and pains. You would feel a little "stuffed." But of course, only another woman could describe these things to you.

But if horror stories about the labor hard have upset you, you should know that modern methods of obstetrical anesthesia keep pain minimal, and your obstetrician, especially if you have discussed your fears with him, would be extra solicitous about this.

It seems senseless to tell you that billions of women have gone through this same experience, many under far less sophisticated care than is available to you. This is small comfort you might contemplate during your fearful moments.

Psychiatry might help you but perhaps not as much as counsel to cope with him, and even by letting your girlfriends report their experience.

A doctor could reassure you about your physical condition and your ability to carry your baby to a successful delivery. This would be an ideal beginning for you, and it certainly wouldn't hurt physically at all. We've all had fears of some kind dealing with our bodies. How often the person frightened at the thought of a dental appointment finds the occasion painless and wonders what all the fears were about!

At 20, you are at a prime age for becoming pregnant. There probably will never be a better time than now. However, unless you can rid yourself of your fears, you could develop an unhealthy attitude toward the baby you carry, and this could have a lasting psychological impact on yourself, the baby and your family.

If you cannot, either on your own or through appropriate counseling, overcome your problem, then you might consider the possibility of discussion with your husband, since deciding to have children seems important to both of you.

Dear Dr. Thesleson: I am a boy of 16 and fairly muscular, but my chest sticks out. It's pretty embarrassing when I have to do exercises and you can see it. I have tried to take your advice and do push-ups for two or three years. What can I do?—J. A.

Some prominence of the breasts is not unusual in adolescent males. It is called gynecomastia, and it tends to subside with time. It is more noticeable in chubby boys. You say you have a very muscular chest, too, could add to the appearance.

Sometimes it can be associated with glandular disorder, but you say you are more likely normal adolescent development, because you asked your doctor about it!

New Course Mixes Religion, Science

HALIFAX (CP) — What is one's relationship with the cosmos as an individual? How is one related to the whole? How can one be in the world and still be oneself?

All serious questions have religious dimensions and through a new course, Dalhousie University's department of religion hopes to answer such queries.

The course, religion and science, is a general study of the relationship between scientific inquiry and religious aspirations and concerns, said instructor Dr. Ravi Ravindra.

"It will consider the writings of such great thinkers as Kepler, Pascal, Newton, Goethe and Einstein each of whom combined scientific commitment and spiritual sensitivity to a very high degree and had an enormous influence on intellectual history."

Dr. Ravindra, a physics professor since 1966, holds a cross-appointment to religion and it is not his first dual appointment. He previously taught physics and philosophy.

The professor, whose background includes work in geology, physics, exploration geophysics, philosophy and religion, has been the recipient of post-doctoral fellowships and research grants in several disciplines.

As a background to the course, Dr. Ravindra describes physics as a discipline concerned with trying to uncover the laws of nature and his nature operates.

"It's concerned with space, time and energy.

"Religion is concerned with the meaning and sense of human existence and raising consciousness to a higher level. Higher consciousness is the knowledge of oneself and, through this, integrating a person's experiences, related to the cosmos."

SLUMMING IT

LIVERPOOL, England (CP) — The British Tourist Authority has compiled a special list of urban walks in celebration of European Architectural Heritage Year. In the section on Liverpool, it suggests: "Walk 7: Sunday in the Slums."

The time kept in Britain is based directly on the Greenwich Meridian, defined by the International Meridian Conference of 1884, as "The Meridian passing through the centre of the transit instrument at the Observatory at Greenwich." The instrument referred to is Airy's famous transit circle, seen in this picture (right foreground). It was left in the care of the National Maritime Museum at Greenwich, London, when the Astronomer — Royal and his staff moved to Herstmonceux, Sussex, after the Second World War. (CP Photo)

Experimental Yukon School Shows Pupils Responsibility

WHITEHORSE (CP)—Fifty miles south of this Yukon capital a unique experiment is taking place in frontier education.

It's a new school called the Carcross Community Education Centre, where 41 teenagers share the responsibility of maintaining the premises in which they live and work.

The centre was established three years ago on the outskirts of the tiny railway settlement of Carcross in buildings which once housed an Indian residential school. Abandoned in favor of other facilities, the school faced demolishment.

But Rev. John Frame, Anglican bishop of Yukon, convinced that an understanding of the wilderness could offer young people valuable dimensions to their personal and academic development, was granted use of the property by the government at a lease cost of $1 a year.

Backed by the Anglican Church and other well-wishers, Bishop Frame launched a modest publicity campaign for the school.

"Requirements were that the students would help to put the buildings back in shape, would have to do their cooking and laundering, maintain the premises and where possible engage in activities that would help raise money for the centre's operation expenses," Bishop Frame said.

Within months, applications for enrolment came from students not only in Canada, but in Alaska and the United States. Among them were educational casualties who were having problems that only new experiences and associations could resolve.

This year 24 worker-teachers, known as "parent members" who each receive a salary of $50 a month, are in charge of classes where a full high-school education covers courses from grades 9 through 12. The curriculum is based on that of British Columbia's education department. Ontario students seeking Grade 13 standing qualify through individual instruction, supplemented by correspondence courses authorized by the Ontario department of education.

The school's academic successes have been acknowledged by education authorities.

Tuition fees are 1,400 a year—about a third of the cost of an average independent school. Students, however, are not encouraged to remain for more than two years since the school is intended only to use frontier experience as a means of developing new perspectives.

Students who have learned wilderness survival and who qualify in the use of rifles are authorized to hunt caribou and moose to supplement the centre's meat requirements. The nearby wildlife range is home for several other animal species, including wolves and lynx, and many of the students spend weekends doing wildlife studies. Outdoor recreation includes skiing, snowshoeing and back-packing.

Part of the curriculum calls for involvement with persons outside the community. When first established the school was considered an intrusion by the 150 residents of Carcross.

This quickly changed when the teen-agers offered their services as baby-sitters, began visiting the aged, and became friends with youngsters in the Whitehorse Juvenile detention centre.

Set school standards are high and rigid—no drugs, no liquor, no sex. Violation of these rules results in dismissal, but in the two years of student occupancy only a few dismissals have occurred.

To reach the goal of becoming fully self-supporting, the students bake their own bread, some of which is sold for profit in Whitehorse and Carcross food stores. The Yukon-White Pass Railway, which runs through Carcross, has a $18,000 contract with the centre this year whereby students creosote railway ties for the line's 115-mile run.

The students have started an agricultural program to provide vegetables for themselves and feed for a growing number of goats, pigs and chickens.

While the operation of the centre is the responsibility of the worker-teachers and the students, final policy decisions belong to a standing committee headed by Bishop Frame and responsible to the Diocese of Yukon.

What if your pay cheque was late?

Your Intelligencer carrier is a young, independent businessman; he doesn't receive a pay cheque. His profit is the difference between the wholesale cost of his newspapers and the amount collected from his customers.
Most subscribers pay their carriers on the first call. But some people say "come back later" . . . and the carrier's profit is put off. It's like asking you to come back two or three times for your pay cheque.
For many of us this would be a calamity. Of course, you want to be paid promptly. All of us do. The boy or girl who delivers your Intelligencer will appreciate being paid promptly.

N. W. Rowell's Life Described in Detail

By PAT LESSER
The Canadian Press

Newton Wesley Rowell was one of Canada's most prominent men of the early part of the 20th century.

N. W. Rowell: Ontario Nationalist is a painstakingly detailed account of his life, almost on a day-to-day basis. The author is Margaret Prang, chairman of the department of history at University of British Columbia.

Detailed though the book is, it somehow doesn't bring Rowell the person into clear focus. His accomplishments as corporation and constitutional lawyer are set forth exhaustively, along with his firm belief in and support of the British Empire and Canada's increasingly important role in it. His protracted battle against the liquor interests and his falling out with Sir Willrid owen,Rowell's support of conscription are presented at great length.

He is depicted as a happily married man who was deeply grieved by the death of his son William Langford Rowell from blood poisoning.

We learn that he was a theatre-goer, preferring plays which did not put exceptional stress on sex, and a golfer. But apart from such details there is not much to tell the reader what manner of man Rowell was.

Nevertheless the book is valuable reading for any growth during the first four decades of the 20th century.

N.W. Rowell: Ontario Nationalist, by Margaret Prang; 533 pages, $25; University of Toronto Press.

Lifelong Quest for Miracle Fabric Left Inventor with Shirt on Back

NEW CANAAN, Conn. (AP) — A 30-year quest for a "miracle" fibre has left Carl Barnes with little more than the comfortable wrinkle-resistant shirt on his back. And he says he's in danger of losing that.

Perfected in his basement laboratory, Barnes says his nylon-4 has the potential of grabbing a multi-million-dollar share of the textile business. Industry experts agree it combines the toughness of nylon with the comfort of cotton. And it can be made to look like silk.

But the patents have slipped from his grasp, lost in the bankruptcy reorganization of the company he established to develop the fibre.

And now a bank has begun foreclosure procedures on his home and 160 acres of land he put up to guarantee a loan.

Chevron, which took control of (3) patents, has spent "substantial" money developing nylon-4 and "they think it has potential, obviously," a company lawyer said.

"I'm not sleeping too good these nights," said Barnes, a 67-year-old chemist. "I didn't think it would come out this way."

He said he dreamed of grabbing 10 per cent of textile sales some day and of proving that the lone inventor can make it big.

"I'm told by someone at the Securities and Exchange Commission that this is the American way. You find an inventor who is in tough shape and you take over."

Barnes credentials are impeccable: PhD from Harvard, director of research for Arnold Hoffman, 19 years as vice-president for research at 3M Corp. and two years at spend time on nylon-4 at home.

"This product was known to have desirable properties way back when DuPont tried to make it in the '70s," Barnes said. "Because of its instability, every major company in the world had a crack at it and failed."

Barnes, too, was skeptical until he accidentally made nylon-4 while working on something else in 1961. While at 3M he made his first pair of socks from the new fibre and in 1967 he made the "real breakthrough" in his home lab, a process to make it commercially spinnable.

He found the fibre static-free, easily dyed, moisture-breathing and wrinkle resistant.

Police Investigating Cult from Jamaica

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says a special study group has been set up by the Canadian immigration department and Metropolitan Toronto police to investigate a religious cult from Jamaica, some members of which are believed responsible for recent violent crimes in Metro.

In a copyright story, the newspaper says the group is the Rastafarian Brethren, most of whom wear the devoted Ethiopian emperor Haile Selassie as their god, use marijuana as part of their religion and believe they are Ethiopians whose ancestors were sold into slavery when Jamaica was colonized. Its members wear their hair in long ringlets or plaits called dreadlocks.

The newspaper says Metro police suspect the cult is responsible for a number of crimes—including murder, robberies and drug trafficking—and adds the group's activities have contributed greatly to a surge of racism in Toronto.

Families Get Trust Funds

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — The families of two Moncton policemen slain last December have been awarded $190,000 each from a trust fund set up following the deaths.

Mr. Justice Claudius Leger of the Queen's Bench Division of the New Brunswick Supreme Court decided Tuesday to split the fund, created to benefit the families of Cpl. Aurele Bourgeois and Constable Michael O'Leary.

Return to Examinations No Solution: Wells

TORONTO (CP) — A "simplistic return" to standard high school examinations for university entrance will not "solve anybody's problem," Education Minister Tom Wells said Tuesday.

He was replying in the legislature to Liberal Leader Robert Nixon who raised recent criticisms by a university head about the quality of education of students graduating from secondary schools.

Mr. Wells said universities are "perfectly free" to offer examinations, but most had rejected the idea when it was presented several years ago.

He said the only response of universities was to charge students for tests without any assurance that the tests would have value in determining admission.

He said critics of the system also are criticizing "every one of the 34,000 secondary teachers of this province and let that be remember."

Mr. Nixon quoted B.C. Matthews, president of Waterloo University as referring to "pretentiousness of our high school programs" and asked whether Mr. Wells is satisfied with the present system.

"I am never satisfied with anything," the minister replied.

However, he said, only about 15 per cent of high school students go on to university.

"If the universities want to complain about having some standard for the people they take in, let the universities set some kind of entrance test," he added.

Liberals Against PLO

TORONTO (CP) — Liberal Party members of the Ontario legislature have called on the federal government to deny entry in Canada to Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) members who plan to attend a United Nations conference here.

In a telegram Tuesday to Prime Minister Trudeau, the 25-member Liberal caucus said PLO personnel in Canada would be "an affront to the standards of decency and justice" of law-abiding Canadians.

There have been reports members of the PLO may attempt to attend the fifth U.N. Congress on Prevention of Crime and the Treatment of the Offender, to take place in Toronto in September.

Indian Premier Appealing
Court Bars Gandhi

NEW DELHI (AP) — A judge convicted Prime Minister Indira Gandhi today of wrongfully using government officials in her last successful campaign for Parliament and banned her from public office for six years.

A spokesman for Mrs. Gandhi said, however, she will remain in office while appealing to the Supreme Court to set aside the conviction.

The judge stayed the sentence for 20 days so Mrs. Gandhi could appeal—a process that could take months. She is expected to ask the Supreme Court to continue the stay on the sentence until it decides on the appeal.

Mrs. Gandhi, 57, has headed the Indian government since January, 1966, and is the first Indian prime minister to be threatened with ouster by judicial process. Her predecessors—her father, Jawaharlal Nehru, and Lal Bahadur Shastri—died in office.

Mrs. Gandhi was convicted by Judge Jag Mohanlal Sinha in Allahabad, her hometown in northern India while gaining her a 183,000 to 71,000 victory in the 1971 election over Raj Narain, a Socialist.

Narain went to court with a number of charges. The trial was lengthy, with 60 witnesses for the prosecution and 27 for the defence.

Mrs. Gandhi took the stand for two days, the first prime minister since independence in 1947 to appear in court. She denied all the charges.

Judge Sinha found Mrs. Gandhi not guilty of most of the charges, including that she exceeded the $4,000 limit on campaign expenditures, that she campaigned in air force aircraft, that her campaign symbol—a cow and a calf—was a veiled religious appeal to the Hindu majority, and that her supporters tried to bribe voters with free blankets and clothes.

But he found her guilty of the chief charge—that she used government officials in her campaign, including Yashpal Kapoor, a member of her secretariat in New Delhi when the campaign started.

Mrs. Gandhi is the daughter of the late Jawaharlal Nehru, one of the towering figures of Indian nationalism and the party in a battle with its conservative leaders, vigorously pushed a program of socialist policies and in 1971 consolidated her power with a smashing victory.

Mrs. Gandhi's popularity reached its peak at the beginning of 1972 following India's decisive victory over Pakistan in the war that won independence for Bangladesh.

But since then the government has been buffeted by massive recurrent problems it has been unable to solve, including population increase, drought and food shortage, lagging industrial expansion, sectionalism and corruption.

Mrs. Gandhi has had two notable battles in the last five years with the Supreme Court.

In 1970, she abolished India's princely class with a presidential decree reducing the country's 600 maharajas and their families to commoners.

The maharajas went to court, and the Supreme Court ruled that the decree was unconstitutional because the rights and privileges of the former rulers were guaranteed by the constitution. So Mrs. Gandhi put a constitutional amendment through Parliament eliminating the princely class.

The prime minister dealt again with the Supreme Court in 1973 when she appointed A.N. Nath Ray chief justice although he was junior to three other judges on the court.

It was the first time a prime minister had not appointed the chief justice according to seniority, and the three men who were passed over resigned.

Ray as chief justice will have the final say on whether the conviction of Mrs. Gandhi will stand.

Comparing Notes

Nova Scotia supervisor of industrial parks, H. E. Lund, (seated) arrived in Belleville Wednesday to "compare notes" with city industrial commissioner Fred Bemis. On a fact-finding mission, it is Mr. Lundy's responsibility to form several regional parks in his province "to bring more industry into the province's tax base."

'Build Plants On Rock'

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Ontario is exhausting prime agricultural land in a "disgraceful" fashion as industrial development continues to cover southern portions of the province, says Nova Scotia supervisor of industrial parks H. E. Lund.

Mr. Lund has been touring southern Ontario in the past week gathering information he hopes will be helpful in formation of parks in his province.

He arrived in Belleville Wednesday to meet with industrial commissioner Fred Bemis.

"The precedent was set when the first industry moved into southern Ontario . . . but seeing prime agricultural land being eaten up with industry behind the hell out of me," said Mr. Lund during an interview.

He was particularly critical of industrialization of the Niagara Peninsula and said: "You can build plants on rock and that's where industry should be built . . . on the rockpiles of northern Ontario."

"I don't know the answer to the problem," he said. "The trend has already been set."

"We are going to pay the price for not considering the best use of land," he said. "It's disgraceful what has been done at Niagara."

In his capacity as provincial supervisor, Mr. Lund is chiefly responsible for the formation of three regional industrial parks in Nova Scotia.

"These regional parks will not work in competition with the municipalities but will be formed to complement existing municipal parks," he said.

"Parks formed by the government are necessary in Nova Scotia because individual communities do not have the money," he said.

Asked if there is any similarity between the Nova Scotia regional parks and Ontario's proposed 10,000-acre park at Stoneycreek, Mr. Lund said: "We're not trying to become another Industrial Ontario. We just want a little better tax base."

Mr. Lund was highly complimentary of Belleville's industrial parks and praised the retention of park-like surroundings and the cleanliness of city industrial areas.

Mr. Lund concludes his Ontario tour Thursday with a meeting in Ottawa with the Department of National Defence to arrange a retired air force base's transformation to an industrial park.

LIBREVILLE, Gabon (AP) — The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) says it intends to raise the prices of crude oil Oct. 1. Why Hostages Acted Remains Mystery

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) — The men who worked free 15 hostages held by three convicts at the British Columbia penitentiary are still wondering why the hostages turned on their knife-wielding captors.

One hostage, Marty Steinhauer, 32, was shot and killed in the barrage of eight bullets as a special tactical force of prison employees answered the sudden screams for help.

The hostages were being held in a tiny windowless vault near the officer where the three convicts had arranged for interviews at 8 a.m. Monday. That was when they seized the hostages.

Andrew Bruce, 28, a convicted killer originally from North Vancouver, B.C., suffered stabbed tongue and lips in a serious condition in a New Westminster hospital.

His cohort, Claire Wilson, 25, originally from Campbell River, B.C., a drug addict convicted of attempted murder, and Dwight Douglas Lucas, 36, who acted as man to death in Manitoba, were taken to court Wednesday to face a joint charge of unlawfully possessing knives.

More serious charges were being prepared by Prosecutor Morley Kalistsky said the Criminal Code of Canada has provisions under which murder charges could be laid.

Bryan Williams, a Vancouver lawyer who was one of the two official hostage mediators, said the final episode was unexpected.

"It just doesn't fit with the impressions we got from our visits on Tuesday," he said. "There are a lot of things that just don't add up."

He said the hostages were not desperate when he and another intermediary, Gary Bauer-man, an open-line broadcaster with CKNW radio, saw them about three hours before the drama ended.

"Considering the circumstances, they were 15 relatively contented people," Mr. Williams said. "Sure they were uncomfortable and they wanted out, but they were not desperate: there was no fear of death on their faces."

The five intermediaries—Mr. Williams and law partner, Donald Sorochan, Vancouver Province reporter Jim Spears, Mr. Bauerman and Mordecai Briesberg, a writer with the Western Voice and former Simon Fraser University professor—have called for an independent inquiry of the incident.

They said the situation had been stable and appeared it would remain that way overnight. Four of them had left the prison for a nearby hotel.

Ben Wicks

"Wow. Imagine the Malpractice suit she could have presented!"

Parliament Hears Call For Inquiry

OTTAWA (CP) — Concern over the state of criminal justice and about security in federal prisons raged in the Commons Wednesday in the wake of the British Columbia penitentiary drama.

The concern was evident in the opposition calls for another debate on capital punishment and a royal commission inquiry into the penitentiary system.

The feelings of opposition MPs were expressed forcefully as Prime Minister Trudeau and Solicitor-General Warren Allmand were questioned about the New Westminster incident in which three convicts held 15 hostages at knifepoint for two days.

A woman prison employee was fatally shot when the hostages overcame their captors.

Meanwhile, the government closely guarded the identity of the country which offered to take the convicts, hold them and return them to Canada after the hostages were safe. The convicts had demanded a safe passage from Canada.

Officials would not even say how many countries were approached. The convicts wanted to go to a country which does not have an extradition treaty with Canada.

And, the government was under pressure to explain an alleged five-hour gap between receiving the offer and considering whether to relay it to the prisoners.

Blakeney Re-elected
Tories Score Biggest Gain

REGINA (CP) — A bruised but unbeaten premier Allan Blakeney called on New Democrats to rejoice at "a good working majority" and said the party's losses are "perhaps a reflection on us in not sufficiently explaining our programs."

Although he had asked Saskatchewan citizens to give him a resounding victory and a decisive mandate to strengthen his hand in oil-pricing talks later this month with Prime Minister Trudeau, the NDP share of the popular vote fell to 39 per cent from the 55 per cent of the previous election.

Three cabinet ministers also fell, two to Liberals and one to Progressive Conservatives. Industrial Minister Kim Thorson; Social Services Minister Alex Taylor and Co-operation Minister Don Cody.

The Liberals also had losses, dropping to 32 per cent from 43 per cent in popular vote, but maintained their number of seats with victories in other ridings.

Conservative Leader Dick Collver, meanwhile, declined all public comment Wednesday night and said he would make a statement sometime today.

The Conservatives share of the popular vote jumped to 26 per cent from two per cent, although some of the increase was due to the fact the party had a full slate of candidates this time had only 15 in 1971.

Half Angola's Whites Want to Leave Country

LISBON (AP)—More than half Angola's white population — 200,000 persons — have asked to leave the black African colony before it becomes independent next fall a government spokesman said today.

"We hope the situation will stabilize and the demands to leave will stop," Information Minister Jorge Jesuino said.

He said such an exodus from the West African colony, already torn by racial violence and disorder, would be "disastrous for both Portugal and Angola."

Jesuino said in the meantime the government will continue evacuating about 500 whites daily to Lisbon.

Meeting with reporters for the first time since the April Portuguese elections, Jesuino said a big influx of white settlers from the 500-year-old Portuguese colony would be heavy strain on the country's burdened economy.

He said it all those seeking to leave Angola came to Portugal, it would double the present unemployment rate of eight per cent or 250,000 jobless.

The Country Comes to Town

Once a year the country comes to town as the Quinte Exhibition gets under way. In fact, providing contact between rural and urban communities still is one of the stated aims of the fair after the social changes of its 150 years. Among the exhibits Keith Hobbs, Ashton, Ont., a farmer, has brought to town is this big Hereford heifer which he's readying for judging at the big Exhibition. For story, see first page, second section.

Murray Cracks Down On Mobile Home Permits

By AL ZARAS
Staff Reporter

WOOLER — Mobile homes, specifically those in stabilized residential areas, now are banned in Murray Township, the result of fears of depreciation in price of conventional homes next door to mobile homes.

But twinned with a bylaw passed by council staying the ban is a policy statement that allows the homes in Murray Township clerk Ken Rose said Wednesday the policy leaves the granting of permission to locate a mobile home in the township strictly in the hands of council. Each application will therefore be judged on its own merit.

The policy states a mobile home can be located on a farm if the principle residence of the owner is destroyed, or if the home is needed for use as a residence for a farm hand or other farm related use. No mobile home will be permitted close to a conventional home.

It further states no more than one mobile home will be allowed on a single lot.

Mr. Rose said council's action is an interim measure and will be made formal in the township's official plan.

The bylaw and policy have been included in the plan, passed by the planning board Tuesday.

He said the two documents have been "kicked around" for up to four years by council but action was only taken in response to an increase in the number of inquiries Murray has received in the last six months.

"It was the only way they could get control," Mr. Rose said. They didn't want a mobile sitting next to a $50,000 home."

During previous discussions, councillor Bill Ellis led council opposition to mobile homes, saying, "Some people like to live in mobile homes. But, nine out of 10 people would offer less money for a home with a mobile dwelling beside it."

The township now has one 40-unit mobile park, about eight individual moveable mobile homes scattered throughout the township, and about a dozen on permanent foundations.

Frequent inquiries at township offices, said Mr. Rose, may have been prompted by bans on mobile homes in neighboring townships.

A check with Sidney and Thurlow officers revealed both townships have banned the homes with the exception of either location in parts or under a special $20-a-month licence.

In Brighton Township, a holding bylaw limits location of homes while the township's official plan is updated. A mobile home can be set into place provided it meets building requirements.

Ameliasburg Township doesn't prohibit the homes if they meet specific floor-to-lot-line ratios and are set on permanent footings.

Mr. Rose said Murray council has not prohibited mobile home parks, provided they are well planned.

Two Who Helped Save Life Receive Awards for Bravery

A Picton woman and a former Picton man have received certificates for bravery from the Royal Canadian Humane Association in the rescue of an Oshawa man thrown from his boat when it capsized on Athol Bay about 10 miles south of Picton last August.

The presentation was made Wednesday by assistant Ontario Provincial Police Commissioner N. K. McCombe at O P P District No. 9 headquarters in Belleville to Peter Cole, of Toronto, and Gladys Porter of Albert St.

They were instrumental in the rescue of Leslie Curran, 45, a non-swimmer who was tossed from his 16-foot aluminum boat at about 5 p.m. on Aug. 11. He was not wearing a life jacket.

Both Mr. Cole and Mrs. Porter witnessed the accident from their cottages. Mr. Cole swam to the scene while Mrs. Porter reached the location in a canoe.

Two youths waterskiing in the area, who left the scene later before they could be identified, threw a lifejacket to Mr. Curran but he could not reach it.

Mr. Cole managed to lift Mr. Curran into the youths' boat and Mrs. Porter arrived to apply mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. When that failed, she tried the Sylvester method and Mr. Curran was revived.

Mr. Cole managed to lift Mr. Curran into the youths' boat and Mrs. Porter arrived to apply mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. When that failed, she tried the Sylvester method and Mr. Curran was revived.

Work on New Plaza Ahead of Schedule

TRENTON — Work on the $2.75-million shopping centre in east-end Trenton is one month ahead of schedule and the signing of tenants for store space now is underway, Eric McCullagh, vice-president of developers Group R, said Wednesday.

Mr. McCullagh said construction is ahead of schedule quickly.

It is expected that Trenton's due to good weather that has allowed work to proceed first plaza will be open to the public in the beginning of October, 1975.

It would not reveal Wednesday the names of tenants signed to date.

"A lot of negotiations are under way right now and it's critical that we do it in the proper way," he said, in referring to a release of tenant names.

Mr. McCullagh said the release of some names already has drawn criticism. A Trenton hairdressing salon, opening a second salon in the plaza, complained that an incorrect impression was left that his shop would be moving from its present location downtown.

Recently named the Trenton Town Centre, the plaza will house a K-Mart department store, an expanded Loblaws, a Tamblyn drugstore, and up to 15 smaller shops. Total floor area of the centre is 100,000 square feet.

New Family in Town

Of seven eggs produced by this pair of Greater Canada Geese at the George Wood-house sanctuary on Elmwood Dr., five proved fertile and the goslings were in the water with their parents soon after they emerged from their eggs. The family will probably spend the summer here and the young ones, if they follow their instincts, will breed and raise their families in the sanctuary east of the city. The resident population of Canada geese at the sanctuary now totals 18, with added wild ducks and other species that drop in for a meal or to stay.

THE TUNER
Question:
What Is Sensitivity?
The minimum antenna signal which the tuner can convert into a satisfactory sound signal. Expressed in MV (Microvolts — 1/1,000,000 of a volt) and defined by the institute of high fidelity manufacturers. (IHF) as the signal strength at which the tuner will suppress noise by 30 dB. Sensitivity ratings of 3 MV are quite respectable, values below 2 MV are outstanding. Don't trust figures which do not include a mention of the noise limiting ratio. (Expressed in dB, usually 30 dB).

News Media Ottawa's Scapegoat for That Pay Raise But Public is Not Fooled

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Everything is getting to some of the Honorable Members of Parliament about that one-third pay increase why sentiment of already over-rich fringe benefit they cushed through for themselves while prating about "restraint" for the plebs of the country.

Could be they are having second thoughts about the wisdom or perhaps even the morality of it.

Or possibly they are worrying that the voters may remember when, in three years, comes the next election.

So the natural reaction is to look for a scapegoat.

On Parliament Hill none is handier for the politicians than the news media.

So you have Marcel Lambert, West Vancouver-Howe Conservative MP for 17 years, charging the media with "the unprecedented vitriolic, ill-informed and hypocritical attack" on the parliamentary pay raise — up from an annual pay-day of $24,000 and of "diabolical outbursts of blatant nonsense."

And you have Government House Leader Allan Lawrence, who he proposed the initial increase be 30 per cent, later backing off to a mere 33 per cent, charging the media of "distortion and misleading information" could be inferred so that the taxpayers would get "the true picture" of the Commons.

The "true picture," if it came on unedited, would be so crushingly dull that bored taxpayers would switch even year-round hockey playoffs as preferable.

What may be bugging Marcel Lambert, Mitchell Sharp, and perhaps some others who have been pinning a little "extra" on could be letters from voters.

Letters, for instance, like that of Mrs. R.A. Dimitroff of 128 Winston Boulevard, Toronto, Ontario, who writes expressing her appreciation of her daily newspaper and a word of praise for this column, together with a couple of suggestions.

She proposes that taxpayers be given tax exemptions, on a pro rata basis with the $10,000 tax-free benefit the MPs now enjoy.

"The parliamentarians are entitled to an increase," she writes, "but not retroactively to the last election, and not to the higher tax-free exemption raised from $8,000 to $10,000 on expenses."

As "we all have expenses," she argues, "we are not the shot should get at least a proportionate share of the exemption benefits."

Mrs. Dimitroff's second suggestion is that the "names of all the MPs who voted against the increase be printed, so that we may clip the list and remember who these time comes."

Good idea; here they are:

Two, only two, Liberals: Lands of Toronto-Danforth and Stanbury of York-Scarborough.

Nine New Democrats: Benjamin of Regina-Lake Centre; Broadbent of Oshawa-Whitby; Douglas and Nunziata of Dauphin and the Islands; Hogan of Cape Breton-Canso; Leboucher of Windsor-Walkerville; Peters of Timiskaming; Rodriguez of Nickel Belt; and Symes of Sault Ste. Marie.

One Independent: Jones of Moncton.

Thirteen Conservatives: Bawden of Calgary South; Beatty of Wellington-South; Dafoe of Dufferin-Waterloo; Cossitt of Leeds; Darling of Parry Sound-Muskoka; Diefenbaker of Prince Albert; Hnatyshyn of Saskatoon-Biggar; Lewis of York-South; MacDonald of Kingston and the Islands; McKinnon of Victoria; O'Sullivan of Hamilton-Westworth; Rynard of Simcoe North; Towers of Red Deer; Whittaker of Okanagan Boundary.

Total: 25.

There were 175 who voted in favor: Liberals 101; Tory Conservatives; six Social Crediers; two NDP.

Finally, there were 41 others who "abstained," for varied reasons.

Some like Liberals Prime Minister Trudeau and Fisheries Minister Leblanc were on government business abroad.

Others like Nova Scotia Conservative Paul Albert Cosman were out of the country on parliamentary business.

Still others like Victoria Conservative MP Donald Munro of Esquimalt-Saanich were out of town.

And then there were a number of faint — if wise — hearts who simply "docked" the vote, "just not making it," as one explained in hinting at a temporary case of amnesia, or at least some convenient absence of mind as to not be there when the vote was to be counted.

But there is the list of "the Honorable 25," as former Prime Minister Diefenbaker called the valiant few who voted against it, and have the record to prove it.

OK, Mrs. Dimitroff of Cambridge?

The Imagery of 'Escape'

There is an expression about the world being "too much with us" which needs little amplification.

Its corollary is the escape syndrome rooted deeply within the human breast. It is a feeling that surfaces while looking at those travel brochures, or waiting — as many have been doing in recent days — for the result of the latest Olympic lottery draw.

Or while contemplating a picture of that new provincial park south of Campbellford on County Road 31. Or rather a section of it, for the water and woodland aspect presented in the picture is merely one among 20 acres of terrain now set aside for public enjoyment and scheduled for opening June 24.

It is one more initiative in the cause of quality of life and protection of the environment; and while it is very much a creation of this latter day it is also thought-provoking that this is part of a geological region whose origins go back into infinity.

"A thousand ages in thy sight," says the verse of the hymn, "are like an evening gone."

And a picture from The Globe and Mail in recent days comes to mind. It's the kind of thing you might see in one of the books of Belleville author and publisher Mick Mika — up in Ontario of Yesterday. Straight out of the Victorian age which, whatever its faults or unremembered idiosyncracies, has its own compelling nostalgia.

The picture: a straw-hatted young man and his lady companion, in the dress of the day, her own be-ribboned hat beside her, enjoying a picnic at Niagara-on-the-Lake. Reclining there on the grass, in the classic picnic pose of the day, albeit uncomfortably (one never admitted to that) and yet so civilized.

No litter, no beer bottles lying around, no hint of dead and rotting fish. Just a re-enactment of a more leisurely time, as the lead prelude, as the caption put it, to the Shaw festival's Pygmalion.

And the thought occurs, that in the space of time taken for such a picnic, people today are transported to faraway places, for high-powered business or just so leisurely vacationing. And when it is all weighed in the mind, the image that sticks is of a couple picnicking on the grass The lake, and of some newly set aside parkland, not many miles from here.

"THAT IS CORRECT...THE CANAL WAS OPEN THIS MORNING!"

Jobs and Adventure

Go West young man.

Canada, for all the embrace of the welfare society, still offers opportunities for the individualist and the adventurous.

And even if a job being offered is more of a desk one, such as an ad by the Alberta public works department seeking architects, the copywriter gives it a tinge of excitement as follows: "Alberta is moving so fast these days, tomorrow is often here before we completely finish with today. . ." Shades again of Toffler's Future Shock.

Indeed the remainder of the blurb might be more relevant to another ad, in the next column, for careers with Syncrude. This again, from the public service ad: "That's why we need talented, intelligent, take-charge people like you. To accept challenges, help solve the problems and to grab the opportunities that are all part of a dynamic society on the move. . ."

Think this nostalgic final sentence to that particular paragraph: "To help us help people to help themselves."

Nostalgic, because it seems almost to belong to another age, before the days of the welfare state, the right to strike, confrontation, placards and so on.

Anyway, Alberta wants trained architects, and a variety of professionals from managers to engineers and planners for careers with Syncrude. In 1978, the latter's ad points out, the largest open-pit mine in the world and a 125,000 barrels a day extraction and upgrading facility will begin producing oil from the Alberta tar sands at Fort McMurray.

Funny, but wasn't it only a little while ago that everyone out there, and in Ottawa, was insisting that the task was impossible, or at best, laden with problems. They could have said that when the railroad was going through . . . but Canadians are made of sterner stuff, are they not, today as they were then?

One of these days those tar sands will be producing oil, and in anticipation of that there are these career opportunities.

Belleville, incidentally, has a hand in this. Stephens-Adamson of this city has already supplied two conveyor systems for oil sands work, and has been awarded a further major contract for equipment.

By KEVIN DOYLE

WASHINGTON (CP) — The end of the United States recession, eagerly looked for by the rest of the industrial world, now seems unlikely to be either a sudden or as dramatic as many had hoped.

A number of governments, especially in Western Europe and Scandinavia, are in fact, has been counting heavily on a major upturn before the end of 1975 with salutary effects for transatlantic trade and the health of their own economies.

But the administration here, while stressing with considerable justification that things are not as bad as they were a year ago and have begun improving, is quite psychologically that it now will probably be sometime in 1976 before the full effects of an economic turn-around are felt.

On the surface, there have been a number of promising developments recently. Inflation has been roughly cut by half so far this year from its 12-per-cent level in 1974. The government's index of 12 leading economic indicators jumped by 4.3 per cent in April over the previous month and the number of available jobs is increasing by though 9.2 per cent of the labor force is still out of work.

Nevertheless, there are at least three underlying, vital constituents of any economic upturn which remain sluggish and worrisome to experts here.

The three are new house building and construction generally, business confidence and new investment in production equipment.

Usually, one of the first signs of a recession is fading comes from a increase in this flowing into savings and loan, or mortgage, companies which, coupled with lower prices, leads to a surge in housebuilding. This acts as a spur to other areas of the economy as well.

But this time, construction of homes is increasing at an agonizing slow pace and it seems improbable it will provide the lead economists are looking for.

Meanwhile, the government's general optimism that the economy is on the road to eventual recovery does not seem to have filtered down to leading businessmen. Independent surveys show business confidence at alarmingly low levels with little indication of any immediate improvement.

Slow Recovery from Recession

Academics Eye Salaries

Kilchener-Waterloo Record.

Salary disputes between organized groups of professors and Ontario universities now go on in 15 separate contests, at each of the universities in the province. Each of the 15 has its own local issues, but one factor has come to be common to all of them.

The professors, naturally, want more money, although the detail of their wants may take 15 different forms. The administrations all come to the point at which they have to say, in one form of words or another, "We can't give you more money because the government is not giving us more money."

Therefore, the way of university financing has changed from the era before the Second World War. An Ontario university used to get its revenue from tuition fees, from the income on endowments plus a little extra from government grants.

Now most of the income is in government grants. Even the income from tuition fees comes in large degree, indirectly from government loans, bursaries and grants to students. The administration of a university no longer administers much income of its own. It serves chiefly as a pipeline for money.

At one end of the pipeline the provincial treasury shovels in money collected from taxpayers. At the other end about 70 per cent goes out in salaries. The university itself does not control what comes in at one end and therefore has very little control over what goes out at the other.

A committee of the 15 university presidents, together with representatives of the Ontario Federation of University Faculty Associations, has proposed skipping the pipeline when faculty salaries are being negotiated. The argument is that since the money that is being argued about comes from the government, and goes to the professors, those two might just as well negotiate directly.

Carrying out this idea would require some major changes in procedure. There would have to be one negotiating team to represent all the university faculties, instead of 15 teams. Universities would have to have a single set of bookkeeping methods so that salary costs would be kept separate from the other kinds of expense.

At the University of Waterloo the board of governors has endorsed the idea. The vote was close, 11-8, and the eight who opposed may have been concerned about losing a measure of local control.

But for practical purposes, local control has been lost. It is meaningless for the boards of governors to get out of the middle and let the real antagonists face each other.

Firearms Control an Issue

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

I think: Alderman Keegan is trying to make a political hay when he cries about the 'loose' way firearms can be purchased. He would more correctly call it a situation like Brampton cannot have been without a shudder when I think what could have happened if that student had smuggled a few gallons of gasoline into the school, instead of two rifles, in his music case.

Alderman Keegan doesn't seem overly worried or want more controls over impaired drivers who use their cars and commit manslaughter, like the alleged impaired driver who just recently wiped out five people. He wants more controls on highways is not as sensational or politically sensitive as the idea of more controls on guns.

The media is just as bad when it comes to exploiting a crime of violence, why that's front page material. An accident that kills five people at about the same time is hardly tucked away on page 22, or further back. Yet, these both crimes of violence, in my opinion, and they are both crimes under the criminal code.

Both of these acts represent a disregard for life and for rights and property as well as a disrespect for the law. Although it seems a motor vehicle crime is more socially acceptable and, of course, motor vehicles are registered and the drivers are licensed.

There are adequate laws covering the possession of weapons in both the above cases, if these laws are properly enforced by all concerned and properly publicized.

Rather than new controls, what is needed is a stricter enforcement of existing laws, stiffer penalties for those who choose to break these laws. Less exploitation of violence by the media (aircraft hijacking have almost ceased since they are no longer making headlines), and a lot more respect for the other fellow's rights. A stronger attitude towards people who commit crimes of violence is needed, not just a slap on the wrist and a muttered "the poor misguided fool".

I, also think that Dr. Morton Shulman's idea of purchasing a firearm at Queen's Park is deplorable and in contempt of our present laws. He should be charged for this action. If the men who make our laws have no respect for them, how can they expect everyone else to obey these laws. His action is covered by laws presently in the Criminal Code of Canada about the possession of firearms. However, he is a politician and will likely get off by just trying to prove a point, so nothing will be done.

The last sentence just about sums up the attitude of most people towards persons who break the law; as long as it doesn't affect them or they can turn away from the offence, it's alright, don't bother yourself. However, it's not alright and it is a disgrace that dishonest lawbreakers be brought to task for their actions, because each person is responsible for his actions and conduct.

Today In History

World economic Conference began in London 42 years ago today—in 1933—in an attempt to solve worldwide industrial and financial collapse. The conference failed, largely owing to President Franklin Roosevelt's refusal of European countries' proposal to set up a unrestricted international exchange system based on a fixed price for gold. The U.S. felt this would inhibit its own efforts to raise prices and reach industrial stability.

Meanwhile, the government's general optimism that the economy is on the road to eventual recovery does not seem to have filtered down to leading businessmen. Independent surveys show business confidence at alarmingly low levels with little indication of any immediate improvement.

Scrapped Jets, Aging Imports, and No Replacements Bedevil Air Defence

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

What has been called the "arms deal of the century," the sale of $2 billion worth of F-15 tactical jet fighters to the Royal Saudian Air Force, didn't include any bidding for military aircraft from Canada. We aren't in that business anymore.

But it should recall the time, exactly 20 years ago when the Belgians received several squadrons of CF-104s from Canada in the days when 715 of them had come off the production lines of A. V. Roe Canada Ltd., at Malton, Ont.

The Belgians, as I recall, didn't buy them direct, but through the then-existing MAP (Military Aid Program) organized between the United States and NATO countries to supply funds for their new military hardware.

We sold a few more of the CF-104s elsewhere, but also did the earlier F-86, Korean War period jet fighters to Canada, all at a time when we were one of the world's major military aircraft manufacturers and presumably in the market for export business.

Move ahead a very few years to the famous but controversial 105 Avro Arrow and again we made efforts, this time in Washington, to sell the expensive aircraft outside the squadrons of the old RCAF.

But we bombed in Washington. The Americans said they weren't ready for such a sophisticated aircraft, even though in drawing board stage, were plans for multi-purpose machines, a few of them later junked at the prototype level, much faster than the Arrow.

And then when the Vietnam war came along in which aircraft were used almost as complex as the Arrow, those Canadians still interested in this country being in the arms export business realized the U.S. F-104, to cite only one aircraft, was in many ways a mistake.

Now, we have't got enough modern aircraft to go around in our own dwindling reduced air force. Much of the aging Voodoos C-101s are being grounded over engine failure in one or more, or have crashed recently.

What the general public doesn't know is that some of them were delivered to us after service in Vietnam, their fuselages still streaked with the stains of war, bearing bombing-bombers we didn't need which had to be replaced by the U.S.

This kind of thing, and the fact we no longer can build a production-line military aircraft for ourselves, never mind for rich customers like the Belgians, has to make some kind of criticism as well as resentment about Canadian failure in the aircraft business.

The criticism was and is, why cares? What were we doing in the military aircraft business anyway? Arrows and Arrow meant resources could be used elsewhere in welfare, health and other social sector benefits.

The reasoning is that successeding federal governments never allocated defence funds that way. They are still a sizable portion of annual federal budgets, money and more of our defence money going into housekeeping, pensions and military salaries and the administrative tail.

This means there is no money now to buy replacements not only for the 'Voodoos,' but for the shockingly old Argus long-range anti-submarine patrol aircraft in service since 1958, even from those famous aircraft manufacturers.

So, nothing plus nothing still equals zero. We don't have an aircraft industry per se to build either for ourselves or for export.

Instead we are designing, building and exporting nuclear reactors whose power to kill, destroy and even start a world war was never that of the military aircraft we used to build.

Maybe the nuclear reactors attack our nuclear reactor industry, the Canadian one, by helping down the aircraft one, and with it the know-how? Long may lost jobs and markets?

Library Facelift Means Several New Features

BANCROFT — The proposed changes for the Bancroft Public Library are quickly becoming a reality through the efforts of librarian Bonnie Murdoch and the Lake Ontario Regional Library.

The changes involve reorganizing the children's and reference areas as well as setting up a new desk area.

Mrs. Murdoch says the help supplied by the Lake Ontario library has been of great value to the local group.

The actual physical work of moving books and shelving is being done by employees of the Lake Ontario Library.

Tuesday, four employees from Kingston moved books, cleaned shelves and assisted with the reorganization.

As a result of the Ontario Public Library study done during April, the Bancroft library now will be open additional hours.

Play Stresses Water Safety

BANCROFT — The temptations of having fun with Donna Danger and Mudd were turned down by a group of young Bancroft students Wednesday as they watched the Water Safety Theatre.

The theatre group with Gregg Hunter, Tigger Gerard, Steve Bone, Catherine Cunningham and Bryan Babcock operates on an Opportunities For Youth grant in an attempt to help Hastings County youngsters understand the benefits and fun of water safety.

In a play with all the elements of jokes, high drama and music, the five student players present a program that even the youngest audience can understand and appreciate.

During June, the water safety theatre will visit county schools and in the summer will tour playgrounds and daycamps.

Students Study Flight

BANCROFT — Twenty Grade 6 students from Maynooth Public School had the time of their lives Wednesday as they spent an afternoon at the Bancroft airport.

The students, who had been studying flight and airplanes, went to the airport to watch some of the 10 private planes there take off and land.

Two local pilots, Dr. V. Lehinant and Jack Hattin spent several hours showing the students the principles of flight and take-offs and then took the kids on a flight over the North Hastings area.

Although the students were a little nervous about the aircraft, they were full of enthusiasm after their feet were back, flat on the ground.

Council Votes to Proceed With Arena Repairs

MARMORA — It wasn't unanimous but Marmora and Lake Townships Council voted recently to proceed with plans to repair the Marmora arena.

While he appreciated the financial difficulties in building a new community centre, Councillor Ted Bonter said he couldn't see spending $80,000 on the arena if it was going to be good for only a few years.

Reeve Ritchie Wells said however, he is confident with the type of re-stressing that is planned, the arena will be as strong as it ever was. There is nothing to stop the people who want a community centre from raising $100,000 towards one so it can be built later, Mr. Wells said.

Deputy-reeve John Wilkes said "most people don't realize that a $200,000 debenture over 20 years would cost $600,000."

Reeve Wilkes invited council to go to the arena after the council meeting to see a demonstration by a Toronto firm that might eliminate the need to replace the metal roofing.

The firm manufactures a liquid that when spread on fills all the holes and can be painted and is good for 10 years, the company claims. Otherwise, there is somebody ready to take the metal off for the metal, Mr. Wells explained. The six-man committee is still investigating prices for the metal roofing to get the best deal, he said.

Trailer Permit Bid Lacks Council Support

MARMORA — A request for permission to install another trailer on the Malone School Farm property will be held in abeyance by Marmora and Lake Townships Council until more information is obtained on how many trailers are being planned for the area.

Council recently gave permission to Eric Smolka of Toronto to locate a trailer there, even though council was aware there are already two small trailers on the site.

The most recent request from one of the six joint owners of the property was too much for Council to approve for the one-acre lot.

Deputy-reeve John Wilkes said the owners are using it for cheap summer homes, although the applications had stated the trailers would just be used on weekends. Mr. Wilkes' suggestion that a letter be sent informing the new applicant that if any more trailers are placed on the property they will have to be re-assessed as summer or recreation homes, was approved.

Overtime Approved

MARMORA — Marmora and Lake Townships road maintenance employees have agreed to accept time and a half pay for overtime.

The overtime rate applies only to those hours worked over an average of 35 hours for a two-week period.

Driver Charged

PICTON — An area man has been charged by town police with failure to yield following a two-car collision here Wednesday night.

David Smith, 22, of RR 9, Picton, was charged after a car collided with a vehicle driven by Ronald Bovay, 18, of Picton, at the intersection of Church and York Streets.

Damage to the Smith vehicle totalled $600 while the damage to the Bovay car was estimated at $300. No injuries were reported. The accident occurred at 11.15 p.m.

OPP to Patrol Area Lakes

MARMORA — Ontario Provincial Police patrol boats will police Crowe Lake, Crowe River and Beaver Creek this summer, Sgt. Wilkinson of Madoc detachment has informed the Marmora and Lake Townships Clerk-Treasurer Mabell Gawley.

Mrs. Gawley told the council newly-appointed Sgt. Wilkinson had called at the office hoping to introduce himself to Reeve Ritchie Wells but the reeve was attending county council that day.

Personal Service

Reap some benefits from all the cheques you write.

If you write ten or more cheques a month, consider a Commerce Key Account.

Because at 16¢ each, ten cheques already cost you $1.60. That's for the cheques you write, period.

But an extra 90¢ makes it a whole different story.

With a Commerce Key Account you can get a preferred rate on most consumer loans, (and that's a nice thing to remember). You can get this summer's travellers' cheques for no extra service charge.

You'll have an identification card which allows you to cash a personal cheque, up to $100, at any of our 1600 Commerce branches in Canada.

And that's not all. There is no service charge when you use 24-Hour Cash Dispensers, you'll get special cheques, money orders, domestic drafts, and a whole raft of other services.

All for a flat $2.50 a month. Or, in your case, maybe 90¢ more than you are paying now for cheques alone.

But hold on. We don't think everybody should get a Commerce Key Account. If you're not writing ten or more cheques you could be wasting your money.

And that's exactly what a Commerce Key Account doesn't want you to do.

IT'S YOUR MONEY. MAKE THE MOST OF IT.

Thinking Metric Gives Many Hints

B. PEGGY TRACY
The Canadian Press

If you long to adjust socially, as well as intellectually to Canada's new metric system, then Thinking Metric for Canadians is for you.

Gerald Black, who also wrote Canada Goes Metric, maintains that Canadians can learn to understand the new SI (System of International Units) easily and effectively, or they can spend years as imperial addicts striving to survive in a metric world. And he warns against "numbering yourself in the unfortunate crowd who will become conversion nuts."

For starters he explains that in 1790, following the French Revolution, a committee was formed to investigate an entirely new system of measures, to be based not on any previous system, but rather on some fact of nature.

They decided to use the earth itself as the standard for their new system. A length equal to one-quarter of the earth's circumference was chosen as the starting point, and this length was then divided into 10 million parts. The length of one of these parts was to become the basic unit of length in their new system.

To ensure coherence, the units of mass and volume would also be based in some way on this primary measure. They then named this basic unit a metre, based on the Latin and Greek words for measure. So far so good.

Unfortunately, shortly after introducing the metric system to the world, the French discovered that their surveyors had made a mistake about the earth's circumference. Nothing daunted, they merely abandoned the earth as their standard and redefined the metre. Today it means "1,650 763.73 wave lengths of the orangered line of krypton 86", which should hold everyone for a while. Incidentally, in metric figures, the commas give way to spaces.

The author maintains that memorizing a list of basic metric equivalents is not the way to think metric. Instead of thinking of one millimetre (the smallest commonly used unit of length) as 0.039 370 1 inch, think of it as about the thickness of a dime. A centimetre is about the width of one's fifth finger nail. A metre is a little longer than a yard. The new CN tower in Toronto is 550 metres high.

Heaviness, formerly referred to as weight, is known as mass. A standard paper clip has a mass of about one gram. A nickel has a mass of almost five grams. A pound of butter has a mass of almost half a kilogram.

Temperature-wise, 20 degrees celsius equals room temperature, and your potatoes will boil at 100 degrees. Minus 10 degrees is skating weather. At 30 degrees you can lie out in the sun.

Some People Benefit From Postal Disruptions

OTTAWA (CP) — The public, the private and post-master-general may curse mail disruptions but the managers of private delivery and courier companies voice little dismay.

Some of the customers who rely on delivery and courier companies during mail disruptions never return to the post office.

"Every time we have a postal strike there is an increase in shipments of about 25 to 40 per cent," says Marcel Lalonde, Ottawa manager of Voyageur Colonial's bus parcel express.

"When the mail tie-up finishes 25 to 30 per cent of the new business stays with us."

Companies with a dozen branches in one city will bundle their mail in one package and send it by bus.

"It's cheaper than sending it by mail to the individual offices," said Mr. Lalonde, who estimates a 400-per-cent increase in Voyageur's parcel business in the last five years.

Bus parcel express is used by government, banks, police, credit companies, law firms, the media and private industry.

Some small delivery companies complete the Voyageur service by picking up mail at the office door, delivering it to the bus station and having it met at the other end by an agent who will deliver it to the door.

Spokesmen for two large air courier companies in Ottawa said they were deluged with calls from new clients during the latest mail disruption.

"The phone was ringing off the wall," said Raymond Dureault, Ottawa branch manager of Purolator Courier Ltd. "We did our best and a lot of people brought packets to our terminal because we just couldn't handle all the pickups."

He said the company received an average of 150 extra calls during the strike, in addition to 60 regular and 150 occasional calls it handles daily.

Branch manager Stan Pratt said Bankers Dispatch Corp. (BDC) Ltd. refused new customers during the last strike.

"We took as many as we could handle but didn't want to drop our quality of service," he said. "Instead we provided a service where people could bring the item to our terminal here, we would take it to our terminal at the destination and they would have someone pick it up there."

For a few days BDC's business, usually dependent on banks, increased 100 per cent.

Purolator, which delivers mail by road and by air, has increased its driving staff to 42 from 15 in two years and will soon move to premises five times as large as current ones.

BDC has five-ton trucks deliver mail from Ottawa to Windsor, Montreal and Quebec City each night as well as air couriers between Halifax and Montreal and Montreal and Vancouver.

John Vincent, branch manager of DI-CKOM (Direct Communications) says business generated by mail disruptions is "more of a headache than anything else" for his firm where staff has increased to 21 from eight in six years.

Bill's Parcel Delivery, stated less than three months ago, was doing little business until the last mail disruption. New manager Bill Foubert said his customers are staying.

Pink Lady Courier Service, distinguished by its pink vehicles and pink-coated lady drivers, has increased its staff to 25 from four since its beginning in Ottawa last October.

Though courier services are profiting from mail disruptions none of their spokesmen anticipates taking over the post office.

As one manager put it: "We're not competing with the post office. No one can beat the eight-cent delivery—it's a hell of a good deal."

African Bees Vicious Killers

RIO DE JANEIRO (Reuter) — They have killed dozens of human beings and animals in unprovoked attacks and have disrupted wedding ceremonies and funeral processions. They have even invaded a prison cell where prisoners thought their excruciating stings were a new form of torture and shouted agonized confessions.

They are Brazil's ferocious African bees. And their relentless progress in the direction of North America has provoked United States concern to call for joint defensive measures with Mexico, Canada and Central American countries.

As though in a horror film, 26 African queen bees escaped from the laboratory of genetics professor Warrick Kerr in Sao Paulo in 1956.

The professor had brought 70 bees to Brazil to study cross-breeding and increase local honey production.

Since then this aggressive strain, resulting from mating the first 26 queens with the gentler but less productive local variety, has advanced northwards at 200 miles a year, leaving a trail of terror and death.

Multiplying millions-fold, they have invaded Bolivia, Paraguay, Peru and Venezuela and are moving on Central America.

Entomologists say they will reach the southern U.S. in eight years or less, failing drastic action.

Noted for their swarming habits, unprovoked attacks and savage sting, the bees claimed their first recorded human death in southern Brazil in 1966. The following year a farm worker died from more than 1,000 stings near Rio de Janeiro.

African bees are reported to have killed 12 people in the Amazonas of Yaguarazo in southern Venezuela where they are known as "killer bees."

In the Bolivian town of Robore, a swarm attacked a funeral procession and sent two more people to their graves, as well as dispatching 10 mourners to a hospital.

In Rio de Janeiro, they attacked a funeral procession, causing chaos. In the posh Rio Beach quarter of Copacabana, they set up house in the roof of a movie theatre and went on forays into neighboring apartments until firemen arrived with flame throwers.

A swarm of bees took over the commercial centre of the town of Sorocaba, in Brazil, sending 36 people to hospitals in quick succession.

The bees were eventually overcome by a combination of flame throwers and tear-gas grenades after a seven-hour siege.

These two weapons have been the principal arms used so far to repel attacks.

But entomologists are hoping that by mating the aggressive African male with the gentle Italian queen they can produce a new breed to tame bellicosity and give a high honey yield.

Ironically, the African bee produces up to 80 per cent more honey than the local variety but domestic honey-making has fallen from 30,000 tons annually to 3,300 tons because bee keepers cannot handle the African strain.

As a first step against an invasion the U.S. agricultural department has a $125,000 four-year program, enabling American scientists to study the bee in Brazil.

A group of seven senators led by Robert Dole of Kansas has proposed joint defence measures with Canada, Mexico and Central American countries.

Dole said the spread in the U.S. of the African bee would lose millions of dollars for agriculture. It would seriously affect the pollination of seeds carried out by the domestic variety, he said. Some project calls for a defensive zone in Central America to halt the bee's continental tendency to migrate.

Some scientists have suggested a zone in which all bees would be killed by insecticides and the burning of hives.

The African bee is also moving south into Argentina at the rate of 87 miles a year, killing people and animals. In some areas, as in the northern province of Misiones, the disease has virtually destroyed the beekeeping industry.

Posing by the now-familiar poster, IWY Field Officers Anne Beirne and Sharon Mintz have been sent to the Quinte area as part of the federal government's program to inform the public about the rights and roles of women in Canada.

Why Not Hear About IWY?

By ISABEL HUGGAN

How much do you know about what the federal government is doing to promote International Women's Year?

The first thing that comes to mind for most individuals is the "Why Not?" campaign that has achieved as much unfavorable as favorable attention.

"But the advertising has worked," claims Anne Beirne, Field Officer for the Privy Council's IWY Secretariat. "Instead of the anticipated 10,000 requests for material, the government has had 74,000 letters," asking not only for buttons and posters but for information about the status of women in Canada.

"People really have responded. And I've found that during my last two weeks of talking to groups that there's a lot of interest in exactly what the rights of women are."

Accompanying Anne Beirne is Sharon Mintz, another of the 15 Field Officers hired for a May-October stint of travel and talk to familiarize Canadians with present and future legislation that concerns women. There are five of these young women travelling in Ontario, visiting schools, clubs and shopping centres where they answer questions and distribute leaflets.

"We took a course in Ottawa before we started out," explains Sharon, "to absorb all we could about government policy, and to learn how to talk to groups and how to handle interviews.

"And since we're driving a station wagon together, we took a brief auto-mechanics course just to be safe!"

So far the two young women have spoken to over 1,000 persons, "not counting the ones who've heard us on open-line radio shows," adds Anne.

"Many of the questions we're asked are about day care. Even young people seem involved with this issue. It is crucial because over 50 per cent of women who work now are married. Girls graduating from high school may be in the work force for 25 years — and they're going to need day care service."

Both Sharon and Anne have been surprised at how little knowledge the public has about what current laws state about the equality of women in work situations.

"Women are needlessly fearful about reporting discrimination to the Human Rights Commission," says Anne. "But the point is that the laws provide right now for absolute equality. The law is already on our side."

Both young women are careful to make clear that they are not Women's Libbers or Feminists. "That's the one problem that we run into, that people think IWY is part of a movement. It's not.

"In fact, the United Nations decided to make 1975 Women's Year back in 1950, so it isn't a result of recent radical activities at all. But the fact is that there's probably more publicity now about women's rights because of the lib groups."

"We're going to be in this area for nearly three weeks," says Sharon, and adds that she hopes groups, schools and clubs will invite them to speak and to show the slides and kits they have with them.

Sharon is a graduate in Women's Studies from the University of Toronto, was taught last year in Toronto before applying for her present government post. Anne Beirne, who grew up in Belleville before moving to the west coast where she received an M.A. in French at Simon Fraser University, just obtained her Bachelor of Journalism from Carleton University before starting this job.

The Field Officers are staying at the Sun Valley Motor Inn, and can be contacted at 962-9211.

TOO MUCH MEAT IN YOUR DIET?

The great Canadian "meat gorge"—does it make nutritional sense? Is meat necessary to your health? Is a vegetarian diet more healthful than a meat diet? Statistics show that vegetarians are thinner, in better health, with lower-blood cholesterol, than their flesh-eating fellow citizens—and they may even live longer! Many doctors —and most heart specialists—now recommend that we cut our meat consumption by a full one third. DO WE EAT TOO MUCH MEAT? You'll find some surprising answers in this timely report. MR. AND MRS. WILLY GOERTZ

Goertz — Silsbury

The May 10 wedding of Karen Doreen Silsbury and Willy Goertz took place in Christ Church in a ceremony performed by Canon R.B. Wright.

The bride is the daughter of Frederick and Vera Silsbury and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Willy Goertz of Virgil.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a long-sleeved white silk jersey gown with a scooped neckline, lace bodice and a filmy hood. A long embroidered train flowed from the shoulders, and the hood was also embroidered with matching flowers. The bouquet was composed of carnations, daisies and baby's breath.

The bride's cousin Sandra Carr was matron of honor in a rose pink gown with an empire waist, long sleeves, and scooped neck, with rose lace covering the bodice and cuffs.

Bridesmaid Lynn Livingston wore an outfit identical to the matron of honor's.

The best man was Rolf Erich and the ushers were Bill Carr and Erwin Goertz.

The reception was held in the church hall. The newly-married couple now lives in Toronto.

ARGYLL CHAPTER IODE

At a recent meeting of the Argyll Chapter IODE Joan Birkenshaw, Regent, gave a report of events at the Provincial Annual Meeting she attended at Hamilton. She said guest speaker Billy Watson spoke of his many experiences and travels during the twenty-five years that he has worked with handicapped children.

Delegates were urged to fight for the rights of the handicapped, to encourage revised building codes, which would enable handicapped people to utilize buildings which up to now have been inaccessible to them.

Three IODE scholarship winners were heard and seen at a concert. One, an opera singer completing her fourth year at University of Toronto. The second, an accomplished pianist who is also a composer and accompanist, in her fourth year at the Royal Academy of Music London, England. The third was an artist who also has her own antique shop.

Following The Regent's report, members heard of various Chapter activities. Henrietta Miller represented the Chapter at a dinner given by the Cancer Society. Several members attended a tea given by the Canadian Red Cross Society.

A talk was given by Doreen Anderson, Citizenship Convener, concerning a survey carried out over several years to determine the job opportunities for immigrants.

ALL IN THE FAMILY/by Isabel Huggan

Looking at Life From Both Sides

Have you noticed how everything is dividing into halves?

Nothing is ever as simple as it seems.

Take, for example, my friend Sylvia who is the envy of us all. She has an attribute that's one of the great inst tempoorary virtues. She never perspires.

While the rest of us are mopping our dripping foreheads and spraying ourselves with pore-clogging Gardenia, she smiles placidly from her own arid zone. Dry, tidy and unwrinkled even after a strenuous tennis game, Sylvia never knows the annoyance of sweat.

But nobody's perfect, after all. For, if the truth be known, she has terrible halitosis. She belches, burps and belches from the most ordinary foods, and has lived in embarrassment since puberty, but the brazen cost them $5,000 and they haven't taken a holiday in eight years."

Sometimes, when we look at ourselves, or at or person around us, we forget the two-sidged aspect and see only the good, or only the worst." to the detriment of our good judgement. The secret is being a well-balanced person may lie in being able to shift your point of view back and forth from positive to negative.

You can't play bridge, but you're a great dancer. Get the idea?

You're chubby, but you're charming. And you're charming, but you are definitely overweight. Both sides of the coin, right?

If you adopt this method of looking at life, you'll soon be sifting the fence between two equally true cliches: Everything has its price, but every cloud has a silver lining!

Ann Landers

She Can't Take the News

Dear Ann Landers: I'm 23 years old; have a wonderful husband, three beautiful healthy children, no in-law problems, no money worries, lots of energy and I enjoy my job, home, my needlepoint and my gardening.

So why am I writing to Ann Landers? Because I can't stand to hear about all the depressing things in the world. I never read the news in the paper because I become upset by wars, unemployment, inflation, recession, starvation, murders and rape.

I turn the TV on only for game shows or children's cartoons. When the news comes on, I flip it off immediately.

Since I can do nothing to make the situation better, why let it tear me apart? When the women at bridge club start to talk about the sad state of the world, I change the subject to trivial gossip or I'll tell a joke.

I'm beginning to wonder if people enjoy misery, or do I have a problem? If so, what is it? Can you tell me in a word?—Sunny (Even it I did I wouldn't)

Dear Removed: In a word—immaturity.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm 23 and very fond of a travelling man. He is 10 years my senior but the age difference doesn't bother us. I live at home with my parents and am 100 per cent respectable.

Freddie is the best - looking man I've ever met and loads of fun to be with. He talks a lot about his wife and three children and has shown me their pictures. (Unfortunately they are being divorced soon.) At times I think he considers me a "kid sister"—then, when I least expect it, he treats me like a woman.

When Freddie comes to town every three weeks I have dinner with him in his hotel room because he doesn't think it would be good for my reputation to be seen with him. He has several accounts in this city and he feels it might not be good for his business, either.

If you have any crazy ideas like we are having sex, you are wrong. I take an oath on my grandmother's grave that we've done nothing more than kiss a few times.

But still I feel uncomfortable about sneaking in and out of his room. Freddie says people know but are according to their conscience and not a worry about what people think. If he honestly believes that why does he refuse to be seen with me? What's your advice?—Invisible

Dear In: Wake up and smell the coffee, honey. Stop going to Freddie's hotel room or something WILL happen and you'll be writing me a different kind of letter.

The next time he comes to town, invite him to your home to dinner—to meet your parents. If he refuses, accept the fact that he considers you a hot-room date and nothing more.

Dear Ann Landers: My dad is always calling me "Stupid," "clumsy," "a sloppy kid," and other belittling names. He does this both in front of people and when no one is around. I pretend it doesn't bother me, but it hurts. Should I tell him or keep quiet? (P.S. I cry a lot.)—Misty

Dear Misty: Children have a way of living up to their parents' image of them. I seriously doubt that your father realizes the damage he is doing. See if he reads this. In fact, hand it to him.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband refuses to see his boyfriend's drug traffic. I've been trying to get Bill to stop seeing him. In fact, I'm ill at ease with him and my wife and no longer want to entertain them in our home. Bill insists that what Mr. X does is no concern of his and he refuses to drop them. This bone of contention is making me ill. What can I do to get Bill to see things my way? Your advice is desperately needed.—ILL R.

Dear Ill.: Bill will undoubtedly continue to see his boyfriend chum no matter what I say, but this I can tell you. If Mr. Dope Dealer is called while in the presence of your husband, his name will be in the papers and the mud will stick for a long time to come.

Doris Clark

Teaching Manners to Kids

Lack of training leads children to believe the doors will open for them naturally and without any effort on their part. As they grow older they are careless about being on time for other people regard other people as less interesting than they are themselves, they accept all gifts and courtesies as their rightfulinheritance right; and may never discover what's wrong!

Good manners can be good fun. But helping children to see the reason for them is a long process. Instruction, example, and insistence on proper behavior is part of the good life. Just let the least of these is example!

If you heed a handy guide to smooth behavior, there's great variety of reference material available.

Dear Doris: We have a grocer about the way we see little children eating hot dog, hamburgers, French fries while the father eats steak. In our family (European) we all sit down at the same table and eat the same food.

We have a friendly happy home and we like Canada, but sometimes these things seem strange to us, who value and teach our children as much. Everybody is on the same level when it comes to getting good food, good clothes, and the other necessities of life.

It Makes You Think.

Dear Make You Think: And so it does. Could be the kid asked for the hamburger What concerns me, too, is the unbalanced diet which ignores the fresh, raw and delicious foods which give health to our Canadians.

Dear Doris: Could you please supply us with the name of a firm which manufactures motorized wheelchairs preferably one in Canada?

We have had an ordinary wheelchair motorized but it is a constant source of expense due to breakdowns, although we give it the best care and gentle use. We are interested in one new one we hear about and if repairs could be made here.

Dear Wheelchair: Look in the Yellow Pages under "Wheelchairs" or Orthopedic Appliances."

Dinner Set For Midas

TOKYO (AP) — A Tokyo department store put a 36 piece dinner set on sale Tuesday for $1.4 million. It's made of gold.

An official of the Mitsukoshi department store said that about three years ago "when the price was $1 an ounce, it's swing" the store had planned to sell the items only as a set. "But due to inflation, which still goes on, we changed our mind and are selling the items as separate pieces," he added.

He said the first day's sales were of a coffee cup, a tray and three spoons bought by two customers for a total of $9,330.

JULIE OF THE WOLVES by Jean Craighead George

Julie, years old, had grown up in the Eskimo community first with her father and then her aunt. Now she "Eskimoed" into the arranged marriage with Daniel, a retarded Eskimo boy.

Leaving her life as Julie behind her, she returns to her Arctic wilds as Miyax, daughter of Kapugen.

There she is befriended by a pack of wolves under the leadership of Amaroq, a wise old wolf who comes to look on her as another pack. Miyax learns to communicate with the wolves, share in the cube play and even share their food.

Mrs. George has created a warm picture of a young Eskimo girl, quite reluctant to share the ways of the white man. Having spent a summer studying the wolves in the tundra area of Alaska, the author is able to show their loyalty to this very courageous girl. Young people will enjoy reading about Miyax-Julie as she struggles to find her place in the world.

Once Toast of Europe's Tracks, Boussac Fights Toughest Race

PARIS (Reuter) — For three decades, Marcel Boussac was the boss of racing at Europe's smartest courses from Ascot to Longchamp.

Revenue from his textile empire, built on cotton, bought the sucky little Frenchman 100 champion racehorses which captured him fat purses, international glory and the company of kings, queens and millionaires.

His business colossus of 200 companies included the house of Christian Dior, which dictated world fashion.

Now at 88, a virtual recluse clinging to a tattering empire, Boussac is finding his last race the toughest of all.

Shunning advice and relying on old instincts to guide him over a course that might lead to ruin, he is stubbornly holding out against his bankers, against young executives claiming his throne and against the government of France itself.

Boussac has always run his own business. Whatever the portents of disaster, he is fighting to remain in control of the one-man empire he created from a modest Paris clothing store 65 years ago.

But this Caesar-style rule has failed to prevent losses now estimated to be running at 30 million—almost one-quarter of his group's annual turnover.

Trouble started during the 1960s for France's cotton king faced into th only patient he when cheap cotton textiles from Hong Kong and Taiwan began eating into profits of his big textile group. Synthetic fibres flooded the market, but he stuck obstinately with cotton, source of his fortune.

Boussac, bald and forthright, his bulldog face heavily jowled, had a unique style of meeting early business setbacks. He would simply get out his cheque book and pay from his personal account.

Rather than reduce his 15,000 work force, he labor began selling off his assets.

The strings of racehorses, his racetrack at Saint Cloud west of Paris, the Dior perfume business and part of his banking interests passed out of his hands. He was attacked for preserving with business methods that had outlived their time.

Last year, the plight of the Boussac empire was seriously disturbing not only his bankers, three of the chief banking groups in France, but also Industry Minister Michel d'Ornano, who was worried about the threat of mass unemployment and the possible collapse of a business group which was long an industrial giant.

By threatening to withhold the credit needed to keep his operations going, banking and government officials forced Boussac into accepting an outsider to run his day-to-day business.

Claude-Alain Sarre, 45, former president of the wool textile group Lafitere de Rosbais, assumed Boussac's executive mantle last Christmas. But the old man had no intention of bowing out.

Sarre became president and head of a directorate, but Boussac set up a new supervisory board and made himself chairman, acting as permanent watchdog.

Sarre drew up a plan to save the business. Before it could be implemented, two directors loyal to Boussac made life so difficult for the new president that he resigned.

Now the banks are threatening to foreclose on their pyramid loans. The Boussac fiefdom, which, still includes the Paris newspaper L'Aurore and the racing daily Paris Turf, looks in greater jeopardy than ever.

But still the cotton king hangs on. He is making a last bid to retain power by replacing Sarre with his nephew Jean-Claude Boussac. He himself would call as chairman of the supervisory board and install a personal friend in his place. This would probably ensure his retention of the real power behind the scenes.

For weeks Boussac has said nothing in public. His curious silence is making the French business world jittery. Press headlines run "End of Boussac empire" and "End story of industrial decadence."

Given his determination and toughness—a doctor once called him the only patient he had ever met who had no fear—few experts count Boussac out yet. But most doubt whether he can stay much longer in the saddle.

Hamilton Jury Hears About Eavesdropping

HAMILTON (CP)—Technical evidence on how RCMP taped a series of telephone calls and meetings between Horace (Joe) Rindross and former Hamilton harbor commissioner Kenneth Elliott was presented before the jury in the dredging scandal trial Wednesday.

RCMP officers testified concerning the mechanics of their electronic surveillance of the two men in the spring of 1974.

Elliott, 42, and local businessman Reginald Fisher, 62, are charged with 10 counts of conspiracy, fraud and uttering in connecting with alleged kickbacks and payoffs on construction and dredging projects in the harbor in 1970-72.

Mr. Rindross had earlier testified he went to work for police early in 1974, after receiving a pledge no charges would be laid against him in connection with the matters now being considered by an Ontario Supreme Court jury.

During his testimony a series of tape recordings were played for the jury. The recordings were entered as exhibits pending formal identification by the police officers involved.

Four RCMP officers, Sgt. John Pielachaty, Cpl. David Davis, both of the services section, and Corporals Gerry Grant and John Banks of the commercial fraud section, testified on the actual techniques used in monitoring the conversations and intercepting the telephone calls.

Sgt. Pielachaty testified he flew to Charleston, S.C., in early May, 1974, along with Corporals Grant, and Banks.

There, working with special agent Robbie Robertson of the FBI, taped a series of meetings between Elliott and Mr. Rindros, he said.

The officers explained the workings of the devices used in making the tape recordings.

They said they used both a T-3 transmitter and a Nagra tape recorder. The devices, sometimes together, were strapped to Mr. Rindrees's back with adhesive tape, with the microphone at the front of his body.

In addition, they said they planted a tape recorder in a car rented to Mr. Rindrees's name. The recorder, installed in the front seat armrest, was activated by a pressure switch on the passenger seat that started the device when someone sat down Cpl. Banks said.

The Nagra recorder is about the size of two cigarette packages and weighs about eight ounces. The T-3 transmitted is about half that size.

Sgt. Pielachaty said he used an SX-4 receiver-recorder to pick up signals from the transmitter worn by Mr. Rindrees.

The officers followed the two men to a luncheon meeting and sat outside the restaurant in a car, driving around trying to get a better signal, he said.

The resulting recording was of poor quality, with the conversation sometimes muffled and often half-drowned by lunchtime noises around the restaurant.

Cpl. Grant said it took him between 35 and 40 hours to transcribe the resulting three-hour tape.

The officers also testified they tried to insert a probe through the wall of a hotel room from an adjacent room, with little success.

Clemency Rejected

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau and Justice Minister Otto Lang appeared Wednesday to reject any federal initiative for clemency in the case of imprisoned abortionist Henry Morgentaler.

Mr. Trudeau told the Commons the case is before the Quebec justice department and the province not Ottawa, must decide what will be done.

Mr. Lang said he will not interfere because Quebec appears to be following the law in dealing with the 53-year-old Montreal doctor, who began an 18-month prison sentence in March.

Two juries have acquitted Dr. Morgentaler on separate charges of performing an illegal abortion. Ten further charges are pending and Quebec Justice Minister Jerome Choquette has indicated that all will be tried.

The first jury acquittal was overturned by the Quebec appeal court, a decision upheld this spring by the Supreme Court of Canada.

Mr. Choquette announced Tuesday that he has ordered the Crown prosecutor to appeal the second acquittal.

Fleet Reduced

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The U.S. Naval fleet will be reduced in August to its lowest level since 1940 says U.S. Navy Secretary J. William Middendorf II. The fleet will be down to 481 major combat ships, he said.

Blasting Complete, Centre Proceeding

More than 1,300 pounds of dynamite was used to clear away bedrock for the 70-million Century Place complex and the demolition of Frost and Bridge St. is a project spokesman said Wednesday.

Gord Ferrill, project superintendent, said "there have been no serious wrecking moments."

Blasting conducts this week as crews begin erection of the tower crane and fabrication of forms to be used for the buildings cement footings.

Once complete, Century Place crews will rise five floors high — the first two for commercial use topped with three floors of office space.

Generally there were five holes drilled for each blast and each hole plugged with two pounds of dynamite.

"We were most concerned with the Arrow, Nicol and Bay Force club on Frost St., but it stood up well," said Mr. Ferrill. Over 1,000 cubic yards of rock were removed from the site making way for a nine-foot-deep basement.

Workmen will begin pouring concrete by Monday with building walls coming above ground by mid-July, a spokesman said.

The tower crane should be erected by today and will be used "mainly lifting" of the project, said Allen Devries, project superintendent for Cornerstone Builders Ltd.

Mr. Devries said his firm expects to erect a floor a month with project completion anticipated for a year from now.

Even Rain Doesn't Dampen Spirits at This Year's Fair

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

The Rights turn up again on another Quinte Exhibition — even if rain later made the switchon slightly soggy.

And, behind the sparkle of grandstand shows and midway color, the original intent of such displays still is on exhibit — a meeting place for town and country.

Eons ago when the fair first started — it officially dates itself from 1821 — one motivation for such events was to provide a contact point for rural and urban communities.

Farmers and businessmen put the techniques and results of their trades on show on common ground.

The fair has altered with social change. For one thing, modern communications have put town and country in constant contact. They're not the separate identities they once were.

But the blend of commerce and agriculture still holds strong at the Quinte Exhibition which opened Wednesday morning for competitive entries in everything from ponies to poetry, poultry to pen-and-ink sketches.

There are still the commercial displays.

And the farm folk have come to town — from around county and from the north in uncertain numbers for the fair which runs until Sunday.

By Wednesday afternoon organizers were counting 220 entries of light horses, 175 dairy beef, 250 poultry, even 30 goats, and 46 vegetable exhibits.

And judging of such products as maple syrup, honey and home-cooking was already under way.

The competitions and the hoped-for crowds are all part of the traditional aims.

And, if there's any mistakes about the Belleville Agricultural Society — the Exhibition's sponsor — it states the objectives in this year's catalogue, more than 150 years after the first fair.

The Exhibition is to be a showcase for area products, provide leisure and "act as a bridge between urban and rural people" through events which permit direct contact between producers and consumers, and a "better understanding".

Service Station Entered

Doug Rollins Shell station at Bridge and Herchimer was broken into Wednesday night but city police report nothing disturbed or missing. Entry was gained through a broken window in a garage door and police discovered a hole had been drilled beside the lock in the station door.

Horse Drawing Contest Opening Day Highlight

Approximately 2,000 people dared the rainy weather Wednesday and came to the opening of the 1975 Quinte Exhibition.

Past president Doug Rollins said the attendance could be "attributed to the late afternoon opening and the bad weather". But he said he was pleased with the number of people who ventured out.

Those who attended the grandstand show saw a light and heavy horse drawing match, in a drawing match, a team of horses had to pull a weighted sleigh over a specified distance.

In the light horse class, five teams were entered.

The winner of this competition was Dr. Noble Frankford whose team pulled 4,500 lbs. over a 15-foot stretch. Second place went to Gerry Barry of Madoc and third to Bob Dunford of Stirling.

In the heavy horse draw, Joe McFeeters of Frankford Falls drove his team to first place, drawing 6,100 lbs. Second place went to Clifford Manion of Plevna, Ont.

Dianne Jerrell, the Hastings County Dairy Princess, officially opened the fair by welcoming the crowd and then unlashing the Quinte Exhibition horse.

To complete the evenings entertainment at the grandstand, an aerial trapeze motorcycle act, the Three Albanis, performed daredevil feats over 50-feet above the ground.

At the next grandstand show, there will be competitions for the six and eight heavy horse hitches, the demolition derby, open to the first 40 cars; and the Three Albanis will perform again.

Ridin' High

Is it a bird? It is a plane? No! It's the three Albanis! The three Albanis are an aerial trapeze act performing at the Quinte Exhibition Grandstand Show. They will be there throughout the fair. Other attractions at the grandstand Wednesday were the heavy and light horses drawing competitions and the official opening of the Ex., by Hastings County Dairy Princess, Dianne Jerrell.

Strike Called 'Illegal'

More than 220 members of the International Moulders and Allied Workers picketed International Hardware today calling for wage and benefit increases. Company vice-president Howard Hanton termed the strike "illegal" and said he intends taking action with the Ontario Labor Relations Board. Here, bargaining committee chairman adjust a picket's sign in front of the plant.

International Hardware Workers Walk Out Over New Contract

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

More than 300 International Hardware employees took to the picket lines early today demanding a 75-per-cent pay increase and an unlimited cost-of-living clause in a new two-year contract.

Company vice-president Howard Hanton said in a telephone interview the strike is "illegal" and he intends taking action.

Ray Ryan, bargaining committee chairman, for local 428 of the International Union of Moulders and Allied Workers, said during an interview: "The picnic is over. Strike is the only alternative we have."

The company's last offer came as a total package giving workers a 36.5-per-cent increase including wages and fringe benefits and an unlimited cost-of-living clause in the second year of the contract.

The union said average salary at the plant is $3.50 an hour. The company says the average is $3.71 an hour. The last contract expired June 1.

Mr. Hanton said today "it's still an illegal strike".

He said he received from the Ontario Labor Relations Board a legal strike could be called Friday morning and not today. "I intend taking action — by approaching the labor board," said Mr. Hanton.

Mr. Ryan said he was not sure of the timing of the strike and that "We've been told to go out by our area representative."

"Maybe some of the fellas are superstitious about going out on Friday the 13th," said Mr. Ryan.

The union leader said "We're prepared for a long strike."

The same union last week staged a wildcat strike at the plant to show solidarity behind the union's negotiating committee. Workers returned to their jobs the following day.

More than 80 office workers members of local 4 of the same union, honored picket lines though their contract forbids work stoppages.

Office worker Howard Ron Truman said: "We'll likely stay out for just the one day . . . or until someone comes out of the plant to bring us in."

Builder Hits Province Over Rent Control

Quinte Home Builder Association president Bob Marcotte Wednesday blasted the provincial government for playing politics with rents for apartment accommodation.

"Bringing out a statement for rent controls is just a very popular, political thing to say . . . particularly with an election coming up," said Mr. Marcotte.

"Rent controls are the worst thing that can happen to apartment availability," he said.

Mr. Marcotte says he will approach his association about forming a resolution to city council asking the municipality to lobby against any such provincial action.

While the province has not released specifics of the proposed legislation, what is intended is that landlords will be given a rent ceiling that cannot be exceeded.

"Shortage of rental space is the major point . . . as Belleville is faced with a zero vacancy rate," said Mr. Marcotte. "If you're going to restrict the return on the builder's investment, you're not going to encourage building," and the shortage will become more acute.

"No one wants to see a tenant get gouged with inflated rents but the government should be helping the builder not standing in his way," said Mr. Marcotte.

Train Hits Truck

A half-ton pickup truck, reported by OPP officers to have been left unattended at the Wallbridge Rd.-CN crossing was struck by an eastbound train at 1:40 a.m. Thursday and demolished.

The truck is registered to an owner in the Niagara Peninsula. Total damage to the truck — a writeoff — train and tracks is estimated at $8,000.

Province Studying Home-care Program

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

The ministry of health, in co-operation with the Ontario Thoracic Society, is developing a pilot home care program for patients with chronic respiratory diseases.

Dr. Arthur Scott, president of the society and director of the Respiratory Failure Unit at Hamilton General Hospital described the project in an interview, after addressing the annual meeting of the Hastings - Prince Edward Lung Association.

Disclosure of the communities being considered as possible sites could not be released, said Dr. Scott, because it might jeopardize the project which is to begin next fall.

Dr. Scott said he has been working closely with ministry of health doctors to determine the scope and place of the project which will attempt to help patients resume active participation in family and community roles.

"Currently there are about 16,000 people ill with chronic respiratory diseases in Ontario who only receive medical attention when suffering from acute illnesses," he said after the meeting.

"We need a program which co-ordinates the activities of patients to learn to live with his sickness and not become frustrated," he said.

The communities being considered for the program will be judged by certain criterion, he said, among them the willingness of the medical and volunteer groups to assume an active role, the existing home care program and the geographical proximity to the teaching community that will administer the program.

Trustee Urges Stand On Strike Issue

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

The Hastings County Board of Education will have to take a stand on the issue of principal and vice-principal rights, says its vice-chairman Miriam Graham, who represented her board at this week's Ontario Public School Trustees' Association (OPSTA) at London.

Mrs. Graham said Wednesday the OPSTA will circulate questionnaires to each board of education in the province during the next few days. The questionnaires will be designed to gather a direct response from each board on the issue.

The question was raised during the convention based on Bill 100, the new proposed legislation which allows principals and vice-principals to form their respective federations but does not allow them the right to strike with their fellow member teachers.

Mrs. Graham said the 300 delegates at the OPSTA meeting were "completely schizophrenic" on the issue.

In actual fact, they did pass a resolution to ensure their management rights, but retained the position to give principals the right to strike.

Mrs. Graham said many OPSTA delegates felt the 300 a "black and white" approach to the problem, rather than "the compromise in the legislation".

She said OPSTA wants to know how each board feels about the issue whether the vice-principals and principals should even belong to the federation or if they should be considered management and form a special bargaining unit.

Mrs. Graham said the matter would come before the Hastings County Board of Education next meeting. The popular argument against the proposed legislation says that principals are the principal teacher not an administrator in the schools.

Alarm Box

Belleville firefighters responded to the following calls for assistance between 8 and 8 p.m. today:

4.35 p.m. — Garage fire behind started by children at 41 Olive St. No damage estimated available.

2.59 a.m. — Smoke investigation at 27 Murney St.

Home Warranty Program Expected by End of Year

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

A provincial government home warranty program will provide needed security for home owners, says Bob Marcotte, president of the Quinte Home Builders Association.

Currently "some builders offer no warranties at all," he said.

The home builders association complies with a standard warranty issued by the Housing and Urban Development Association of Canada. But, "there are a variety of interpretations of that, so still leave the home owner with the cost of repairs.

"We're all for the provincial program," said Mr. Marcotte, speaking for his association.

Consumer and Commercial Relations minister Sidney Handleman said recently he expect to introduce the program for government approval in the house's fall session. The warranty is expected to cover both materials and workmanship.

For insurance protection, the buyer will pay an annual premium of $100.

"If the builder doesn't fix it the premium will use the pool of collected premiums to hire contractors to make necessary repairs," said Mr. Marcotte.

"I can't speak for all Quinte area builders but mentioned the association all have warranties," he said.

"I think the province's program has to work," he said. "It's needed."

Federal urban affairs minister Barney Danson also said in the Commons Wednesday, a federal warranty program will likely be in effect by the end of the year.

Ontario minister of housing Donald Irwin said the province will proceed with its warranty program if the federal scheme is not in force by November.

Civic Activist Speaks To Accounting Group

Self admittedly, Bill Hockley is no authority on anything but that doesn't stop him from making a point.

The son of an "articulate father and a mother who took the direct approach," Mr. Hockley says "you don't have to be an authority to see what's wrong."

He made these remarks following a speaking engagement at the Bay of Quinte Chartered Accountants Association meeting Wednesday night.

Mr. Hockley is the manager of the Quinte Information and Assistance Centre — formerly the Citizens Bureau. Previously, he was a police officer in London and came to Canada to serve with Canadian Armed Forces.

In one of his more brief speaking performances, Mr. Hockley charmed the group into quiet submission with a 20-minute speech peppered with colorful anecdotes and criticism of the Canadian system he said "is off the tracks".

"I don't know why they picked me as a guest speaker," he said following the meeting. "I guess I was the only one they could get."

The calmness of Mr. Hockley's speech though only lasted until the question and answer period when one association member became ticked off with Canadian criticisms and asked the speaker why he bothered leaving England to come to Canada.

It was not until after Mr. Hockley chided the member as "one of the Canadian ostriches sticking his head in the sand," that he found he was speaking to Gerry Fursall, chief assessor for the federal income tax branch in Belleville.

A central point in Mr. Hockley's talk was the danger of allowing too many immigrants into Canada who have no intention of becoming Canadian and seek only to take the Canadian benefits.

The tax assessor commented: "everybody's grabbing for everyone else's wealth."

"Look who's talking," chorused a number of accountants.

Thirteen Girl Guides of the Carmel Company of Guides received fire safety badges Wednesday night from Captain Bruce Goldsboro of the Thurlow Volunteer Fire Department.

In return, the guides presented Mr. Goldsboro with a contribution toward the Guide Fire Safety Week.

The occasion was the guide company's mother-and-daughter dinner held in St. Mark's Church Hall, Canniffton.

Guests of the guides who are based in Harmony School, were brownies of the First Corbyville Bibwnie Pack.

Camera Club Ends

Belleville Camera Club completed its season's activities Sunday with a field trip to the south and eastern shores of Prince Edward County, accompanied by several members of the Trenton Town and Country Camera Club. During a meeting in Picton, Sid Rigley of Simpsons-Sears Ltd. sented his company's trophy to the Belleville club for accumulating the most points in Canada-wide competitions this past season.

Demand for Maple Syrup Strong Despite Price Hike

Canada is in no danger of losing maple syrup as a food in its nationally, symbolic identity.

Like everything else the price will go up. But the demand for Canada's high-grade natural syrup will stay intact.

That's the indication that comes — between syrup sips — at the Quinte Exhibition from a man who should know.

Jim Purvis is dipping syrup because he's a judge for the exhibition, brought in all the way from Kemptville to select winners at the fair's maple syrup contest.

He's a judge because of his credentials: For one, Ontario's Maple Syrup Man of the Year in 1973-74.

Mr. Purvis has been producing the sweet stuff "on and off" for 45 years.

He comes to the Exhibition after a 1975 syrup season in which unco-operative weather cut production.

But not demand — despite price increases.

"I could have sold 10 times as much as I did this year. I couldn't beat consumers away with a stick," he says.

The price rose about $3 to $14 a gallon.

But, because of production costs. the price — and "this is my own personal opinion" — some day could hit $20 a gallon.

But he doesn't see that as a threat.

Canada still is the world's top producer of the product.

"And there's no substitute for real maple syrup," says Mr. Purvis as he turns once more to the contest entries from local producers.

"And by the way," he adds, "this is a very good display of it here at this fair."

How Sweet It Is

Jim Purvis, of Kemptville, has a taste for maple syrup — in more ways than one. He's been producing it for years — he was Maple Syrup Man of the Year in 1973-74 — and Wednesday was judging the entries of local growers at Belleville's Quinte Exhibition.

South Hastings Teams in a Jam

Players in the South Hastings Baseball League must all be eating at the same restaurant before each game. The league is right in the midst of its most competitive season in years and Wednesday night's action was no exception to the fairly consistent standards that have been set so far.

Latta spoiled a bid by Melrose to move into sole possession of first place when they scored three runs in the seventh inning to upset the visiting contending club 5-4. In the other game, Shannonville Concrete pulled into a tie with Melrose and Read for the premier spot in the standings when they outlasted Shannonville 13-11. All three teams are tied with nine points apiece.

Melrose scored twice in their half of the first and second innings, but were shut out over the remainder of the game by Latta pitcher John Hall.

The hurler fanned six and gave up five base hits. Melrose touched him for six hits. Terry McTaggart took the loss. He gave up eight hits — all singles.

Three one-baggers, a bit batter and a walk in the final inning gave Latta the win. Wayne Harrison led the visitors at the plate with a pair of singles. Glen McMechan had a home run for the losers and teammate Larry Pascoe got two singles.

Shannonville outhit Plane's 10-7, but errors cost them the game as they hooked the ball six times in the early going.

Plane's now 4-0-1, scored 11 runs in the top of the first inning and one in tribute to put the game away. Included in their quick surge was Ralph Plane's grand slam home run.

Shannonville got three in the first, bounced back with six in the fifth and added a pair in the bottom of the sixth, but that's as far as they got as the daylight ran out.

Bob Rabb opened the win with relief help from Larry Adams. The pair whiffed five and walked three. Glen Barberstock and Tim Reid toiled for the losers.

Plane added a single to his circuit blast to rake in RBI output in the contest to six. Adams had a single and a double for the winners and Rabb singled twice.

Wayne Sager and Bob Barberstock each had a homer for Shannonville.

Constellation? Nothing New

What is there left to say about Constellation Carpet's ace, Ken Kerik, except when you're hot, you're hot!

He's pitched every game the club has played this year. They're undefeated in the Belleville Industrial Softball League. They're in first place in the league's East Division. Black Diamond is their closest competition and the Cheesemen are nine lakes behind them.

Constellation hit the half way mark in their regular schedule Wednesday night and Kerik earned the victory. His club's 10th in a row.

In other games played Wednesday night, the Post Office stopped Bell Telephone 3-1 to stay atop the West Division. Their closest rival is CCC. The Unemployment Insurance Club trounced the Lenders 19-8 to raise their point total to 11 — just two back of the Post Office.

Kerik gave up seven hits and struck out six while striking his 10th win of the year. He also helped his own cause with a home run and a single. His teammates were just as productive at the plate as they touched loser Parry Soule for 18 hits.

Neil Goyer had a pair of doubles and a single. Chris Green punched out three singles and Bob Reid collected a pair. Wayne Reid added a double.

State Farm Hot

TRENTON — In an Eastern Ontario Baseball Association bantam game halted by darkness in the top of the eighth inning, Trenton State Farm ran its record to 5-0 with a 7-0 defeat of Kingston Lions here, Wednesday.

The winners counted a pair of runs in each of the first and third innings and added three in the sixth.

Chris Walsh went the distance to get the win on a strong four-hitter. He claimed 17 on third strikes and hit one, the first batter in the game.

Brian Hanson drove in three runs with a pair of doubles. Kevin Brennan and Walsh each banged a pair of singles with one each for Terry Coneans, Danny Hamilton, Dan Scott and Dave Wilkinson.

Nicked for 10 hits over the route, losing pitcher Ian Stalker struck out 11 and walked six.

Diminutive third sacker Barry Shaw picked up half his team's hit production with a pair of singles. The other Kingston hitters were Wayne Marquette and Paul Stevenson with a single apiece.

Tuesday night at Parkdale in Belleville, Trenton and Brayes were trounced 24-6 by Belleville Elliott Motors in an EOBA tyke contest.

Robert Boomhower's pitching stopped the visitors. The winning pitcher got loads of hitting support from bantam who rattled out 27 assorted base hits.

Bradley Gray slammed a home run, a triple and two singles for the home side. Jim Cook belted a homer and added a pair of singles; Bill Harvey met the ball for two doubles and two singles and Andy Salyn checked in with a double.

Tops for the visitors was Mick Scott with a pair of triples.

Italo Falls

TRENTON — Saddled with their first loss of the young Bay of Quinte Soccer season here, Wednesday, Italo Italo Canadians came out of the 4-1 reversal at the hands of Belleville Olympics satisfied they had given a good account.

"We made some defensive errors and against a team like Olympics, that is fatal," Italo Canadian Italo manager Enie Bormanville.

"But we're a young team and we'll improve as the season progresses," he said.

Italo had plenty of chances in this one but when Olympics' goalie Gary Donovan wasn't pulling off key saves, the forwards came up against a solid Olympics' defence.

The losers didn't get a ball past Donovan until the lateness connected from the penalty spot late in the game. It was Iasenna's fourth successful penalty shot this season.

Zdravko Pundic potted two Olympics' goals. Bob Watson scored one and Kevin Kirby sent a perfect cross to Ernie Brown who connected late in the first half to open the game's scoring.

In Brighton, the home side edged CFB Trenton 2-1.

Vance aided his own cause with a pair of singles and a double. Scott Bowen cranked a couple of home runs and two singles and Tim Duvall had a homer. Dale Vance and Brad Rose singled twice and Terry Pearce had a double and a single.

Fletcher Bull was the only batter to get more than one hit off Vance. He collected two singles.

Hungry Sluggers Earn Barnbusters

The Red Barn is standing behind the Belleville and District Ladies Softball League by offering a barnburner for every player that connects for a home run during the regular season. The way the girls are hitting, they're all hungry. Wednesday at the Alemite there were four more circuit swats added to the Red Barn's expense account bringing the total to 16 in the young season.

Mary Reid and Sharon Alexander rounded one apiece for Belleville Yardmen as they dropped Lakeside Oxygen 14-1 and Norma May and Mary-Anne Sills created one each for Belleville Broadloom as they dumped Ellis Construction 14-2.

Shirley Gulliver started for the Yardmen and Sue Morton came in and threw the final four innings. They combined to sit eight batters down on third strikes, while walking four and giving up four hits. Norma McGourty took the loss allowing 12 hits.

Alexander added a pair of singles to her homer and Reid punched out one safety. Helen Demille had a double and two singles and Carole McFarlane tripled.

McGourty, Agnes Fiskle, Denise LaPalm and Bonnie Hanna each added one for the losers.

Sills made her first pitching appearance of the season for Belleville Broadloom. The chucker gave up 10 hits, walked eight and struck out one.

ESCAPES INJURY

NEW YORK (AP) — Jockey Ron Turcotte, who rode Secretariat to racing's Triple Crown two years ago, apparently escaped serious injury Monday in a spill during the ninth race at Belmont Park. Turcotte, riding Equalizer, was in contention with Restless Ruler, Tingle King and Devil's Bag approaching the finish of the 1 1-16 mile race. Equalizer stumbled and fell over, throwing Turcotte clear. Restless Ruler went on for Jacy Velasquez' fourth win of the day.

OVERTURNS SUSPENSION

BALTIMORE (AP) — A judge overturned Monday the suspension of three veteran Maryland jockeys indicted on federal charges of plotting to fix a race at Bowie race track last February. Supreme Bench judge Solomon Liss restored the riding privileges of Luigi Saccheri, Peter Pellegrino and Eric Walsh, a native of North Sydney, N.S., ruling that the Maryland State Racing Commission violated the jockeys' constitutional right of due process by failing to grant them a hearing before suspending their licences.

Belleville Product Part of Major Trade

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Canadian Football League have traded Tony Gabriel and Bob Richardson in separate deals.

The newspaper says that Gabriel will go to Ottawa Rough Riders with Gary Kuzyk. In return, the Tiger-Cats will receive lineman Doug Collins and backs John Krueger and Terry Wellesley, of Belleville.

Richardson, who plays both tight end and defensive tackle, has been sent to Saskatchewan Roughriders for Canadian tight end Lawrie Skolrood.

The Globe and Mail said official confirmation of both trades was held up pending notification to the players involved.

Both Gabriel and Richardson had failed to come close in reaching a contract agreement with Hamilton general manager Ralph Sazio. Neither was willing to play out his option and had intended to announce their retirement Friday if trades were not made.

Skolrood, a 23-year-old who attended North Dakota University, caught 10 passes in his rookie season with Saskatchewan last year.

Richardson, a Hamilton native, was an all-Canadian in 1973, his rookie season.

Gabriel, 26, was named the outstanding Canadian in the league last season when he caught 61 passes for 795 yards and three touchdowns.

Injuries Plague Rookie; He'll Give Up Football

TORONTO (CP)—Fred Ryall, a 25-year-old junior prospect at Toronto Argonauts' rookie camp, will end his young football career after suffering his second head injury in two seasons.

Ryall, the most valuable player for Lakehore Rams of the Ontario Rugby Football Union Junior league last season, was taking part in one-on-one tackling drills Wednesday at the Canadian Football League club's camp.

Ryall hit wide receiver Chuck Herd and suffered a concussion and badly-bruised muscles in the back of his neck.

A year ago, Ryall hit Ed Molinsworth in a similar drill. He swallowed his tongue, was partially paralyzed, and was sent to hospital with a pinched nerve in his neck and concussion.

Doctors have told Ryall that another head injury might mean serious trouble.

"I don't want to take a chance. I have other interests," said Ryall. "I'm no hero."

Ryall conferred with head coach Russ Jackson and Jackson endorsed his decision to give up the game.

Ryall was one of nine juniors invited to camp. Canadian rookies are not put under contract—unlike their United States counterparts—and like all rookies are paid $18 a day.

"I guess that's not a lot of money to risk your neck, but if you're a rookie the money comes after," said Ryall.

Legionaires Hold Chiefs

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — St. Catharines Legionaires held off a third-period rally by Mississauga Chiefs to win their Ontario Lacrosse Association Junior A game 15-11 Wednesday.

Legionaires held a 13-7 lead after two periods, but Mississauga cut the margin to 13-10 with three quick goals at the start of the third. St. Catharines was able to maintain the two goal spread the rest of the way.

Willie Platt and Tom Patrick had four goals each for St. Catharines, with Mike McGrath getting two, Les Bartley, Roger Dunkley, Steve Miller, Tom Dearborn and Barry Newbound each scored single goals.

Rick Halliday, Rob Gemmell and Kim Crossman each scored two goals for Mississauga, with single goals by Dave DiRoo, John Campbell, Randy Russoniello, Tom Dougclave and George Chandler.

Now, Women in Sports Adopt A Bill of Rights

NEW YORK (AP) — A group of prominent women sports personalities have adopted a 10-point Bill of Rights demanding "our equal share in a more equitable sports world."

The resolution calls for a restructuring of ruling sports bodies, such as the International Olympic Committee (IOC), the International Lawn Tennis Federation (ILTF) and the various athletic federations which rule world sports. It demands equal representation for women on such bodies, as well as on boards which pick hall of fame honorees in various sports.

The resolution also asks that the print media give proper recognition to women and that the AP would judge the competence of women rather than hire "on the basis of good looks."

It asks that manufacturers of toys and games refrain from appealing to the "so-called masculinity of the toy or game" by eliminating sexist language on the package.

Gladys Heldman of Houston, founder of World Tennis Magazine and mother of pro tennis player Julie Heldman, who helped draw up the paper, said: "We are placing our bill of rights with the state department and sending copies to all of the ruling organizations and federations as well as the media."

"We hope to reach millions in our move to give women a truly equal opportunity in the world of sports."

Sheard's Score The Best Ever

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (CP-Reuter) — Alison Sheard of South Africa shot the lowest score ever by a woman on St. Andrews' Old Course Wednesday, a six-under par 70 in qualifying play for the British women's open championship.

The 25-year-old South African stroke play champion had an eagle and five birdies in her round and wound up the two-day 36-hole qualifying play in a third-place tie at 150 with Australian Sandy McCaw.

Defending champion Carol Semple of the United States, with a 71, was at 144, five strokes better than compatriot Nancy Syna.

Three Canadians were also among the leaders.

Dale Shaw of Sidney, B.C., cracked a 76 for a 158. She was followed by Liz Hoffman of Toronto at 160 and Vancouver's Carol Anne Cleveland at 161.

Young Players Going But Giants Producing

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A few years ago, San Francisco Giants' manager Charlie Fox boasted: "Every team in baseball wants our young players." Now it seems just about every team in baseball has them.

A couple of guys named Willie, namely Mays and McCovey, and Orlando Cepeda started the exodus from the city a number of seasons back. True, they were veterans when years and salaries were catching up with them as far as the Giants' coffers were concerned.

But after that, the kids began escaping under orders of the front office. Trades sent Bobby Bonds, Ken Henderson, Dave Kingman and Garry Maddox packing—and on Wednesday, as Ed Goodson was packing, too, heading to Atlanta in a swap for Craig Robinson.

"I don't know what happened. It's weird. We're all gone," Goodson said. Well, not quite. A few of them are left. And on Wednesday, one of them kept the Giants within 4½ game of first-place Cincinnati in the National League West.

Gary Thomasson's three-run homer in the fourth inning carried San Francisco to its fourth victory in five games, an 8-3 romp over Philadelphia Phillies. Willie Montanez who arrived from Phily when Maddox headed East—and Chris Speier added two runs batted in apiece. Greg Luzinski knocked in all three for the Phillies with a homer and a two-run single.

In the rest of the National League, Houston beat Pittsburgh 5-1, New York downed Los Angeles 3-1, Cincinnati defeated St. Louis 3-1 and San Diego downed Montreal Expos 3-1. The Chicago at Atlanta game was rained out.

Larry Dierker fired a six-hitter to issue Pittsburgh's lone hits and Rose Cabell tripled to highlight a decisive two-run second inning that gave the Astros their second consecutive victory after a nine-game tailspin.

Mike Marshall is no longer Los Angeles' ace in the hole. The Dodgers' top reliever, last year's Cy Young Award winner in the National League, put himself in a sticky hole against the Mets when he walked Rusty Staub and wild-pitched him to second.

Then Mike Phillips took over. He dropped Marshall's record to 3-4 and raised his earned-run average to 3.56 with a ground single to right that scored Staub and put New York within half a game of first-place Pittsburgh in the East.

San Diego's Rich Folkers held Montreal's Dennis Blair and thank Chuck Taylor for his loss.

Blair walked the bases loaded in the sixth inning, then Taylor came over and gave up run-scoring fly balls by Mike Ivie and Tim Foli.

Folkers, meanwhile, was making his first start since 1971. And he stuck around until the ninth inning.

Then Frisella balled him out a jam, leaving the bases loaded with Expos.

Don Gullett chalked up his fourth consecutive victory and his eighth of the season—and he did it with both his arm and his bat.

He checked St. Louis on seven hits, losing a shutout on Ted Simmons' ninth-inning homer, and doubled to trigger the Reds' two-run third inning.

Olympic Games

Budget Release Is Postponed

MONTREAL (CP) — Publication of the over-all budget for the 1976 Olympic Games, scheduled for this week, has been postponed until after a July 3 meeting of the executive board of the organizing committee, a spokesman for the committee said Wednesday.

Revelation of figures, giving a breakdown of capital expenditures for construction of the Games' facilities and projected revenues, had been expected today. The figures were expected to show a deficit of almost $250 million on an estimated over-all outlay of $628 million.

The spokesman said that no final figures would be released prior to the July meeting "because the board wanted to go over them again."

He said the federal cabinet currently is studying measures to increase revenue for the Games through extension of the current Olympic coin program.

Broughton Winner

SOREL, Que. (CP) — Gary Broughton of Montreal, Que., boxing champion, stopped Jean-Claude Leclair of Montreal at 2:114 of the seventh round on their scheduled 10-round bout Tuesday night.

The win before 1,753 fans brought Broughton's record to 27 wins and three losses while the loss kept Leclair's record at 19 professional bouts.

Leclair's manager, Gerry Drouin, threw in the towel with his fighter dazed and reeling after being shaken by a right hand while trying to punch his way out of trouble.

Comedy Opens At Festival

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP) — "If this were played upon a stage," says a crony of Sir Toby Belch in Shakespeare's Twelfth Night, "I could condemn it as an improbable fiction."

An improbable fiction the story certainly is, but Shakespeare makes of it one of his most popular comedies, with the drunken Sir Toby, his grotesque companion, Sir Andrew Aguecheek, the pompous steward Malvolio, the court jester Feste, a pair of separated twins, one of them a girl masquerading as a boy, and a duke madly in love with a countess, who turns her love in the masquerading girl.

For many, Shakespeare's lines—from the opening, "If music be the food of love, play on"—are so familiar that it takes special flare by a director and his leading players to pump new life and laughs into the text.

But David Jones, newly-named artistic director of the Royal Shakespeare Company's Aldwych Theatre in London, did that Tuesday night when Twelfth Night joined George Bernard Shaw's Saint Joan in the 23rd annual Stratford Festival.

Brian Bedford, making his Stratford debut, played Malvolio in puritan dress in the production set by Jones in Jacobean times, a few years after the death of Queen Elizabeth when the roundheads were in fashion and puritans were a butt of jokes in aristocratic society.

Jones and Bedford won acclaim from most of the opening-night critics.

Dave Billington of Southam News Services wrote that it took, two Americans—Bedford and Kathleen Widdoes, who played the boy-girl Viola—and an English director "to return the Stratford Festival to one of those rare illuminated moments of glory to which a festival like this is supposed to be dedicated."

"What a cast," Billington said. "They dove like joyous dolphins, they splashed like happy seals and they spoke as though their tongues had all been blessed by fire God to whom every actor must pray before daring to take fo the stage armed only with their skills and a memory stuffed with Shakespearean text."

Along with Shakespeare's mastery of comic lines and situations, and the cast's mastery of the usual comic twists, Jones brought direction to the production that heightened the occasions for laughs.

Nothing could be more natural, when Sir Toby comes home at midnight, fumbling drunkenly with the heavy door latch, that the dogs should bark.

But even that entrance is topped by his drinking compasion, Sir Andrew Aguecheek, played by Frank Maraden. He burst through the door on to the Stratford stage balcony with such a lurch that some in the audience screamed for fear he might fall over the brink.

Tom Kneebone, who made his Stratford debut Monday night as the French dauphin in Shaw's play, was a subdued, worldly-wise Feste, the court-cum's court jester, in Twelfth Night.

Canadian Portrays U.S. Athlete

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Here-feel this," says actress Susan Clark, offering a biceps with the pride of a 10-year-old who has discovered physical culture. "That's muscle."

The Canadian-born beauty has just finished portraying Mildred (Babe) Didrickson, generally considered the greatest woman athlete in American history.

The MGM film is called Babe, a two-hour feature that will appear on CBS-TV next fall.

Miss Clark stars as the Texas girl who won two gold medals in the 1932 Olympics, became the best woman golfer and died of cancer in 1956, at 42.

Alex Karras, former Detroit Lions tackle and TV sidekick of Howard Cosell, plays the Babe's husband, George Zaharias, wrestler turned sports promoter.

"I had never heard of Babe Didrikson before this part came up," Susan Clark admitted. "I know her now, and I am filled with admiration for what she did and what she had to fight. She tried to accomplish for women athletes the same things that Billie Jean King has managed to do. But the time wasn't ripe for Babe.

Growing up in Toronto, Susan Clark went in for skating in the winter, archery and volleyball "in the summer. In California she became "an adequate swimmer and a bad tennis player." But she was not prepared for the ordeal of training for Babe.

Her mentors were Charles Debus, women's track coach at UCLA, and golf pro Mickey Sholdar. Each put her through three hours of daily workouts.

"The running was the toughest part," she said. "I was out on the UCLA track at 6 a.m. At the end of three hours, my legs were like rubber," she said.

Until now, Susan Clark's career has largely been devoted to supplying romantic interest for male-dominated movies: Madigan (Henry Fonda, Richard Widmark), Coogan's Bluff (Clint Eastwood), Valdez is Coming (Burt Lancaster), Tell Them Willie Boy Is Here (Robert Redford), Skin Game (James Garner), The Dark Tower (Gene Hackman) and the Disney film, The Apple Dumpling Gang (Bill Bixby).

The principle of restricted choice can make a lot of guesses really educated ones.

South is looking at eight aces tricks and needs a spade trick to get to nine. The queen of hearts lead doesn't improve his prospects. If hearts break 5-3 the opponents are likely to cash three heart tricks, before South has time to set up a spade.

In any event South decides to win the first heart because the opponents might shift to diamonds. He leads a spade toward dummy. West, a good player ducks and dummy's jack falls to East's king.

A second heart comes back. It is allowed to hold and a third heart knocks out dummy's king. South takes the good ace and gets two diamond discards from West and a heart discard from East. Now he leads another spade.

West plays low again and the moment of truth has arrived. Is it a pure guess? No, it isn't. The odds are just about two to one in favor of playing the queen. The reason is that if East had ac-king he might well have played the ace, not the king. If he had kingdo he would have had to play the king.

Nuclear Physicist Working for Peace

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP) — A Canadian nuclear physicist who switched to work for peace has played a prominent role in the establishment of the New Zealand Peace Foundation.

He is Dr. Norman J. Alcock, founder and president of the Canadian Peace Research Institute.

Dr. Alcock was invited to New Zealand to give the first Norman Kirk Memorial Peace Lecture established in memory of Norman E. Kirk, New Zealand's former prime minister whose death last year in his early 50s shocked the country.

In interviews and discussions during his stay in New Zealand, Dr. Alcock emphasized the need of small and medium nations to working for peace.

"If we had 100 years, there is no question that we would be moving comfortably into a world of peace," he said. "But we haven't got 100 years.

"The role of countries like New Zealand and Canada could be crucial. The two super-powers are almost insane in arms.

"If we are going to break this vicious circle, it will have to be done by the lesser powers."

Dr. Alcock suggested the establishment of peacekeeping nations should earmark their armed forces over for the United Nations. Half the money saved could go towards the development of Third World nations.

He named New Zealand, Canada, Sweden, Austria, Tanzania, and Sri Lanka as countries already thinking in "more world federalist terms."

Dr. Alcock added: "New Zealand has a proven record in the field of peacekeeping in the world at the time of the French nuclear tests."

The New Zealand government went to trigger the scene of the French atmospheric nuclear tests at Mururoa Atoll in the Pacific in 197. The frigate remained within sight of the French ships, avoiding confrontation with the French, and doing an admirable widespread world publicity. The government said it was sent as a silent witness.

Dr. Alcock urged New Zealand to take the initiative in the project to establish an academy of peacekeeping nations.

The inaugural Normal Kirk Memorial Lecture, delivered to the Rotary Club of the Auckland War Memorial Museum, marked the official establishment of an organization known by the name of the New Zealand Foundation of Peace Studies. It hopes to work for peace in Asia, with eyes to the Canadian opposite number.

Dr. Alcock appears to address the inaugural meeting was the New Zealand minister for the environment, Mrs. T. W. Tirikatene-Sullivan.

Cholesterol Level Not a Problem

By G. C. Thoutesen, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thoutesen: Can tell me about my cholesterol? I am 73-years-old, weigh 107 pounds, the same weight I had when I was 30. I'm no longer I can still put my feet in back of my neck. I don't eat fat. I eat every trace of it from meats and I don't eat ice cream or chocolate. I stick to low fat foods.

But my cholesterol is 320. When I take my medicine, the cholesterol goes down to 280 or so. What am I doing wrong? —Mrs. S.R.

If you are so healthy and spry as you seem to be at 72, you have obviously been doing a lot that is right. There is not much wrong with your cholesterol limiting program.

The system manufactures cholesterol, and yours is apparently extra efficient in this regard.

You are avoiding gross fats (those are the kind you are paying from your meat) and this is important. However, a person of 72, weighing 107 pounds and as agile as you seem to be, shouldn't have to be overly concerned about cholesterol.

You mention only one medicine you take, and this is reading. Are sure that the drugs you are not on your medical list? Incidentally, the drug you are taking acts by inhibiting the rate of cholesterol production in your liver.

Cholesterol readings can vary quite a bit depending on the test used and when it is given.

Continue doing what you are doing, and hopefully, you will be able to touch the back of your neck with your feet for years to come.

Dear Dr. Thoutesen: Could you write something on neurits? Are neurits and gout related?—Mrs. L.S.

Neurits is an irritation or inflammation of a nerve trunk or nerve root.

There are numerous causes: virus infection, poisoning (lead and arsenic), and metabolic disturbances. Included in the latter category are diabetes, and yes, gout.

A physical injury can be a cause if there is a severing of a nerve or if pressure is placed on a nerve. A toxic factor in neurits can be alcohol.

In neurits, a single nerve usually is not involved, as in shingles. Or several nerves can become involved, especially in the toxic type. This is called polyneurits.

Here's the way gout enters the picture: the high blood uric acid level of gout can cause neurits, especially if a sciatic nerve is involved. This is one of the largest and most extensive nerves in the body.

Can Deposit Rejected

NEW YORK (AP) — A survey shows that of the 40 states holding to have legislation to enact laws that would impose mandatory deposits on all beer and soft drink bottles and cans, 8 have already rejected the bills. Resisters cite the legislation as both inflationary and a potential cause of unemployment.

Tanana Made Big Mistake By Twisting Tiger's Tail

FRANK TANANA

Horton Tired Of Biting The Dust

DETROIT (AP) — Willie Horton just got tired of biting the dust.

But despite unleashing his anger Wednesday night against California Angels, he and his fellow Detroit Tigers had to bite the bullet.

The Angels, who led 2-1 when a fourth-inning brawl triggered by Horton broke out, destroyed the Tigers 14-7 in the opener of their wild American League baseball doubleheader.

Detroit led 5-3 after eight innings of the second game but will have to wait until tonight to finish up because of the American League's 1 a.m. curfew rule.

"I don't keep any hard feelings for anybody," Horton said afterwards, considerably calmer than when he charged out to the mound to get California pitcher Frank Tanana in the fourth inning of the opener.

Horton had to hit the dirt to avoid an inside pitch by Tanana in the first inning and when a Tanana offering came in tight in the fourth it was just too much.

"I don't like to get mad," the muscular Horton said. "Maybe it wasn't him (Tanana) is pitcher. Maybe it was just things in the last couple weeks . . . In the last three weeks I've been on the ground every game. It's a pitcher's prerogative to back you off the plate, but when the ball is up high they're dealing with a fella's life."

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Frank Tanana used to worship Willie Horton from afar. Up close, he's not so crazy about him.

Tanana got a good look at his boyhood hero Wednesday night and didn't like what he saw—or heard.

The tempestuous Detroit Tiger outfielder, enraged by a close pitch from the California Angels' pitcher, reared out to the mound and triggered the wildest free-for-all of the 1975 baseball season.

By the time it was over, both teams stormed the field with their feet and fists flying. The untamed Horton did most of the damage, swinging at everyone and everything. A lot of feelings were hurt, along with a couple of egos.

The Angels went on to win the first game of the doubleheader 14-7. The second game was suspended because of the American League's 1 a.m. curfew law with Detroit winning 5-3 and will be completed tonight.

"The last thing you want to do is get Willie Horton mad," said Tanana, who said he was a Horton fanatic growing up in Detroit.

The pitch that got the whole thing started was an inside delivery that brushed back the Tiger strongman in the fourth inning. Horton gave Tanana a menacing look, then pointed a finger at the young California pitcher and rushed to the mound.

Things were comparatively tame around the rest of the American League. New York Yankees beat Minnesota Twins 5-1; Kansas City Royals whipped Cleveland Indians 7-1; Oakland A's stopped Milwaukee Brewers 5-1, Baltimore Orioles trimmed Texas Rangers 9-3 in 10 innings and the Boston Red Sox turned back the Chicago White Sox 9-7 in 14 innings.

The domydrook at Tiger Stadium delayed the first game for about 45 minutes. Before things calmed down, Horton had taken on about a half-dozen Angels and a couple of his own team-mates who were trying to restrain him. No solid punches were landed.

Rudy May scattered seven hits for his fifth consecutive triumph and Ray White drove in two runs as red-hot New York defeated Minnesota Twins. The Yanks nicked ex-farmhand Mike Pazik, 0-4, for two runs in the second inning and two more in the fifth en route to the 18th victory in their last 23 games.

Cookie Rojas unloaded a three-run homer and rookie Dennis Leonard gave up six hits, leading Kansas City over Gaylord Perry and Cleveland. Rojas' homer, his first of the season, highlighted a four-run fourth inning.

Reggie Jackson's 17th home run of the season, a two-run shot, triggered a four-run sixth inning and propelled Oakland over Milwaukee. A single by Joe Rudi and Jackson's homer erased a 2-1 Milwaukee lead.

Ken Singleton's 10th-inning RBI double gave Baltimore its victory over Texas. Dave Duncan, who had hit a pair of two-run homers earlier in the game, started the 10th with a single off Stan Thomas. After Mark Belanger hit into a forceout, Singleton lined his gamewinning hit to center field.

Carl Yastrzemski's sixth home run of the season, a two-run clout in the 16th inning, lifted Boston over Chicago. Rich Gossage hit Bernie Carbo with a pitch before Yastrzemski unloaded.

NHL - USSR Hockey Series

Tentative Agreement Reached

MONTREAL (CP) — Representatives of the National Hockey League and the Soviet Ice Hockey Federation have reached tentative agreement on an international hockey series to be played next winter, the NHL office announced Wednesday.

Soviet officials will return to Moscow to seek final approval for a series of games that would pit each of two Soviet club teams against four NHL teams in NHL arenas next December and January. The two Soviet teams would be chosen from Moscow Spartak, Moscow Dynamo, Soviet Army and Soviet Wings, all members of the Soviet Union's major league.

NHL representatives at the three-day meeting were president Clarence Campbell, governors Harold Ballard of Toronto Maple Leafs, Bruce Norris of Detroit Red Wings, Walter Bush of Minnesota North Stars and Ed Snider of the Stanley Cup champion Philadelphia Flyers, alternate governor John Ziegler of Detroit and NHL director of administration Brian O'Neill.

Soviet negotiators were Vlacheslav Koloskov and Victor Khotochkaev of Moscow and Igor Yartanian of the Soviet embassy in Moscow.

An NHL spokesman said participating teams probably will be selected at the league's annual meeting here next week, although the proposed series is to be reviewed by "principles of both organizations."

An NHL spokesman said a proposed tournament pitting open national teams chosen from Canada, the United States, the Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia, Sweden and Finland was not discussed at the meeting.

Hamilton's WHA Franchise Is Set

HAMILTON (CP) — Toronto businessman Ted Tobias said he has learned the World Hockey Association has approved his bid for a Hamilton franchise.

Tobias said he learned of the action Wednesday evening in a telephone call from John F. Bassett, owner of the WHA's Toronto Toros who is attending the league's annual meeting in La Costa, Calif.

Tobias said the only stipulation barring complete approval was a new arena and he foresaw no difficulty in meeting the condition.

He said it was possible a team would be located in Hamilton for the 1976-77 season, but the more likely deadline would be the 1977-78 campaign.

It used to be you were a freak if you were fit.

Stewart Criticized Again

TORONTO (CP)—The president of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture (OFA) Wednesday branded as misleading statements by Agriculture Minister William Stewart that a farm income stabilization plan in British Columbia would benefit that province.

Gordon Hill said OFA discussions with the British Columbia Federation of Agriculture and Dave Barrett, British Columbia Agriculture Minister, led it to believe that the plan was not a financial embarrassment to the government.

Donald MacDonald, New Democratic Party member for Toronto York South, was ejected from the legislature Tuesday by the Speaker after he refused to withdraw an accusation that Mr. Stewart was lying when he said the stabilization plan would bankrupt the western province.

In his ministry's estimates last month, Mr. Stewart said British Columbia could not afford the plan.

The OFA has requested that the Ontario government investigate establishment of some type of income protection for farmers.

Globe Article Called 'Racist'

TORONTO (CP) — Jamaican High Commissioner Willis O. Isaacs Wednesday said The Globe and Mail created "friction and racism" by a story on the Rastafarian sect.

Mr. Isaacs was asked to comment on a story in the newspaper Wednesday which said a committee of Metropolitan Toronto police and the Canadian immigration department were investigating the sect's activity in the city.

The story said some of the sect's members were responsible for a series of crimes including murder, assaults, armed robbery and drug trafficking.

"All the charges are quite untrue," the commissioner said. "We don't have any problems with them (Rastafarians) in Jamaica."

Mr. Andras said not all members of the sect are "reprehensible people," but said he is worried about growing evidence of "criminal activities."

Supremacist Under Fire

TORONTO (CP)—About 50 left-wing demonstrators disrupted an immigration hearing for about an hour Wednesday, demanding Donald Andrews, head of the white supremacist Western Guard Party, be banned from speaking.

The protesters, including members of the Communist Party of Canada (Marxist-Leninist), chanted: "Fascists have no right to speak."

Mr. Andrews read a brief calling for the deportation of all non-whites from Canada and proposing bonuses for bearing while children to the special parliamentary committee hearing briefs on the government's green paper on immigration.

Energy Deadlock On Ford's Agenda

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional leaders are meeting with President Ford to talk about energy after the Democrats' 23-cent gasoline-tax program was killed by the House of Representatives.

Force feeders may be extended by both sides at today's meeting in an effort to end the five-month deadlock over different energy programs put forth by Ford and the Democratic congressional leadership.

After watching his gasoline-tax plan defeated Wednesday night, Democrat Al Ullman (Dem. Ore.), chairman of the House ways and means committee, said a new compromise may be attempted.

As part of his energy program, Ford has imposed a $2-a-barrel tariff on imported oil and has said he'll increase it to $3.

Ford has also asked Congress to replace the tariff eventually with a tax of $1-a-barrel on all oil, U.S.-produced as well as imported oil, a tax of 37 cents a 1,000 cubic feet on natural gas and an end of price controls on oil and natural gas.

In rejecting the ways and means committee's tax plan the House first voted 343 to 71 to delete 10 cents from the proposed 23-cent increase in the existing four-cents-a-gallon federal gasoline tax. Then, by 209 to 187, the House voted against the remaining three-cent increase.

In the three-cent vote, 98 Democrats joined 114 Republicans in the majority while 70 Democrats and 17 Republicans voted for the increase.

Opponents of the bill said the tax increase would hit workers, farmers and low-income people the hardest.

Before turning to the gasoline-tax issue, the House voted 311 to 102 to open the U.S. door to more foreign oil, rather than less, as the ways and means committee had recommended.

It was a victory for Representative Ace Waggonner (Dem. La.) on his amendment setting the level of the nation's oil imports at six million barrels daily in 1979 and increasing it to 6.5 million barrels daily starting in 1980.

The committee would have set the figure at 5.5 million barrels daily beginning in 1979. The U.S. now imports about six million barrels of oil daily.

Prison Escapee Ordered Transferred

OTTAWA (CP) — The Ontario ministry of correctional services Wednesday ordered the transfer of prison escapee John Lamourewx, 27, of Montreal to Millhaven penitentiary, near Kingston.

The decision followed a meeting between Lamourewx and three men recaptured after a seven-man escape from the Ottawa-Carleton regional detention centre last week. His lawyer, D. B. Bayne, and Norman Jones, a ministry inspector.

Lamourewx told a provincial court judge Monday that he was beaten after his return to the centre Sunday. He was held in an Ottawa police cell during the weekend after his capture.

Mr. Bayne asked Judge Thomas Swabey to have his client transferred and the court turned the matter over to the ministry.

A medical examination by a ministry doctor Wednesday found Lamourewx healing quickly from "facial injuries that did appear self-inflicted."

The doctor said the injuries did not appear self-inflicted.

A spokesman for the ministry said the investigation is continuing but added that if the prisoner or his lawyer do not press charges it is unlikely that any will be laid by the department.

A spokesman for the guards at the detention centre said Tuesday night that it is "very unlikely" any prison guards beat Lamourewx.

A spokesman for the Civil Service Association of Ontario, which represents the guards said Wednesday that major security design faults and a small, overworked staff failed to carry guns were the main factors in the escape.

Jake Norman, who was commenting on remarks of Richard Potter, corrections minister, that the escape was caused by human error.

He described Mr. Potter's statements as "just getting off the hook."

Teachers Accept 26 Per Cent Hike

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

Hastings County elementary school teachers Thursday night accepted a one-year contract with the county Board of Education that will give them about a 26 per cent increase effective September.

About 260 of the county's 560 teachers met at Centre Hastings High School to ratify the contract settled late last week. Dave Wilson, chief negotiator with the elementary teachers said 85 per cent voted in favor of the proposed contract.

Teachers accepted a 10.5 per cent increase last year.

A board official said today level two teachers, nearly 50 per cent of the county's total, will now earn a maximum of $13,500 from last year's maximum of $10,700 an increase of about $3,000.

New teachers will earn a minimum of $7,700 and a maximum of $11,100 whereas in 1974 a beginning teacher earned a maximum of $9,100 and a minimum of $6,200. Teachers in the highest level with a maximum of 14 years experience will earn $22,400 whereas in 1974 they earned $18,600.

There was no cost-of-living allowance (COLA) in the contract but elementary teachers will get an average increment of $600 Jan. 1.

Secondary School teachers in the county are expected to vote on their contract Monday night.

There is some speculation the secondary school teachers will receive a COLA clause that will approximate the increment received by the elementary school teachers.

Vice-principals with a university degree will earn an additional $2,500 over and above their grid level. This represents and increase of $500 over last year.

The maximum salary for an elementary school principal has been raised from $22,500 to $27,500, an increase of $5,000. The minimum salary for a principal has been raised from $18,100 to $22,700.

No changes have been made in the maximum number of 220 accumulative sick days. No insurance benefits.

Thursday night's ratification ended 18-weeks of negotiations which both parties describe as "amicable and constructive." Both Mr. Wilson and the board's negotiating representative Donald Williams described the settlement "as fair and in line with other settlements across the province."

Director of education Eric Runacres said today the settlement will not push the board over its pre-established budget of $21.87 million. He also said the tentative secondary school salary will not jeopardize the board's new budget.

However, it is possible that both settlements may eleminate some programs that were being planned for the new year. The Board last month established a list of priority programs that depending on the settlements may or may not be implemented.

Object to Wording

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation (OSSTF) is working on a proposal to reword a disputed clause in legislation regulating teacher-school board negotiations, Jim Forster, OSSTF president, said Thursday.

Mr. Forster had said the bill, which would allow teachers to strike, contained a clause including withdrawal of voluntary after-school activities in the definition of a strike.

Gandhi Dealt Blow

NEW DELHI (AP) — Leaders of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's Congress party today began organizing public support for her decision to resign in office despite her conviction of election law violations.

However, Mrs. Gandhi was dealt another blow by the announcement of a decisive defeat for her Congress party in the election of a new legislature in Gujarat state. The party won 140 of the 168 seats in the legislature three years ago, and she campaigned vigorously for Congress candidates this year.

But her party won only 74 seats compared with 88 won by a coalition headed by 79-year-old Morarji Desai, a foe of Mrs. Gandhi since they battled for control of the Congress party in 1969.

The voting took place last Sunday and Wednesday, before Judge Jag Mohanlal Sinha found Mrs. Gandhi guilty Thursday of illegally using government officials in her 1971 campaign for Parliament and banned her from holding public office for six years.

Judge Sinha stayed the sentence for 20 days to allow the prime minister to appeal, and she is expected to ask the Supreme Court to extend the stay until the appeal is decided. Her political foes demanded that she resign at once. But Mrs. Gandhi announced that she would await the verdict of the highest court.

Her lawyers announced that they would need a few days to study Judge Sinha's opinion before filing the appeal.

PRIME MINISTER INDIRA GANDHI

Trudeau Orders Prison Inquiry

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau announced today that a public inquiry, headed by a judge, will be held into the incidents at British Columbia penitentiary this week in which a woman penitentiary employee was killed.

Answering questions in the Commons, the prime minister said the inquiry will concentrate on the incidents in the Westminster and will not deal with the rest of the penitentiary service.

The announcement comes three days after 15 hostages overcame three knife-holding convicts who had held them in a vault for two days while demanding passage out of the country.

John Reynolds (Burnaby-Richmond-Delta) also told reporters on Thursday night that the hostages moved against their captors after they thought they had an agreement with penitentiary authorities and they were "ready to move when the group moved against the inmates."

The hostage also said the 15 had to drink as much as seven ounces of the drug Nolujar, which authorities had provided for their captors.

Prime Minister Trudeau told Mr. Reynolds in the Commons he will investigate the statements about the drugs.

Earlier the prime minister served notice the government will move in to convince who take hostages and demand freedom.

The three convicts had demanded transportation to a country that had no extradition treaty with Canada.

"This won't happen—not under my government," he said.

Mr. Trudeau, answering questions from Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield and Stuart Leggatt (NDP—New Westminster), said that at the time the government was considering how to separate the hostages from the convicts if the offer was accepted by the latter.

Pressed on the question of deals with prisoners by Eldon Woolliams (PC—Calgary North), the prime minister said: "I did not and my bargaining would not be made with prisoners."

But, he said, prisoners would not "escape free."

Train Derailment Cost $1 Million

SIMCOE, Ont. (CP) A railway spokesman estimated damage at about $1 million in the derailment of a Western train derailment Thursday.

Cleanup operations at the scene of the derailment, which took the lives of 2 railway employees, continued Friday and a spokesman said the operation would take about three days to complete.

However, the spokesman said, the main CNR line between Windsor and Buffalo might possibly be reopened by noon today.

Harold Ray Merrit, 47, the head brakeman, and Edward James Wadley, 32,the engineer, both of St. Thomas, Ont., were killed when the lead engine of the 43-car freight train lo"o'e tracks and burst into flames at an overpass crossing Highway 3.

A quarter-mile of track was torn up and two diesel engines and 14 freight cars damaged.

A third crewman, fireman Troy Black, 30, also of St. Thomas, received burns to both hands. He is reported in satisfactory condition.

A 200-ton crane from Hamilton was used Thursday to lift one 125-ton diesel engine back on to the railroad overpass. Its front end was blocking part of the highway.

All 14 cars were carrying automobiles and trucks from the Ford Motor Co. of Canada plant in Talbotville, near St. Thomas, destined for the United States.

The railway is investigating the accident.

Meat Stamp Forged

MONTREAL (CP)— A Quebec agriculture department inspector told the organized crime inquiry Thursday that 13 veal carcasses fraudulently marked with the "Canada approved" stamp were found in one of Quebec's uninspected slaughterhouses during a police raid last year.

Two forged stamps made from door knobs had been in the possession of the Ste. Marguerite, Que., slaughterhouse for one year, inspector Jacques Boulet testified at the Quebec Police Commission hearings.

Clowning Around

Everyone loves a clown, and there's no exception at the Quinte Exhibition this year. Conko the Clown, of Canada's Conklin Shows, was out in full splendor to greet the children during the second day of the fair. Attendance, about 11,000 in the fair's first two days, has been slightly down from previous years, but fair officials are hopeful it will improve with people coming to see the harness racing tonight, Saturday's horse show, and a demolition derby Sunday afternoon.

Anonymous Winners Claim 2nd Million

MONTREAL (CP) — A lawyer representing an anonymous group from the Toronto area claimed one of two $1-million Olympic lottery prizes Thursday.

Lawyer Ronald Rudan told a news conference the owners of the winning ticket asked him "to express their overwhelming joy, and their surprise at their winning ticket."

But he added: "I have been instructed not to reveal any information concerning the winners' identities."

He said he was asked to accept the prize by a trustee of the winners, Irene Boyko of Toronto. He would not say how many winners there were in the group.

Eight persons from Richmond, Que., shared the second $1-million prize. Gaston Delude accepted the prize for Marcel, Helenda, Rosaire and Louise Bouchard, Denis Perreault, Alcide Poulin and Edgar Grimard.

He gave no information about himself or other winners and did not say what plans the group had for the money.

Meanwhile Olympic lottery president Julien Gates said the ownership of the $500,000 third prize would have to be decided in court. He denied saying that the prize would probably go to the Royal Bank.

He said the ticket was one of 20 stolen from a Royal Bank branch earlier this year. The bank had bought the tickets for resale to the public.

Michel Bourque, 21, of suburban Longueuil was charged Thursday with armed robbery at the branch in which more than $3,500 in cash and the Olympic lottery tickets were stolen.

Bad Day For Phobia

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Today is the day that all acute triskaidekaphobiacs fear the most. But one psychologist says Friday the 13th will turn out unlucky only if you think it will.

"We call it 'selective perception,'" says Dr. Charles Verschoor, a psychologist at Miami-Dade Community College. "Every single day of your life, something pretty adversive happens. On Friday the 13th, you get your mind tuned up to notice."

A recent article in Psychology Today magazine says businesses in the United States lose $300 million dollars annually because many people stay home from work on Friday the 13th.

Authorities say triskaidekaphobia—fear of the number 13—has been around since the days of early Greece.

Numerologist Vincent Lopez says 13 is generally disliked because it includes the numbers one and three, which add up to four. He said four "is a factual, realistic number. It's a tough number. People don't like to face facts."

Gas, Heating Oil Could Cost 8 Cents a Gallon More July 1

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government and Alberta have reached agreement to raise the price of crude oil effective July 1,despite the opposition of Ontario and Nova Scotia.

Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Thursday on the eve of a 15-day visit to Japan that the federal cabinet has taken "some basic decisions" on price increases, but declined to say how much they will go up.

However, government and industry officials anticipate an increase of about $2 on the current price of $6.50 a barrel. That would add eight cents to the price of a gallon of gasoline or home-heating fuel.

The agreement may include further increases at a later date. The Alberta government says a domestic price of about $10 is necessary to encourage exploration for additional reserves.

Mr. Macdonald said higher natural gas prices will go into effect Nov. 1, but again declined to talk about how much increases might total.

Earlier in the talks, he and Alberta Energy Minister Don Getty said gas increases should be staged, raising the price over two or three years to equal the cost of an equivalent amount of oil in terms of energy value.

Gas currently sells for 60 cents a thousand cubic feet at the wellhead, about half its value compared with oil selling at $6.50 a barrel. The gas is expected to rise about 25 cents a thousand cubic feet annually, or $30 for an average homeowner.

Mr. Macdonald said talks between Prime Minister Trudeau and the provincial premiers are continuing and probably would wind up about the middle of next week.

Energy department sources say the federal and Alberta governments have agreed to the higher prices and do not need the approval of Ontario and Nova Scotia, both opposed to any increases.

The sources say only the June 23 federal budget stands in the way of announcing the agreement.

Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed previously he said would notify ne-price agreement until he sees the budget. The province fears some changes might be made in resource taxation provisions after it has tied itself to a new pricing policy.

Ontario and Nova Scotia have opposed higher prices until the problems of unemployment and inflation are solved.

Sections of the proposed petroleum administration act, now in final stages of parliamentary approval, give Ottawa the right to levy higher interprovincial prices even if some provinces disagree.

Mr. Macdonald turned aside questions about the actThursday questions about the act Thursday, saying "its hypothetical at this point"to discuss what Ottawa will do if Ontario remains opposed to price increases.

However, unless Ontario or Nova Scotia have a quick change of heart, the act is the only way to implement the new price by July 1, the date at which Mr. Macdonald says the government is aiming.

Talks with the provinces on an individual basis have been going on since early April when a federal-provincial conference broke up without setting a new price.

Mr. Macdonald says it is so far positive have changed little in the talks, with both Ontario and Nova Scotia maintaining their opposition to the increases.

Cost of Repairing Bridge Lower Than First Thought

By AL ZARAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Repairs to steel girders under the deck of the Dundas St. bridge will not cost the town the $75,000 previously pledged by Mayor Bob Patrick for bridge remedial work, town works commissioner Arie Hoornweg said Thursday.

Mr. Hoornweg said he expects to get the bids from the two companies shortly. However, the two proposals will not likely get to council for a final decision for about 3½ weeks.

Work on the bridge would then begin in about two weeks.

The works commissioner was authorized to get cost estimates from the two companies two weeks ago, but progress has been slow because he said the firms are busy.

The need for repairs became apparent in April when Trenton consultants presented a report that outlined bridge deterioration. The bridge, now 56-years old, has corroded badly in places and has forced the town to impose a 4-ton load limit.

When the load limit was announced, Mayor Bob Patrick pledged $75,000 to repair the bridge to extend its life one to three years. The time period, he said, would permit the town to find funds to either repair or replace the bridge.

The town now is weighing the advantages and disadvantages, cost-wise, of both actions.

Full repairs to the stucture will cost $1,035,000 and give the bridge a maximum of 15 years. On the other hand, if the town opted to tear down the Dundas St. bridge and replace it with a fixed bridge, costs are estimated at $1.75-million.

The load limit announced by the mayor will shortly come into affect.

A town official said Thursday the provincial government has now approved a town by-law limiting the load to six tons. When the bridge will be posted with the regulation is still unknown. And what action town police can take against trucks over the limit is also still unclear.

Police officials are today studying the regulatory bylaw and will announce their planned actions shortly.

Approximately 40 persons have joined the club that meets each month at the Picton offices of the ministry of agriculture and food. Membership is open to persons raising rabbits or those who may be considering it.

Guest speakers are invited for the meetings and in May the group was addressed by Mr. Lowe, manager of Blackford Feeds.

Publicity agent for the club Larry Gear says," Too little is known about the domestic rabbit as far as its meat is concerned."

He notes that rabbit is an excellent meat for persons dieting for stomach disorders as it is easily digested and highly nutritious.

Auction Raises Funds For Organ Repairs

PICTON — An old-fashioned auction sale was held on the lawn of the Anglican Church rectory here Thursday night to raise funds to reduce capital debt on restoration of the church organ.

Auctioneers Creighton and David Carr sold a wide variety of items donated by members of the congregation of the Church of St. Mary Magdalene and others.

Rev. Robert Stewart says the auction has been a highly successful spring project for the past three years.

Organizers of the 1975 sale were Mrs. Glen Mowbray and Mrs. George Hepburn.

Items donated for auction were picked up by Mr. and Mrs. William Drew and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Moore.

Refreshments were served in the Parish Hall during the widely attended sale.

Generation Gap

New Mobile Church Aims At Helping Truckers

An organization which puts Christian service on wheels is heading for the Quinte area.

It's called Transport for Christ and it's goal is to make contact with truck and transport drivers.

The organization — first started in Toronto 25 years ago — now is spread across Canada and the United States, says Ken Bell, 29-year-old Oshawa truck driver who gives his spare time as a field worker for the group.

For the last year it's had an Oshawa working group and now is spreading into eastern Ontario with Belleville the first stop, says Ken.

It's objective is to combine a spiritual motivation and practical results, he says.

"If you create a greater contentment in the man to do his job, the more efficient he is. Because of his spiritual beliefs you're going to have a safe driver — and a better citizen."

Transport For Christ — an evangelistic interdenominational organization — also aims to help truckers with personal problems that could stem from their trade.

"A transport driver has a lot of varied stresses in his job — long hours on the road and away from their families," explains the young field worker.

It also seeks to give assistance during illnesses affecting truckers' families.

For instance: Recently, it raised $100 for the family of a driver fatally injured in a mishap.

Ken expects to be talking to company operators and truckers themselves in the Belleville area to explain the objectives.

Later, truckers will also come in contact with the chaplains of Transport for Christ. These travel in mobile chapels — installed in a tractor-trailer — pulling in at terminals and roadside truck stops.

KEN BELL

A chapel-on-wheels now is being readied in Oshawa and will later be making its appearance in the Belleville area, says Ken.

Column Suggested

The Quinte Information and Assistance Centre might be back in print in the near future.

The centre board of directors voted this week to approach the Trentonian, the Intelligencer and Belleville's new weekly newspaper, the Citizen, regarding the weekly appearance of a consumer affairs column.

The column would be much the same format as last year's version which appeared in the Trenton paper under a LIP.

Mr. Gerling explained the column would have to present "issues readably interesting and of general concern."

Ducklings Rescued

WELLINGTON — A housing shortage in Prince Edward County this spring has ended happily with the rescue of 13 youngsters and their mother from highly unsuitable accommodations.

Early this spring Mr. W.P. Marvin of Rt 1, Wellington, discovered a wood duck had nested in the chimney on his honey house. When the eggs hatched recently a baker's dozen of birds faced a dilemma.

The tile chimney was too smooth to offer a foothold for the ducklings and they were stranded when the time came to leave the nest. The mother wood duck, observed by Mr. Marvin, attempted to coax her offspring from the chimney in vain.

When it became apparent that the ducklings were too frightened to leave the nest Mr. Marvin climbed to the chimney with a box, gathered them up and carried them to the ground.

The ducklings' landlord and rescuer notes that it isn't the first time he has transferred tenants from his chimney. Last year the same female wood duck nested there and hatched eleven ducklings.

Gold Cup Weekend May Become Festival

PICTON — A Gold Cup Festival to be held in conjunction with the Gold Cup Races has been proposed by the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce as a summer promotion program.

The chamber will approach merchants in Picton and the Picton area for support of the festival, similar in plan to Loyalist Days held here for a number of years.

It has been suggested that the Gold Cup festival could be highlighted by the crowning of Miss Gold Cup, sky divers, sidewalk sales and a barbecue.

John Cole, a spokesman for the Prince Edward Racing Club this week observed, "It depends upon how much other people are prepared to do. The racing committee will be busy at the race."

He explained that if activities are scheduled in advance of the race, other organizations must support them.

In discussion of a Gold Cup Festival several chamber members suggested a parade of the boats entered in the Labor Day weekend races could be held.

"The main idea is to open up the town and bring in as many people as we can," said Mr. Cole.

Home Repair Frauds On Rise Says Bureau

Beware of shady home repair salesmen bearing gifts — that was the message Bert Gerling had for Quinte area residents this week.

Mr. Gerling, a Quinte Information and Assistance Centre staff member, told the centre board of directors there has been an increased number of calls as summer approaches dealing with home repair frauds.

He commented the salesmen "can be vicious".

Mr. Gerling explained some salesmen ask for five-cent down payment with successive small installments but usually disappear with the first payment before the job is done.

He recounted one recent occurrence where the salesman left a telephone number but when the centre called following a complaint, it found the number was that of a private residence.

Mr. Gerling suggested the consumer receive a second opinion on home repair needs and costs before proceeding with any salesman who appears with only a telephone number on the side of his truck.

He added it is usually all right if the consumer knows the salesmen represent a reputable local firm.

Pick Your Own Season Here

PICTON — Prince Edward County farmers this year are turning to "pick your own" sales for fruits and vegetables.

At Windatt's Windy Acres Farm Ltd., Hay Lake, strawberries can be picked starting June 13 and carrots beginning July 11. Cherries also will be available on July 25.

The Leavitt Brothers Green Knoll Farms on County Road One also offer a pick your own plan for strawberries.

20 Off To Camp

TRENTON — About 20 crippled children from Trenton will be going to a camp northwest of Smith Falls this summer in a program sponsored partly by the Rotary Club here.

Rotarian Douglas Campney said Thursday the club is coordinating transportation to the Merrywood Camp for the children.

The camp is supported by funds from Rotary Clubs in District 707, encompassing an area from Port Hope to Kingston, and is operated year-round. Similar camps are run throughout Canada by Rotary Clubs.

Mr. Campney said local children attend the summer camp for two-week or month-long periods in July and August.

Children attending the camp have available to them medical staff, residential facilities and the usual local "swimming hole".

Railroaders on Move

PICTON — President of the Picton Model Railroaders club, William Thorley, accompanied by several other club members recently attended the spring meeting of the Canadian Island Division of the National Model Railroad Association in Watertown, New York.

While in Watertown the railroad enthusiasts toured the New York Air Brake Company and watched the testing of air brakes on a 200 car simulated train.

The Thousand Islands Division of the National Model Railroad Association includes the Picton club and it is expected that a number of rail fans will be held in Picton or Kingston.

Ottawa Splurges on Foreign Aid and UIC Handouts at Expense of the Navy

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Do you remember the "revolt of the admirals" of a decade ago when the former and opposed Liberal Canadian Navy had to take on the bumptious Paul Hellyer, national defence minister after he commenced the armed forces unification plan?

They lost and a small group of them resigned joining the most famous of them, Rear-Admiral William Landymore, in a series of bitter anonymous statements.

A couple of them, including an angry rear-admiral with the definitely naval name of Horatio Nelson Lay, ran for the Tories in successive federal elections and lost.

The popular and modernist Rear-Admiral Landymore was in the process of turning around the navy's manning and training methods when Mr. Hellyer's bombshell unification plans commenced being leaked.

In a submission which the admiral submitted to this day was doctored by the former defence minister before he was allowed to give it, Admiral Landymore finally said many of the same things he had been saying, the alleged rebuttals, which Vice-Admiral Dunlap has been saying today. For this and other subordinations, he was fired.

Among them in the plea of the navy, made worse by curved restraint and budget cuts, that Canada cannot have a naval presence in the North Atlantic without enough ships and men.

Admiral Boyle has moreover asked for a development which squabbling and bureaucratized Ottawa departments have been unable to bring about.

This is a single maritime establishment incorporating fisheries protection and environment patrols as well as purely naval functions.

This columnist knows a good deal about the argument over "government fleets" when he attempted to obtain the study about these during his time as a member of an investigatory task force in the department of national defence in 1971-72.

This report criticized the fact the navy, RCMP, customs, fisheries, even the old air force had sea forces, not to forget the then emerging coast guard and none of them were or are coordinated.

Indeed the largest "government fleet" then and now, is made up of the various kinds of ships from icebreakers in light-house tenders owned and operated by the ministry of transport.

Admiral Boyle's other frustrations, that the approximate 8 billions allocated to foreign aid and unemployment insurance hand-outs should go into our defence forces and, the unemployed be recruited, is a well-known feeling throughout the armed forces.

And the amounts allocated in these directions have also increased substantially in the decade since the "admirals revolt" of 1965 with base pay to the naval forces.

Admiral Boyle's outburst at a Conservative caucus meeting in Halifax, whether it was intended to raise hell or not, reflects the mounting concern about our armed forces indicated in yesterday's column on Canadian defence and security.

Either we have the modern equipment to maintain our armed forces in the air and at sea or we don't. The unemployed and the unem-

Boosting Food Output

A brief news item recently about part of 25.5 acres of land purchased by Loyalist College board of governors being rented to an area farmer is of no small significance in these days of increasing urbanization and world food shortages.

Consider observations of Walter Pawley, director of the UN food and agriculture organization. He told a York University symposium recently that the technical know-how and resources exist to produce enough food to feed developing nations up to the year 2000 and possibly for a generation beyond — then added this cautionary word:

"But if you ask me whether I think production will in fact increase in accordance with the resources and technological possibilities, I must say I am pessimistic."

Mr. Pawley advanced a number of reasons for this, including the illiteracy of farmers among the estimated 400 million in developing countries, and the instability and ineptness of governments. He was convinced some form of co-operative grouping was a basic precondition for success.

He could be right at that, given the backwardness and fragmentation of resources and government in those lands still emerging from a past long since shed by societies such as our own.

Yet we are far from being faultless here. Amid the many examples of waste, not to say extravagance, that is such a deplorable fault of modern life in the West, comes word of infestation by rats of a $2-million shipment of emergency food aid.

It was stated that the shipment, destined for Somalia and Ethiopia from Montreal, was the victim not of the longshoremen's strike but of a lack of co-ordination between Canadian agencies in the program.

This is the kind of thing that occurs in our own relatively efficient but bureaucracy-laden system: we get to the point of delivering the goods, only to find the shipment wrapped in red tape and the rats making the most of it. And if it is not that, then it's the weather, or a strike.

But more power to institutions such as Loyalist which have acquired this land and seek to use part of it to increase agricultural production. Multiply this with similar initiatives around the country and we could go far toward warding off the long-term threatened food shortage some experts fear will occur.

Jobs Benefit Society

Some fine programs are coming into being with government-sponsored initiatives such as the Opportunities for Youth and Local Initiatives efforts.

There was an account in recent days of one in which young people in Belleville are available to help older folk with their day-to-day needs.

What an opportunity for both age-groups to get more closely acquainted, as well as performing useful service where the younger are concerned.

Then there is the one at Queen Mary school in Isabel Street, involving the tending of creative toys by handicapped children. Again here is a service of social significance for our young people and an opportunity for contacts outside their homes.

Let's hope the latter program, with its days of government funding reportedly numbered, will be continued. Its organizers are working to this end, to ensure its continuance at the local level.

It is all part of that elusive "quality of life" and an indication that some are paying more to it than just lip service.

Viewpoints

Ottawa Citizen

Children from Newfoundland/TerreNeuve to Colombie/British Columbia will undoubtedly profit from the cross-country adventure kit prepared by Official Languages Commissioner Keith Spicer. So will Canada.

But whatever influence the kit may have on elementary school children, it will be enough unless it can also influence their parents and, especially, provincial education officials. Children (can learn) but they must be taught. If the kit causes children to start nagging their parents for more language training, as they now nag for some of the commercial products they see advertised on television, the kit will have done its job.

'THIS ISN'T A POLITICAL CAMPAIGN...JUST A FAMILY GET-TOGETHER!'

LETTERS

The Grape Picker Controversy

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

In reply to the letter entitled "Grape Talk Propaganda", we, two junior executives of the United Farm Workers, Belleville Branch, would like to clarify the following points, which were misunderstood by Mrs. Earl Smith, of Marmora.

Firstly, we must clarify why we, young adults, are members of this organization. We are not Communists, but in our minds we feel it is important that we aid these people in their fight for better working and living conditions. To begin with, it was not a caller trying to convince these people, but Milt Johnson's guest, Michael Callan, Eastern Ontario Director of the United Farm Workers.

Secondly, the Mexican farm workers have without a doubt completely supported the U.F.W. ideals and organization. It is their wish to determine whether to be unionized by the Teamsters, or their own U.F.W. union.

Another point that is completely and entirely incorrect, or misinformed, is the contention that this is a "Hate Arrest Campaign"; taken this far, she is quite wrong.

Recession Still Clouds Corporate Activity in Canada

By VINCENT EGAN

The good news is that capital spending by Canada's 200 largest companies this year is up from running 30 to 35 per cent ahead of last year's pace.

That confirms the trend in capital-spending intentions that emerged in a survey carried out last fall by the federal department of industry, trade and commerce.

The bad news? When the department checked again this spring with the big corporate spenders, it found this:

"Viewing the period 1976-79 as a whole, little annual growth in real terms is evidence from the peak projected for 1975."

The surveys and check-backs are, one of the most important early indicators of future economic activity. Industry's spending on new plant and equipment is the engine that generates extra jobs both during the construction period and for the longer term.

The increases in the spending intentions shown in the latest survey "are predominantly attributable to an expansion of existing projects as well as to higher costs for construction, machinery and equipment," says a department statement.

When the inflation factor is discounted, a real growth of 8 per cent is implied by spending intentions for this year, only three per cent growth achieved last year.

"In many instances," says the industry department, "businessmen maintained that—in the short term—corporate activity is being adjusted to the current situation by reductions in outputs and staff than by extensive cutbacks in capital investment."

That's probably because company has little choice but to go ahead with a capital project, once it has committed itself, even if the business climate turns cloudy.

For the longer term, however, the 200 large corporations appear to be working on relatively few new capital plans.

Contributing factors no doubt include the threat of more serious recession, the implied competition of the government's own capital-spending program, and the continuing high cost of borrowing capital.

"The massive demands of the public sector in Canada over the last 10 years have resulted in a general scarcity of funds to finance industrial expansion and consumer borrowings, with the inevitable sharp increases in interest rates," commented Harold Rosenof, president of the Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants.

"Add the factor of escalating costs and you reach a point where marginal expenditures are cancelled or postponed, and the costs of actual projects or acquisitions increase sharply."

The prospect for the rest of this decade, then, is this: Little or no real growth in capital spending by the largest corporations, and substantial expansion of capital spending in the government sector.

The public sector is undoubtedly the right place for certain commercial activities in a country as vast as Canada.

But it's dangerous to think that the public sector can necessarily do a better job of all those activities than the private sector has been doing—which seems to be implicit in the creation of crown corporations, the nationalization of private companies, and the ever-increasing regulation of business.

And to the extent that the public sector undertakes capital projects in the private sector, it is contributing to the backward shortfall in Canada's productivity competitiveness—worsening inflation, which is at the heart of our economic problems.

Allmand Has Said it All But His Future Prospects No Match PC's Reynolds

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — There are some parliamentarians like John Reynolds, the two-term Conservative MP for Burnaby-Richmond-Delta, who think they were elected to represent, reflect, and speak for their constituents.

To properly do this, the MP must listen to what his people back home are saying.

And then there are some other parliamentarians like Solicitor General Warren Allmand, for 13 years Liberal MP for the Montreal riding of Notre-Dame-de-Grace, who seem to consider that being better informed than their constituents, they need not necessarily have to reflect their values and opinions.

Believing this, the MP who subscribes to the elitist proposition that he knows what is best for his constituents, regardless of their wishes, figures he can safely ignore them.

Philosophically the House of Commons divides pretty generally along this line, with the MP-knows-best types on one side, and on the other those who figure that perhaps their constituents are adult enough to know what they want.

All parties, the Liberals, Conservatives, and the Democrats, have both kinds — those who believe, and often say so publicly, that they have the right to decide an issue — and those who prefer to be guided by the prevailing opinion of their electors.

Warren Allmand and John Reynolds are the architects of the two parliamentarian schools. Allmand has proved that public opinion, as polled all across Canada, and in his own bailiwick riding, is heavily in favor of a return to capital punishment.

He has read the polls. He has heard the police associations, alarmed and angered by the soaring murder rate. He has listened to the clamor in the Commons for an end to cabinet commutation of every death sentence for the last 13 years.

But he publicly says it means nothing — nothing to him at any rate.

He knows better. He says so. He knows that the death penalty is determent to murder. He refuses to admit that execution is the absolute deterrent since the executed killer can do no more.

He says he will quit before he will have anything to do with the death penalty, and that some MPs hope he will.

All Warren Allmand has to do yet to demonstrate his feelings is to weep openly in the Commons, as did one of his predecessors, former Solicitor General Lawrence Pennell. That will prove his compassion.

Now, John Reynolds, on the other hand, listens to his people. He knows they favor a return to capital punishment. He has conducted his own constituency opinion polls. He has seen the result of national samplings of public feeling on the issue confirm him.

So he has brought petitions to Parliament in confrontation with Warren Allmand.

The position of the two men is odd.

Warren Allmand is the older, 43, almost a generation ahead of John Reynolds, and might be expected to be wise enough, after 13 years in Parliament to suspect that perhaps he doesn't know everything and that perhaps his electors have a clue as to what they want.

Warren Allmand is going nowhere further than he has gone already. He will never be leader of his party or prime Minister. John Reynolds is only 35, and being younger, might be expected to be more headstrong and inclined to believe, as some other younger MPs do, that he was sent to Ottawa to think for his constituents, not to listen to them.

But he is far more flexible and representative of the wishes of his electors than the older Warren Allmand.

And he could be going places. Conceivably he could find himself leader of his party — perhaps not at the next convention, but in years to come, for he has plenty of time.

Then, being leader, he at least has a shot at becoming Prime Minister.

Meanwhile, believing that an MP is elected to represent the wishes and aspirations of those who elect him, he is busier than ever with his opinion polls.

He is listen on labor relations, show 95 per cent of his people think the bargaining system is ineffective; 88 per cent want a cooling off period imposed in a strike situation; 76 per cent believe strikers should be outlawed in essential services, and 71 per cent would ban public service strikes.

Warren Allmand has not asked anybody anything.

Housing

Oshawa Times

Building inspectors at Durham region have pointed out that modular homes are not forbidden in the region.

This is doubtless some proposed for a Cadmus lot owned by Eric Schmidt who refused because it did not conform to Township of Scugog bylaws.

In fact, Oshawa has a subdivision which is made up of modular homes. They were installed by a developer-builder.

Contrary to a conclusion that modular homes are forbidden, the region's inspectors welcome them as one means of reducing housing costs and suggest they are particularly suited to the areas that are planning on building their own homes rather than large scale builders who may find the margin of profit greater than for conventional homes.

"And when he was come into the house, the blind came to him: and Jesus saith unto them, Believe ye that I am able to do this? They say unto him, Yea, Lord. Then touched he their eyes, saying, According to your faith be it unto you. And their eyes were opened; and Jesus strictly charged them, saying, See that no man know it." Matthew 9:28-30.

If we feel that the Lord is capable of performing the miracle of miracles, the saving of a soul, why should we think that He can be stopped short of a lesser miracle, such as healing or deliverance?

Seniors View Capital Courtesy of Federal Scheme

MARMORA — Two Marmora senior citizens were guests of the Canadian government for five days last week while participating in a Discover your National Capital program.

President Eva Post of the Marmora Senior Citizens' Association and Mary Corkery left on May 31 for Ottawa where they were joined by 31 other senior citizens from Alberta, Manitoba, Ontario, Quebec and Nova Scotia at Ottawa University for a full five days of sightseeing and activities.

The group visited the National War Museum, Laurier House — former residence of two Canadian Prime ministers, Sir Wilfred Laurier and William Lyon Mackenzie King, Upper Canada Village, The National Museum of Science and Technology, The National Museum of Man, Parliament Hill, Gatineau Park, Rideau Hall — Governor General House, The National Gallery and the National Arts Centre.

Mrs. Post and Mrs. Hicker report they had a "marvelous time". The trip cost them about $20 each, all other expenses being paid by the government.

Other activities arranged for them included a film night, bingo, a visit to the Ottawa Senior Citizens' clubroom and a closing banquet.

Started four years ago by the federal secretary of state department, the program runs for four weeks each year. Information regarding the program is sent out to all associations across Canada and interested persons are asked to submit their names. About 4,000 names are collected by provinces and the lucky ones are drawn by lottery.

Hastings Highlights

Donation Deferred

MARMORA — A request from the Marmora Recreation Committee for a donation toward the cost of running summer activities has been held up by Marmora and Lake Township Council until more information is obtained. The committee said it needs $1,400 to cover costs this year. Because 55 percent of the children participating in the program other years are from the township, the committee is asking for a contribution or the children will have to be charged for participating.

Fire Ante Raised

MARMORA — Fire wardens will be paid at the rate of $4 per hour and firefighters $3.50 per hour while fighting fires this year, the provincial ministry of natural resources has advised Marmora and Lake Townships Council. The ministry will also pay mileage at the rate of 18 cents per mile for vehicles required during firefighting operations.

Village Hall Busy

DELORO — The members of Deloro Village council are pleased with the community hall rentals.

During May, the Deloro Village Social Association catered to four banquets.

With the warm weather fast approaching, it was decided to investigate air conditioning. This will give the public a comfortable atmosphere inside when the temperature rises.

Summerfest Planned

MARMORA — The Marmora-District Lions Club has asked for and been given permission to use the arena for their Summerfest on July 18.

Councillor Gordon Bennett said he did not expect that activities in the arena would interfere with the Summerfest.

Contract Awarded

Thurlow Township council Wednesday awarded the contract for yearly maintenance and surface treatment of town roads to H. J. McFarland Construction Co. Ltd., of Belleville. The contract, is worth $45,318.

Ten Winners

MARMORA — Ray Brown of Deloro sold 10 winning tickets in the Olympic Lottery last Sunday. Nine area people won $100 each and one person $1,000.

Mr. Brown sold in the neighborhood of 800 tickets on the 50 series. He says he has regular customers over a large territory, including the U.S. and had winners in every series draw.

Area Lutherans Mark 15th Birthday

Lutherans of the Quinte area recently celebrated the 15th anniversary of their congregation.

Special speaker at the service and dinner was Canadian Forces Chaplain, Major S. G. Horne of Trenton.

At the dinner, Rev. Donald Himmelman read a history of the Lutheran Church in the Quinte area.

The first Lutherans were United Empire Loyalists who settled in 1784 in Marysburgh Township. Most of them were prisoners of war in Virginia before moving to this area.

The Lutherans had the first church in Prince Edward County with Rev. Heinrich Meyer and his son Rev. August Meyer. The congregation was eventually absorbed after Rev. A. Meyer accepted a position in the Dundas County Lutheran parish.

It was not until 1946 that Lutheran services were again held in the Quinte area, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Max Wodouls of Belleville. Rev. Dr. John Roble, President of the Canada Synod spoke.

For three years Belleville was made a "preaching point", and until 1950, regular services were conducted by Rev. Harry Lessing, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran Church, Kingston followed by Rev. Alfred Kramer of the same parish for one year.

During this time, a Building Fund was started and nine years later $5,000 was paid to purchase a site at 516 Victoria Ave.

In the fall of 1959, Rev. Harold Enderman became the mission developer with areas of the city surveyed.

Membership increased and this warranted organization of what now is Holy Trinity Church May 15, 1960.

Their present building was dedicated June 23, 1963.

Holy Trinity is a congregation of the Eastern Canada Synod of the Lutheran Church in America, and has Rev. Donald J. Himmelman as its pastor.

Students Say Jobs There — If You Look

By NAN WHITLAW
Staff Correspondent

BANCROFT — How's the summer job market in the Bancroft area? The best way to find out is to ask the students who have spent the last several months trying to nail down that job that will help to finance university or provide a wardrobe for another year at North Hastings High School.

According to students questioned, the jobs are available this year for the kids who are willing to go out and get them.

"I applied for my job before Christmas," said Ralph Musclow, "I didn't hear whether I got until the end of May."

Donna Hooper is waiting to hear if she will be getting her first job at a grocery store.

"It's kind of hard to get your first job," said Donna. "Everyone wants you to have experience."

According to Donna's brother, Glenn, "There're lots of kids without jobs, but I guess they didn't really try."

DONNA HOOPER

Donna Hooper, 17, Grade 13 student at Northern says she hopes she has a job at a grocery store. Donna's job will last all summer long, however, she doesn't think that she will be making much more than the minimum wage.

The store will be, according to Donna, hiring between 10 -12 students.

GLENN HOOPER

Glenn Hooper, 19, finished Grade 13 at NHHS.

Glenn hopes to attend the University of Western Ontario in September so he needs to make some money to cover expenses. He has been hired by the ministry of natural resources to check public access points at Silent Lake Provincial Park. Glenn anticipates that he will be making more than minimum wage.

"It's really manual labor," said Glenn, "but I wouldn't mind working for the ministry full time in another type of job."

JAYNE LYON

Jayne Lyon, 16, grade 12 student at NHHS will be working for a local bakery this year. She is the only student employee that they will be hiring this summer.

"I really enjoy the work," said. Jayne. "It's not too difficult."

This is the second year that she has had this job, however, she's not sure she's the pay scale that she will be on.

"Most of my friends have been able to get jobs," said Jayne, "unless they are too particular about what they want to do."

NANCY MUSCLOW

Nancy Musclow, 13, entering Grade 9 at NHHS in September said, "I really want to get a job this year.

"I deliver newspapers and it doesn't pay much money, but I don't mind."

Nancy intends to seek a job next year and to pick up some babysitting this summer.

She says that most of her friends who want jobs were able to get them.

RALPH MUSCLOW

Ralph Musclow, 18, finishing Grade 13 at NHHS, says he intends to take engineering at Waterloo University in September and he has been hired by the Ministry of Transportation and communications to act on a survey crew.

"I really had to apply early," said Ralph, "My job goes on all summer with a 40-hour week."

If it's necessary, Ralph will be able to get overtime pay.

Society Donates Trophy

MARMORA — Members of the Marmora Horticultural Society, which folded three years ago, met last week and decided to distribute the $144.31 in the society's bank account.

Donations of $25 will be made to the cancer society, heart fund and Deloro Community Hall.

As a memorial to the late Mae Madgett, who served as treasurer and was one of the club's most hard-working members, it was decided to donate a trophy in her memory for the best fibrous or tuberous begonia entered in a special class for that purpose at the Marmora Fall Fair. No entry fee will be charged and the contest is open to all area residents.

The remaining money after $25 is set aside for the society's bank overdraft and bank charges, will go to the Lions Club to be applied to the emergency rescue unit which the Lions Club purchased and is equipping.

Diefenbaker Defends Morgentaler

JOHN DIEFENBAKER

OTTAWA (CP) — Former prime minister John Diefenbaker said Thursday that Henry Morgentaler is the victim of "an orgy of persecution" by Justice Minister Jerome Choquette.

"That's what it is," he told reporters after making the remark in the Commons where it prompted jeers from some Liberal MPs and a lecture by Justice Minister Otto Lang.

"It's the grossest travesty I have seen," Mr. Diefenbaker said. "It's persecution personified."

Dr. Morgentaler has been acquitted twice by Quebec juries on two separate charges of performing an illegal abortion. The first jury decision was reversed by the Quebec appeal court, a decision upheld by the Supreme Court of Canada this spring.

The 53-year-old doctor, who has admitted performing more than 5,000 abortions at his Montreal clinic, began an 18-month sentence in March.

New Policy Monday

OTTAWA (CP) — A shift in direction for national transportation policies is to be announced formally Monday but the long-awaited statement is expected to be sketchy.

The policy statement, to be made by Transport Minister Jean Marchand in the Commons, likely will underline the minister's view that the government should have a greater role in managing and financing transport.

In general, the new policy is expected to argue that the government should have a stronger voice in managing transportation than it has since the National Transportation Act of 1967.

Appeal Considered

OTTAWA (CP) — An appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada on the overturning of a 1974 newspaper monopoly conviction against New Brunswick's Irving interests is being considered, Justice Minister Otto Lang said Thursday.

Last week, the appeals division of the New Brunswick Supreme Court overturned the conviction, against four Irving-controlled companies, of forming a monopoly through their ownership of the province's five English-languages daily newspapers.

Nuclear Queries

OTTAWA (CP) — Two potential customers for Canadian nuclear power plants raised embarrassing questions Thursday for the government.

The questions involve a continuing debate about whether Canada should sell the plants to countries that might use the nuclear byproducts to make weapons, as India did a year ago with plutonium from the Canadian-made reactor—called a Candu.

South Korea and Argentina are ready to buy Candu reactors and negotiations are under way on bilateral safeguard agreements to prevent the use of nuclear materials for weapons.

Benito Llambi, Argentine ambassador, said Tuesday that all nations should have the same rights, including the possibility of building nuclear weapons.

Will Protect Buyers

OTTAWA (CP)—Legislation soon will be introduced in the commons to ensure the confidentiality of consumer credit checks, Consumer Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet said Thursday.

Speaking at the opening of a two-day conference of government officials and representatives of the business community, Mr. Ouellet said his department is developing such policies in anticipation of a "highly computerized future society."

He said the proposed legislation is necessary to meet the requirements of what will become a "cashless-chequeless society" in which the consumer will make all his purchases with credit cards.

He cited a trial supermarket computer checkout system at Doval, Que. as an example of what the future holds.

TOO MUCH MEAT IN YOUR DIET?

The great Canadian "meat gorge"—does it make nutritional sense? Is meat necessary to your health? Is a vegetarian diet more healthful than a meat diet? Statistics show that vegetarians are thinner, in better health, with lower blood cholesterol, than their flesh-eating fellow citizens—and they may even live longer! Many doctors —and most heart specialists— now recommend that we cut our meat consumption by a full one third. DO WE EAT TOO MUCH MEAT? You'll find some surprising answers in this timely report. Farm Plan Criticized

TORONTO (CP) — Styling a farm income stabilization program for Ontario along the same lines as one introduced in British Columbia would lead to a "bureaucratic nightmare," Agriculture Minister William Stewart told the legislature Thursday.

He said Ontario has its own idea of the form a stabilization plan should take, adding he has not yet introduced such a program because he is waiting to see what is proposed by the federal government.

The March 11 speech from the throne promised Ontario farmers a stabilization plan.

Donald MacDonald (NDP-Toronto York South) has accused Mr. Stewart of waffling on the issue and of belittling the B.C. program as a means of avoiding introducing one in Ontario.

Mr. MacDonald was ejected from the legislature Tuesday after saying Mr. Stewart's statements on the B.C. plan have been a "misrepresentation amounting to a lie."

WILLIAM STEWART

Protect Homes

TORONTO (CP) — A home-buyers' warranty plan may be introduced in the legislature in early fall, Sidney Handleman, minister of consumer and commercial relations, said Thursday.

The minister said he wants the plan to be a true warranty with the cost built into the price of the home.

He also said the warranty will cover deficiencies in workmanship and materials for five years.

Obscenity Examined in Report

OTTAWA (CP) — The Law Reform Commission of Canada, in a 39 page report, concludes that public obscenity should fall within the purview of criminal law.

The 10th report on the status of criminal law in Canada says that any activity that threatens to harm the essential or core values of any society necessarily falls within the jurisdiction of the criminal—as opposed to the civil—code.

The commission says criminal law is used to deal with "acts that threaten or infringe essential and important values such as freedom from violence, dishonesty and disorder."

Public obscenity—defined as the "undue exploitation of sex on billboards and advertisements, sex magazines in public view"—constitutes such a threat, it says.

The recommendations, if adopted by the justice department, would mean the continued prohibition of pornographic magazines and advertisements displayed in public and considered obscene.

The 10 most asked questions about the new $1,500 Ontario Home Buyers Grant.

What does it take to be eligible for this new Grant?

Very simply, you must first be a resident of Ontario, 18 years of age or older. And second, the home must be your principal residence and the first housing unit bought or built by you, your spouse, your co-owner or the spouse of the co-owner.

You mean it has nothing to do with how much I make or how much the house costs?

That's right. There are no income restrictions, nor are there any restrictions on the price of the housing unit, as long as the purchase price is equal to the fair market value. As well, the grant applies to new and older homes alike.

What do you mean by "housing unit"?

A housing unit is defined as a unit suitable for permanent habitation that provides living, sleeping, eating and food preparation facilities for one family.
The housing unit may be:

a) a house containing not more than two housing units
b) a condominium
c) a unit of a co-operative housing corporation
d) a mobile home that meets prescribed standards defined by the Canadian Standards Association.

I've been thinking of buying a home but I haven't done anything definite yet. Is there any time limit?

Yes. You must complete the purchase of the housing unit between April 8, 1975 and December 31, 1975 and reside in this housing unit as your principal residence by June 30, 1976.

Can we use the $1,500 for our down payment?

Not directly, since you will not receive the grant until after you own and reside in your housing unit.

How do I apply for the $1,500 Grant?

To apply, you must file an application with the Ministry of Revenue.

You will be mailed the initial $1,000 cheque after your application is approved. If you continue to live in the house you will receive, upon reapplication, an additional cheque for $250 in each of the next two years on the anniversary date of your qualification for the initial grant. In all $1,500.

When should I file my application?

You should file it after you own the housing unit and reside in it as your principal residence.

If we qualify for the Ontario Home Buyers Grant, will we still be eligible for other housing grants?

Yes. This is a new grant from the Province of Ontario and does not affect participation in other programs.

How do I get the application form?

You can get applications by writing:
Ministry of Revenue
Ontario Home Buyers Grant
Queen's Park
Toronto, Ontario M7A 2C9
Also application forms have been made available through many realty offices and trust companies.

Just one more thing—how can I get more information about all of this, if I need it?

You can phone us, free of charge, by dialing "0" and asking the operator for Zenith 8-2000. Residents within Metro Toronto local calling area should dial 965-8470. Phone lines are open from 8 to 8 weekdays, and from noon until 5 on Saturday.

The $1,500 Home Buyers Grant is just part of the picture.

Ontario understands how important it is to have a home of your own. And we'd like to help out with a grant of $1,500 towards your first home. It's part of an overall plan to make more homes available in Ontario. And stimulate our economy. So it's good for all of us.

W. H. Auden's Eccentricities Revealed in New Biography

LONDON (Reuter) — With magnificently furrowed face, crumpled appearance and abundant eccentricities, W.H. Auden has come shambling into public view again, seen through the eyes of friends and contemporaries.

It might never have happened. Auden objected to biographies of poets. He wanted to be remembered through his poetry alone. When he died in September, 1973, he left instructions for his letters to be destroyed.

However, quite apart from his stature as a major poet, Wystan Hugh Auden's personality was too colorful, endearing and amusing to escape posthumous analysis.

This has come in W. H. Auden: A Tribute," published by Weidenfeld and Nicolson and edited by Stephen Spender, with reminiscences by more than 30 friends of the poet.

Here is vintage Auden from first to last, telling his tutor at Oxford University: "I'm going to be a great poet," and saying towards the end of his life: "I like to think that if I hadn't been a poet, I might have become an Anglican bishop, politically liberal, I hope; theologically and liturgically conservative, I know."

The book does throw new light on Auden's character but it is essentially what the title says, a tribute, paying homage to one of the greatest poets writing in English in this century.

Through different but always friendly eyes, it traces his development—physically, intellectually, spiritually and poetically—from his birth at York, England, on Feb. 21, 1907, until his death 66 years later in Vienna.

After dazzling the literary skies of England in the 1930s, Auden went to the United States, became a U.S. citizen, but finally returned to die in Europe. The lifelong commitment of his youth was replaced by a return to religion. His poetry reflected the change, yet always kept its distinct and unique voice.

"The combination of lyrician and emigrant, the controlled strangeness, he wit, the genius in formal invention, are a perpetual pleasure," writes critic Stuart Hampshire.

Photographs and comments depict his physical transformation from the "untidy, untied-up, short-sighted, pallid" undergraduate (a description by critic Geoffry Grigson) to what sculptor Henry Moore described as "the monumental ruggedness of his face, its deep furrows like plow marks crossing a field."

Auden emerges as a man of immense intellect with a relish for punctuality, a craze for crosswords and a total disregard for possessions

"Preferring to live with his own sex, yet hankering after the atmosphere of a family," writes James Stern, "he gravitated increasingly towards married couples—and always with the happiest results."

Stern quotes him as saying in 1949: "Why do most of the ladies I meet go mad?" Poet describes the "oracular quality" of Auden as a student, a new type of undergraduate "already aware of slum conditions in Birmingham and mining towns and docks."

To Hampshire he seemed "the first of the post-modern writers in England: assimilating slap-bangs and waste-matter of political minds, the boys' games and imaginary conspiracies of middle-class England, the jumbled notions of Freudian new thought, the decaying railway lines and semi-urban landscapes."

Auden was one of a new school of socially aware, left-wing writers who blossomed in the Depression years when the right-wing dictators threatened to engulf Europe and the Soviet Union seemed the hope of socialism.

Like many of his generation, the Spanish civil war, from 1936 to 1939, was a key experience, a rehearsal, it seemed, for the battle between left and right for the future of Europe.

Spender quotes Auden, starting his return to the Anglican church. He went to Spain during the civil war and the experience shook his faith in revolutionary solutions.

Auden himself recorded that on his arrival in Barcelona, to work for the left-wing republican government in 1937 "I found as I walked through the city that all the churches were closed and there was not a priest to be seen. To my astonishment, this discovery left me profoundly shocked and disturbed. . . ."

Next to his religion, his calling as a poet was the dominant factor in his life. Yet he realized the limitations of poetry. "The social and political history of Europe would be just the same if Shakespeare, Dante and Goethe had never written," he once wrote.

A few of the essays in the tribute concentrate on Auden's poetry more than his personality. In his work, he made use of idioms and everyday language, creating an impression of simplicity above depths of beauty and profundity.

A poem of his later period illustrates something of this:

"Time will say nothing but I told you so,
"Time only knows the price we have to pay,"

Spender, in a valediction, brings his 40-year friendship with Auden, into sharp focus by evoking memories of the young poet who spoke for the liveliest of his contemporaries and of the older Auden who "never became respectable, could always be outrageous and occasionally undermined his own interests by giving indiscreet interviews about his life."

But Auden himself probably had the last word on his long love affair with life, in lines addressed to himself not long before his death:

"Time, we both know, will decay you, and already
"I'm scared of our divorce."

His Customers Drive Best

ST. CATHARINES, Oct. (CP) — You can pull your ailing compact into Hyphen Repairs for treatment, but it takes courage.

Because the car sitting next to yours in the small garage is likely to be a Rolls-Royce.

Ralph Curson, a former Rolls apprentice, started the venture a year ago, even though there are only about seven of the automotive aristocrats in town, and gets business from all over Ontario and New York State.

He also handles Bentleys—the Rolls-Royce's somewhat less prestigious cousins—and the odd Daimler but makes no secret of his personal preference.

"I've driven Bentleys, Ferraris, Cadillacs, but the Rolls is by far the superior car on the road."

Working with him is another Briton, Richard Rice, who specializes in small European cars.

One Bentley is in for a complete restoration and engine job which will take three years, Mr. Curson said the owner was happy to wait for it.

Despite the financial problems which closed down its aerospace division, Mr. Curson said Rolls-Royce is building its finest cars ever.

The basic Rolls, with no frills, sells for $25,500. Fancier models can be had for $45,000 to $70,000.

But they're likely to run for a while. One of the cars in for an overhaul is a 1933 Phantom with 500,000 miles in it. A 1939 Wraith has gone about the same distance.

Mr. Curson is particularly pleased to be the temporary custodian of a 1936 Rolls with a long wheelbase. Only 57 of them were made and there are only two in Canada.

Diversity Continues

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — The economic stability of Virginia has never been dependent on a single industry, or even a few. Ever since the first handful of permanent settlers—the Virginia Company of London—landed at Jamestown in 1607 and set to work making glass, iron, barrels, ships, pitch and tar, industrial diversity has been flourishing in the state.

Rosenberg Sons Use Book As Spur to Reopen Case

NEW YORK (Reuter) — The sons of Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, the couple executed as spies, have just published a book which they hope will spur a reopening of the notorious case.

In We Are Your Sons, Robert and Michael Meeropol write: "We pledge ourselves to fight in the courts, in the Congress, in the press, in speakers' platforms, anywhere, until the truth of our parents' innocence is public knowledge."

The Rosenberg sons were adopted by the Meeropol family in 1957 and grew up in New Jersey. Michael, who was 16 when his parents died in the electric chair in 1953, is an assistant professor at Western New England College and lives with his wife and their two children in Springfield, Mass.

He has two advanced degrees in economics.

Robert, who was six at the time of the execution, has taught anthropology at the same university but now is working on his doctorate in urban anthropology. Like his brother, he lives in Springfield with his wife and their daughter.

Morton Sobell served 17 years and nine months of his 30 — year sentence for conspiring to transmit defense information to the Soviet Union. He was paroled in 1969 but must report to a parole officer until 1981.

He is working as a medical electronics engineer in New York City. His wife Helen, who tirelessly fought for his freedom, teaches science at a school in Manhattan.

Mrs. Sobell has said she spent $1 million on legal manoeuvres to free her husband. Seven appeals to the Supreme Court were rejected.

He wrote a book called On Doing Time about his experiences in prison, including 5½ years in Alcatraz. In the book, Sobell proclaims his innocence and insists the case was a frame-up.

Sobell told the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) filed suit in federal district court last year in New York to free 10 government exhibits used in the case—allegedly made by David Greenglass, Ethel Rosenberg's brother, of a lens module from the Los Alamos, N.M., atomic energy research centre.

The U.S. Justice Attorney's office said the exhibits were lost but, under pressure from the ACLU lawyer, they were located a month later.

The court battles on this and another "freedom of information" suit to obtain Rosenberg files are continuing.

Dr. Philip Morrison, co-builder of the patient on the A-bomb, has said in a television documentary that the lens drawings were not secret and were probably not done by Greenglass. He was "very little trained, had only a high-school education, and had no contact with the actual research and manufacture of the bomb."

Greenglass, a chief prosecution witness, served 15 years in prison. His wife Ruth was named as co-conspirator but was never indicted. She also served as a prosecution witness.

They have changed their name and live in an undisclosed city.

Harry Gold, the confessed connection with the Soviets and a key government witness, served 15 years in jail. He died in 1972 aged 69.

In an earlier trial, before the same judge and chief prosecutor, Gold said he had constructed a fantasy life which for years he presented to friends and acquaintances as true.

But prosecutor Roy Cohn said in the documentary, "Gold came across as one of the most truthful witnesses. . . . he murdered you on the facts."

Gold's contact with the Soviets, German-born British physicist Klaus Fuchs, confessed being a spy. He spent nine years in a British prison and now works at the Dresden Institute for Atomic Physics in East Germany.

Ann Landers

Flights of Fancy—By Mail

Dear Ann Landers: Last night I almost died of shock. I was cleaning out the storeroom and came across a box of letters. It seems my husband has a heavy correspondence going with wife swappers club members and teen-age sex pals. He has been very careful not to ask placed by homosexuals and couples interested in "swinging."

Not only did I find letters he has received but the carbon copies of letters he has written. Pictures were attached to some of the letters and the writers thanked him for the pictures. Our woman said, "You are very handsome. I wonder what your picture be sent."

I am very shaken up by this and don't know what to do. My husband is 35 years old, he has never cheated on me that I know of. We've been married 20 years and have a fine family. What does this mean? Shall I confront him with the evidence? Please advise. I am—Worried Sick

Dear W. S.: By all means confront him with the evidence. Since he's always been well behaved I suspect he is having some fun with his fantasy. Suggest counseling—and go with him so that you will be sure he's not off on a wild kick. Lisa was very unhappy and I was moved up. I believe when a child makes a date it should be kept—unless the youngsters become ill. Some members don't agree with me. They feel a child should be free to change his mind and make his own decisions regarding friends. What do YOU think?—Fuming In Florida

Dear Fuming: Once a child makes a date, it is a commitment. A last-minute change is unfair to others and is a legitimate reason to disappoint a friend.

Lisa's mother should have insisted the child—with the understanding that if she didn't want to accept future invitations she didn't have to, but once having said "yes" she was obligated.

Consumers Need Protection

From High Costs, Bad Health

OTTAWA (CP) — Industry and government will be pressed to change several laws this year if the Consumer's Association of Canada forces proposals it made Tuesday to fight for its money's worth.

Representatives of the 100,000-member organization approved a resolution calling for changes they say would be able to protect consumers from high costs or bad health.

Despite internal problems with the 14,000-member Quebec wing which threatened Monday to withdraw if conditions do not improve — for French-speaking delegates by March 1, association president Jim O'Grady said he expected few problems.

The association voted to ask Health and Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde to change the Food and Drug Act to ban advertising directed at doctors and to require that drugs be labelled with generic names instead of brand names.

Dr. Murray Katz, a Montreal physician who has supplied research material for the association, told delegates to the annual conference not to settle for controlled advertising.

"The medical profession would not suffer in any way if drugs were prescribed," he said. "Drug companies are not small groups of people begging for money to do research.

"They are two spaghetti chains and cosmetic factories and their research expenditures are negligible."

Ron Cohen, chairman of the association's consumer affairs committee, said the organization is pressing for mandatory seat belt regulations in every province. Nova Scotia and Saskatchewan yet to be proclaimed by the cabinet and Alberta, Ontario and the Northwest Territories are the most likely to implement such laws, he said.

Delegates said they will push the transport department to make mandatory the recall, at manufacturers' expense, of motor vehicles with safety-related defects.

Mr. Cohen said current laws require manufacturers to notify only original purchasers of the defective vehicle but there is no penalty if they do not recall it. The association called for legislation to ensure that the current owner is notified.

A health department spokesman told the conference that department will study the effects of artificial food colorings, which conference delegates said may lead to cancer in adults and hyper-activity in children.

"These possibilities do exist and we will be carefully further studies to confirm it," he said.

Ontario delegate Betty Stewart sponsored a proposal to make it illegal for stores to sell merchandise not plainly marked with a price tag.

The consumer affairs department was urged to study computerized supermarkets where merchandise is labelled with a code rather than a price tag. Shoppers' receipts contain the name of the product and its price but she said the system lends itself to profiteering.

The association urged that the consumer affairs department examine the food prices review board's job of monitoring food subsidies and that it recruit medical officers to set up regional campaigns on metric conversion.

The food industry will be asked to reduce the quantity of sugar used in processing foods and fruits.

Canadians are the second largest sugar consumers in the world," delegates were told. "And half of Canadians are overweight at certain periods partly because of excessive sweets."

An agriculture department spokesman said regulations which remove all restrictions on sugar levels in fruit processing will be considered next week. New fruit labelling ranging from no sugar content to heavy sugar content will probably be approved, he said.

Changes Proposed for Rape Laws

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal advisory council on the status of women gave preliminary approval Tuesday to proposals that would rewrite federal rape laws if adopted by the government.

A report which the council will discuss with justice department experts and rape crisis centres across the country was adopted unanimously at a general council meeting.

A final draft is expected to be adopted during the next council meeting at Halifax in October. The council acts in an advisory capacity to the government.

If accepted, the recommendations would abolish the word rape and replace it in the statute books with four categories of sexual assault.

Offences would vary in seriousness and punishment depending on the presence or absence of violence and on the occurrence of intercourse, "at least an initial stage."

Protection against sexual abuse and exploitation would be extended to both sexes if the proposals are accepted, the report says.

At the same time the proposals would recognize that the law cannot and should not prevent "all sexual activity engaged in by minors."

Less sweeping changes are already proposed by Justice Minister Otto Lang. A bill scheduled to be tabled soon in the Commons would abolish the announce new measures to protect rape victims from embarrassment and harassment in the courts.

Mr. Lang indicated last year that the changes would restrict cross-examination of the victim's sexual background, prevent reporting of the victim's name, reduce public access to rape proceedings, and encourage the transfer of trials to centres outside the victim's hometown.

No person under 14 would be considered capable of giving consent to intercourse. Persons between 14 and 16 would be considered incapable if the accused person is a parent, teacher, guardian or someone else "in authority over the victim."

Second degree sexual assault would be defined as sexual contact without intercourse in any of the circumstances otherwise constituting a first degree offence.

A third degree charge would include sexual penetration in cases where no injury is suffered. The fourth category would be sexual contact without injury.

Other recommendations would:

—Extend sexual assault protection to married persons separated from their spouses.

—Remove existing Criminal Code requirements for corroboration of the victim's testimony in sexual offence prosecutions.

—Prevent admission of evidence on the victim's sexual past except in cases where evidence of good character is introduced by the Crown.

—Encourage judges to be the public from all or part of a trial when necessary to spare the victim embarrassment.

The report was presented by Mary Casey of Halifax and Rae-Ann Mackintosh of Montreal, leaders of a council committee studying existing rape laws.

French Prostitutes Hold Protest Strike

PARIS (AP) — Jocelyne is an unhappy hooker. With thousands of other French prostitutes, she is on strike, demanding that prostitution be recognized "as a job like any other" and prostitutes as "full citizens, women and mothers."

Jocelyne—tall, slim, blonde, articulate, a prostitute for five years at the age of 26, and her sister Violaine, at 36 a veteran of seven years on the "the business," are spokeswomen for a group of hookers occupying a church annex in a modern development in central Paris.

As they talked Sunday, after mass, a priest very went among the group—"Barbes is with us."

"Ah," said Jocelyne, "That means all the prostitutes in Paris are on strike—in Pigalle, all the tourist districts, everywhere. The Barbes district was the last holdout. The women are on strike and occupying church premises in most of France's major cities. Their demands have been publicized in a leaflet issued by the Committee of Whores, Prostitutes of Paris and they include:

—An end to police repression and fines for solicitation (prostitution itself is not a crime in France).

—Regular income tax status, social security and a pension plan for all French mothers.

—"We want to be full citizens."

—The reopening of hotels used for prostitution, but a firm "no" to the reopening of brothels.

—Suppression of vice-squad files after a woman retires from prostitution.

The specification of "women prostitutes" in the committee's name is not redundant. Male transvestite prostitutes have to the evident discomfort of the women, joined in the movement at the church.

The transvestites have an extra gripe: one of the laws forbids men to wear women's clothes in public—forced during carnival season. The male prostitutes get double the fine of a female prostitute because of this law.

PEW VOTE

Jocelyne firmly denied allegations that prostitutes are behind the protest movement. "The business has changed in the last 10 to 15 years," she said. "There are now maybe only 20 per cent of girls with pimps, often because they want in."

Vice squads, Jocelyne maintain that the majority of girls on the streets are not by pimps.

About 20 prostitutes joined regular parishioners at mass in the underground church in the Montparnasse station, a main Paris commuter terminal.

"The parishioners were first, they were welcome," said "They offered us money, food and blankets. The priest said in his sermon that they should try to understand our problems, not judge us as they took it to heart."

The girls are demanding talks with Interior Minister Michel Poniatowski, who controls the police, or Health Minister Simone Veil, as effective minister who has a sympathetic image.

"How can we make a living when we get fined maybe three to five times a day—and each time it's a minimum of 100 francs ($40) and maybe 200 francs ($80)—and a threat of prison always hanging over us?" asked Jocelyne.

Doris Clark

She Feels Foolish

Dear Doris: My husband is 72 years old and I'm a young 32. He has always tried to make me feel foolish in front of people, saying I ought to be ashamed of himself or me? He has started doing it with our own family.

I pay him what for, but he'll try it again before long. He had a domineering father and he was a spoiled "Mama's Boy."

There should be some law against men (or women) pestering their wives or children. I guess they are married, but I'm not sure they are married, but I'm not sure they surely aren't after!

I'm fed up with him, or by myself? As it has come to this and we really ever have company. When we go where there are strangers he looks and acts ashamed of himself, is it because he feels silly or wants me to feel?

His father wasn't allowed to hit a hand on him. But surely ever had company when he was growing up.

Long Suffering.

Dear Long: Men are prone to put our best foot forward in courtship. But your man doesn't even know what's wrong. All the result of self-protection.

What gets me is that he obviously picked a girl — you — who let him keep on being Mama's Boy for the last forty years. The difference in age probably had something to do with it; and you doubtless kept hoping he would grow up some day. So you preferred peace-at-any-price to insisting yourself as a person, with a mind of your own.

His shamefaced-type socializing is through lack of confidence, also stemming from over-protection. His belittling? Same reason — he is trying to get confidence through putdowns — of you.

I doubt if you'll leave him, at this date; but there's still time for some nonsensese self-assertion. Don't let him scaredy-cat, you'll try it.

Dear Doris: I attach the words to "My Little Grey Home In The West". When I was married it believed that bosh about "Hand that will welcome me in, Eyes that will shine because they are mine" and so on.

That was 40 years ago. How trite it seems now. How young I was. I believed it all then. Now? Not any more! It's a trap.

A Friend.

Dear Friend: So it didn't work out for you? I'm sorry!

Dad Isn't Forgotten

This column usually reminds the ladies to visit the West Wind Boutique in Antiques Plus to shop for very lovely women's fashions. We aren't going to change our advice, but would like to suggest that while you are there, why not do your shopping for Father's Day? It's mentioned that the West Wind Boutique also carries gift suggestions for the man in your life. Gift items include pure wool blankets and hand woven Mackenzie ties. Also in stock are the usual shirts, sweaters and socks. If you are looking for the unusual, you could buy leather driving gloves, handmade pottery mugs, handcrafted cuff links or beautiful car blankets.

Another Great Idea

What makes a good store better? Murray's Food Market, 290 Front St., have found the answer — new ideas! Selling good old-fashioned, perfect meat is not the only thing that sets the hours of 5-6:30 p.m., now that's a new idea! And people liked the idea. Due to the demand for fresh, local meat on Friday, it will be a continuing service at Murray's. But they don't stop there. Shoppers will be surprised to see a variety of fruit at the front of their store and customers are invited to submit suggestions so that the staff will know how they may better serve you. They want to know the ideas, they want to make your shopping easier or more pleasurable! Now, unfortunately, they can't do much about rising prices, but they certainly would like to make your shopping more convenient. They may be an old-fashioned store in many respects, but when it comes to "new ideas", you can't beat Murray's.

Expert Repairs

I've come to the conclusion that a vacuum cleaner is one of the most abused appliances in the home. Maintenance-wise it is treated with little care or, and this is a fact, great quandry. Recently my vacuum toppled down the stairs and broke some hoses, but it continued to work. Not fully efficient, so I felt the time had come to buy a new one. However, working from the theme Mr. G'bbs and Sam, the Vacuum Specialists, I thought I'd see if the vacuum could be repaired. I dropped it off one day and came back the next day to pick it up. There it was, looking like new, as I had left it inside and out and a new hose put on. And as I was leaving I received a package of new vacuum bags to keep me in business for a while. If your vacuum has broken-down, take it to Gibbs and Son, 27 Albion St., before you decide to buy a new one. Everything is in good hands at Gibbs.

Watch For The Art Display

Mrs. Cameron's is a friend. Her business is more a display of their art work in the storefront windows of Avco Financial Services, 252 Front St. (next to Walker's Hardware). Keep watching for the new display. Mrs. Cameron's work will be of course some of the paintings periodically, and you never can tell when you will see a piece of your friend's work presented for you. All the work of the Cameron family won't be on display at 252 Front St., so when you're out for a weekend drive, take a short detour around the Bay and stop in to see the Cameron's. Their address is 114 mi. west of Belleville on the Bayshore Drive, R.R. #1, Trenton. They'll be pleased to have you look around, even if you don't buy. Should you be interested in visiting Mrs. Cameron's summer art classes, contact her at 962-1608.

Holiday Driving With Holiday

Summer holidays are rushing upon us. The children will be out of school soon and most of us are already planning our vacation. If you feel the "old jalopy" just won't make it on another long drive, you've got to have a new one, but consider renting a car from Holiday Car and Truck Rentals. Let one of their cars rack up the miles as you explore the wonders of our country from coast to coast. The cars are well maintained and you'll be carefree as you start out in a new compact Cele, or in a full size Plymouth. They even have one car that's air conditioned, so if you're planning on going to Arizona for your holidays, you'll be able to drive in comfort. Phone Holiday Car and Truck Rentals today, at 962-8114 for further information.

Get Rid Of Those Pesky Bugs

If you're tired of swatting away those pesky mosquitoes and flies, have gone through a truck load of insect sprays and feel you've been relegated to the house or cottage for the summer, here's great news. Rapide Electric Cameron Sales, 291 Coleman St., are selling the new Flowtron electronic bug killers. These are not cheap-cheap, are decorative, economical and easy to use. Special attractants lure the bugs in and they are electrocuted! However a safety screen around the bug killer prevents wear for children, birds and pets. While you're making inquiries about the Flowtron bug killer, ask to see the Weston line of comfortable and de-humidifying fans. Also in stock are the usual shirts, sweaters and socks. Rapide Electric make your summer carefree and comfortable.

See You At The Fair

Hey! Hey! Come to the fair. And while you're visiting the Quinte Exhibition, visit Highland Construction's home improvement display. See samples of their custom built kitchen cabinets which they will build to your specifications. You will also see samples of bathroom vanities which can be built to fit the measurements of your bathroom. Should you be interested in re-siding an older home or adding a porch on your new home, you will be interested in the samples of vinyl siding on display. This vinyl siding is guaranteed by the manufacturer for 30 yrs. and comes in many different colors. Be view this interesting display and find answers to your questions, at Highland Construction display at the Quinte Exhibition this weekend.

Luncheon

Ladies, for that wind-up luncheon with your bridge club or knitting club, come to the Terrace Dining Room at the Four Seasons Hotel. Or meet with your friends for a leisurely luncheon before summer vacations separate you by miles. The hostess are reasonably priced and are so tempting you'll find yourself refusing to even consider one of the delectable desserts. You'll have such choices as: Dieters Delight, an attractive combination of cottage cheese and fruit; Quiche Lorraine, a light pastry filled with eggs, ham and cheese; Omelette, made with cheese, mushrooms or ham. There are other luncheon selections of course and each one as appetizing as the next. Plan to have lunch with your friends soon at the Four Seasons.

Clean From Top to Bottom

ServiceMaster, at the rear of 179 Pinnacle St., have some truly marvelous machines. The tired staff at ServiceMaster will come into your home and clean most of its major various devices. There is a machine that soaps and rinses your walls and ceilings — without a mess! Another machine will wash your floors or, if you wish, completely strip them of wax. For your rugs and furniture they use different apparatus — one to shampoo rugs and a different one to shampoo your furniture. They will pre-test your furniture before they start to ascertain whether it should be shampooed or dry cleaned. Call ServiceMaster today, at 967-1672, and have a trained technician come to your home to give you a free estimate.

Save Money On Repairs

Moira-Schaner Fuels have an excellent idea for all our readers. We all know, of course, that our furnace should be cleaned and checked once a year to keep it running efficiently. And, an efficient furnace is saving you money. You may purchase from Moira-Schaner, a Service and Parts Plan, which includes: cleaning your furnace once a year; the replacement of all parts of the oil burner and related controls (should they be needed), service calls and 24 hour emergency service. The plan is like an insurance policy. If you have problems you'll be covered by this once yearly payment. Your cost for the plan will increase somewhat each year, as labor costs rise, but it's still your best bet for keeping your furnace in peak condition. Call Moira-Schaner, 962-4504, for more information.

New East Zwick's Park Area Is Beginning to Take Shape

Lessons learned from redevelopment of West Zwick's Park are helping shape its greenbelt component on the opposite side of Highway 14.

These are the city's parks department is busy in the initial phase of transforming East Zwick's into a shoreline "island" in recreation area.

Tons of landfill now are being dumped daily at the park's end of the 40-acre site. It will be covered with topsoil and seeded. Something is planned for conversion into a garden area as part of the park complex, flanked by the Bay of Quinte and the Moira River.

But a different approach is being used.

The fill and topsoil is being included and the site graded to form berms or small mounds.

One motive for the design is drainage — a legacy of the 1970s' development of West Zwick's. Every which way the site someday will complement as shoreline recreation.

Both areas were once swamp grounds which saw very landfill used, for the development base.

But such fill slowly settles — as it did in patches at West Zwick's — creating drainage problems and uneven ground in later years.

The parks department learned from its experiment. The new berm designs at East Zwick's are aimed at averting a repitition. Lloyd Byers, parks director said Wednesday. It enhances the outlook esthetically the mounds also will blend in with the rolling ground effect.

To create the mound layout some 30,000-40,000 yards of fill and about 10,000 yards of topsoil are being hauled to the site by a contractor, he estimated.

A guard of soil is under a ton.

So is the first large-scale improvement on the site — for which $100,000 has been marked as a capital works project this year — and seen a steady stream of trucks moving in and from the area overlooked by the nearby Four Seasons Hotel.

There's already a skitobogan hill on the site.

Other possible developments being considered for future years — as money becomes available — include a picnic area and playground, said Mr. Syer.

But the current Bay Front study — a Moira River Conservation Authority storage survey of the shoreline from Point Anne to Bayside — could also influence future development, Mr. Syer conjectured.

Striking Hastings County road workers are back patrolling construction sites near Belleville after their spokesman says the Ontario Supreme Court has ruled against an injunction which barred picketing.

The pickets returned Thursday after a month's absence from three construction sites in County Road 14 — Thurlow Township's second concession running east of Belleville.

Details of the ruling were not known to local strikers since it had not arrived in Belleville by early today.

But, John Boyle, steward for the strikers — members of Local 793, International Union of Operating Engineers — said the document had been received by union lawyers in Toronto.

As a result, strikers have been instructed to return to picketing the sites of three small bridges under construction on the county road by Tatham Co. Ltd., of Belleville.

Mr. Boyle said workers left the site of one bridge — west of the Shannonville Gravel Road — when the pickets returned.

There was no activity on the other two work sites — near Belleville Airport and west of Elmwood Dr. — early today.

William Tatham, president of the company which first sought the injunction — said all workers had been withdrawn from the projects.

He said the bridges were about three weeks from completion when word of the ruling arrived, and pickets returned.

Mr. Tatham could not say what any further action could be taken.

The company's lawyer, Ben Hurley, also said he had not been informed details of the ruling.

Mr. Boyle, on picket duty on one of the bridges, said the strikers think "is not with Tatham. They're caught in the middle. It's with the county."

About 25 road workers went on strike May 6. The injunction, sought by the construction company was granted by County Judge Russell Honey several days later, then appealed by the union.

The appeal was heard May 29 by Ontario Supreme Court Madame Justice Mabel Van-

"On-the-spot inspection of the STOL project — aircraft designed for extra-short takeoff and landing to benefit inter-urban service — was confirmed Thursday by Jack Ellis, MP Quinte.

In recent weeks, Mr. Ellis has been organizing a flight and inspection tour for local government officials from Belleville, Trenton, Hastings and Prince Edward Counties.

Mr. Ellis says the objective of the visit is to set area officials pondering the possibilities of using STOL in a regular passenger service between the Belleville area and major urban centres.

The arrangements involve Dellavalland Aircraft of Canada, designer of a STOL project.

One of its STOL prototypes now is operating on a regular inter-city service between Ottawa and Montreal.

Local officials will fly aboard a STOL plane from CFB Trenton June 26 to Toronto Island airport. Later they will view the Dellavalland project at its Downsview plant.

In the first strike in Hastings County history the workers are seeking a 54-cent hourlyincrease. But a key issue is a catchup demand for $1.21 the strikers say they need to put them on par with wage-rates paid workers in other area municipalities.

Northern Electric Company Ltd. today announced it will lay off 24 hourly-rated employees bringing the total layoff count to more than 460 since last December.

At the same time, Tom Hennessy, public information officer for the plant said a new private exchange system is being developed "that will help stabilize the employment situation in the plant in 1976".

He denied rumors that the plant is closing down saying "a lot of time, energy and talent is going into the new product".

"The product . . . is a software controlled private exchange . . . that has never been in the market place before," said Mr. Hennessy.

He said employees with up to five years seniority will be given notice of the layoff today, with the layoff taking affect in two weeks.

Mr. Hennessy said the action became necessary with a "drop in demand for component parts for coin telephones . . . and a decrease in sales of private exchanges (small switchboards found in office buildings)."

"It doesn't look like its going to get any better for the remainder of the year," he said. "Company officials said marketing forecasts do not indicate a turn around for the remainder of the year."

There will be an afternoon tea with accordion entertainment Tuesday at the Recreation Centre, followed on Thursday by open house at all nursing homes in Belleville. The day will be capped off by tea at Hastings Manor in the afternoon.

Fabricon Gets $160,000 Ontario Hydro Contract

TRENTON — Fabricon Manufacturing Ltd. in Trenton has been awarded a $160,000 contract by Ontario Hydro for provision of shielded control cable — a wrapped wire product used in sensitive electrical equipment.

The contract is one of the smaller contracts announced by Hydro this week. The largest ($12.5 million) goes to Newman Structural Steel in Welland, a firm that will produce steel for construction of a second phase of the nuclear generating station at Pickering.

More than $29 million in contracts was awarded by Hydro for 1975.

A Hydro spokesman said today the shielded cable manufactured by Fabricon will be shipped to Toronto and stored in Hydro's central material depot.

A company spokesman said today the cable is used in equipment in which interference from outside signals is undesirable. Conductors in the cable are wrapped with aluminum or copper tape to ensure such protection.

City police are seeking a person or persons unknown who went on a window-breaking spree on College St. early today and caused damage estimated at about $2,500, the worst incident of vandalism this year.

Chief Douglas Crombie said officers are continuing checks made the first discovery at 3.38 a.m. and 36 minutes later had found damage at six locations.

All windows were smashed at thrown rocks, he said. In addition, the windshields and hoods of two vehicles at Vander's Car Sales at 21 West College St. were kicked in to the tune of $1,000.

School Bus Operator Charged With Impaired Driving

MADOC — A 55-year-old, RR 3, Havelock man — William Joseph Murphy — has been charged with impaired driving by Ontario Provincial Police at Madoc following an incident Thursday involving a school bus carrying 36 children.

Police said today Constable Bob Bonter was following the bus on its regular run from Deloro to Marmora Elementary School at about 8 a.m. following complaints from parents of school students.

Murphy will appear in provincial court in Madoc on Tuesday.

Many Students Still Without Summer Jobs

"Despite poor economic conditions the Belleville Canada Manpower Centre for Students continues this month to place slightly more than 25 per cent of those registered, says student placement officer Peter Fleming.

Mr. Fleming, 25, said more than 250 students out of 1,000 registered have found some type of work since the student placement office opened mid-May. The CMC for Students offices are located at 228 Dundas St. E.

Mr. Fleming now is appealing to all area employers and homeowners for jobs of any description — "We have even supplied a homeowner with a student for one-half hour's work," he added.

He also said it is not too late for students to register with the CMC for Students. "Unless we know who wants work and where to find them it is difficult to help students," he explained.

Mr. Fleming, along with three assistant placement officers, will keep the student placement office open until the first of September. "There are still about 20 or 30 students a day placing their names with us," he added.

Mr. Fleming said that job opportunities are not as good this year as previous summers but that there are some jobs still available. The office is planning a special hire a student week during July and this weekend they are having displays at the Quinte Mall.

Mr. Fleming made a special appeal to homeowners for odd jobs that would give students a couple of days or several weeks work. He said most jobs to date have come from the construction and services areas of the economy.

Fair Draws Them In — Despite Rain

By RON HUSER
Staff Reporter

After a rainy morning Thursday, the sun broke through and more than 8,500 people attended the second day of the Quinte Exhibition.

The grandstand was crowded with people watching a variety of events, including competitions in the heavy horse hitches; a comedy routine; and an aerial trapeze act.

In the heavy horse hitches, for the six horse team, there were four entries. Judged solely on appearance and performance, the team owned by Russell Teeples of Fairley took first place, with Ralph Kent's team from Embro taking second, and the team owned by Syril and Ken Green of Kenburn, third.

The teams had to be driven in front of the grandstand, turned around on the track and stand parallel to each other while being inspected by the judge, Bill Brackett of Highgate.

There were three teams competing in the eight horse hitch.

First place went to Russell Uncle of Barrie; second to the combined team owned by Russell Teeple and Alvin Heath; and third, to the combined team owned by Ralph Kent and Russell Cochrane.

Sir Charles Chase and his Rolls Rotten entertained the crowd with a slight-hearted comedy car routine.

To complete the show, the crowd was entertained by a motorcycle act above the grandstand.

The demolition derby, scheduled for the latter part of the week was cancelled because of the lack of entries, and rescheduled to 2 p.m. Sunday.

Along with the displays in the buildings, fair-goers were entertained by a gospel group and by square-dancers in the Ben Bleecker building; and by a country-rock duet in the curling rink.

Tonight, at 8 p.m., the grandstand will feature harness racing.

Live entertainment will also be featured in the Ben Bleecker building and the curling rink.

Attendance has been slightly down from last year's fall fair. To date, slightly less than 13,000 people have attended the fair as compared to approximately 13,000 people for the first two days of the fall fair last year.

Ex Free for Some Area Senior Citizens

An official of the Quinte Exhibition's office staff said Thursday she can not understand why there has been so little response to an offer of free admittance for the handicapped, underprivileged and residents of area nursing homes.

"Senior citizen both in nursing homes and under the care of social agencies for financial reasons, the handicapped and any other underprivileged people will be admitted free if prior arrangements had been made with this office," she said, when questioned about reduced rates for the elderly.

The placards displaying the gate rate schedule clearly have a section listed under considerations.

"We can't go looking for these people. We have to rely on agencies to contact us and if you consider the amount of them around it is an oversight that none have contacted us," she said.

Only Hastings Manor, the county home for the aged has made provision to take advantage of the offer, she said.

"We can't give three it open to all senior citizens, she said, because it are not unable to afford the price.

Rain or Shine

Intermittent rain earlier Thursday didn't stall off this group of youngsters from being taken to the Quinte Exhibition. Protected by umbrellas, Jim Dunning points out midway attractions to young students he brought from Sir James Whitney School for the deaf.

Gary Nolan – Sixth Straight

Red Hurler Extra Hot

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Gary Nolan doesn't want to set the world on fire—he just wants to put a little heat on the opposition.

"I have no special goals," says the Cincinnati pitcher. "All I'd like to do is go out every fifth day and keep us in the ball game. That's my only goal."

For a fellow who's won six consecutive games, including Thursday night's 10-1 triumph over St. Louis Cardinals, that's a pretty modest goal. At least team-mate Joe Morgan thinks so.

"Before the season started, I figured him for 15 victories if he could pitch without pain," said Morgan. "Now I figure him for 20. He should—on occasion. We didn't give him any runs early in the year.

Nolan, the one-time ace of the Cincinnati staff, was lost to the team most of last year because of shoulder surgery. But he appears to be as good as ever. He's won seven of 10 decisions so far this year.

In the other National League games, Montreal Expos beat San Diego Padres 5-3 in 15 innings, Philadelphia Phillies stopped San Francisco Giants 4-1; Pittsburgh Pirates trimmed Houston Astros 4-3 and New York Mets blanked Los Angeles Dodgers 3-0. Atlanta Braves beat Chicago Cubs 5-4 in the first game of a doubleheader and their second game was suspended after eight innings because of a curfew with the Braves leading 6-2.

Nolan, not only gave the Reds some pitching Thursday night, but some hitting as well. He doubled home two runs in Cincinnati's seven-run sixth frame. Nolan's double followed two-run singles by Tony Perez and pinch-hitter Morgan.

Mike Jorgensen's double delivered Pete MacKanin with the winning run in the 15th inning as Montreal beat San Diego in a marathon game. MacKanin walked with two out and roared home with the tie-breaking run as Jorgensen belted his hard hit to right.

Left-hander Steve Carlton fired a four-hitter and aided his cause with a pair of singles, boosting Philadelphia over San Francisco. Carlton, who has allowed only two runs in his last three games, raised his record to 6-5 with his fourth victory in a row.

Reunie Stennett doubled across the tying run in the fifth inning and scored on Manny Sanguillen's single as Pittsburgh beat Houston.

Jon Matlack pitched a three-hitter and Felix Millan drove in a pair of runs with doubles to pace New York over Los Angeles.

Darrell Evans scored when third baseman Bill Madlock threw Lafyell Blanks' grounder with the bases loaded and two out in the ninth inning enabling Atlanta to beat Chicago in the first game of their double-header. The second game was suspended after eight innings because the Cubs had to catch a plane home for an afternoon contest today.

Johnny Bench–Leads Polls

Reds Head All-star Balloting

NEW YORK (AP) — Johnny Bench is among four Cincinnati Reds nominated for starting honors in voting for the National League all-star team, released today by baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn's office.

Bench, who has been on the NL team the last seven years and started the last five, has a huge lead for the catching spot—227,894 votes to 90,713 for runner-up Manny Sanguillen of Pittsburgh.

The other Reds topping early returns are second baseman Joe Morgan, Dave Concepcion at shortstop and Pete Rose in the outfield.

Morgan has drawn 240,174 votes thus far, nearly five times as many as Pittsburgh's Rennie Stennett, now second in the tally with 55,778.

Concepcion, seeking his first starting role, has attracted 182,836 votes, followed by Larry Bowa of Philadelphia with 136,131. Rose 215,551 in the outfielder's race, followed close behind by the Mets' Rusty Staub with 151,322 and Del Unser with 147,583. Neither Staub nor Unser have started previously, though Staub was a reserve five consecutive times and Unser has played in three games.

Three-letterling ace Lou Brock of St. Louis is also an outfield contender with 108,056 votes, as is Los Angeles' Jimmy Wynn with 98,247.

Two Los Angeles Dodgers have an early advantage in the infield. The Dodgers leaders are first baseman Steve Garvey, a write-in selection in 1974 who ended up most valuable player in the mid-season game, with 191,197 ballots and third baseman Ron Cey with 203,815.

New York's Mike Phillips has drawn the most votes of any write-in candidate this year, polling 38,489 to place him No. 5 among shortstops.

Until American League leaders include second baseman Ron Carew of Minnesota and Hank Aaron of Milwaukee, both of whom have been chosen as starters every year since the ballotting began in 1970. Other AL leaders, announced last week, are Yankee catcher Thurman Munson, first baseman George Scott of Milwaukee, third baseman Aurelio Rodriguez of Detroit, shortstop Bert Campaneris of Oakland and A's outfielders Reggie Jackson and Joe Rudi.

Pitchers and the remainder of the squad will be chosen by the all-star coaches.

Hank Aaron – Cranks Sixth

Henry Holds Homecoming

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Hank Aaron came home Thursday night to Milwaukee—with a home run.

It was Aaron's sixth of the season and 739th of his career, but his first regular-season homer in Milwaukee County Stadium since he contected off Philadelphia's Ray Culp on Sept. 20, 1965.

"I knew eventually it would come," said Aaron, who spent the first 13 years of his career in Milwaukee with the Braves and walloped 398 homers, 185 of them in County Stadium. But since the Braves moved to Atlanta in 1966, Aaron's only Milwaukee home came in an exhibition game two years ago.

Aaron's solo blast off Vida Blue helped his new team, Milwaukee Brewers, defeat Oakland A's 9-7.

Elsewhere in the American League, Chicago White Sox trounced Boston Red Sox 9-3, Kansas City Royals edged Cleveland Indians 2-1 in 10 innings, Baltimore Orioles whipped Texas Rangers 7-1 and California Angels trimmed Detroit Tigers 5-1. The Minnesota Twins and the Yankees were rained out in New York.

Besides his homer, the 41-year-old Aaron singled and scored in a three-run first inning and doubled home a run in the second. George Scott also homered for the Brewers while Gene Tenace and Billy Williams connected for Oakland. It was the 400th of Williams' career.

Home runs by Deron Johnson and Bob Coluccio helped Jim Kaat to his ninth victory, although the Red Sox reached him for 11 hits. By losing for the fourth time in the last five games, Boston's lead over pide Yankees in the East Division was chopped to one-half game.

Jim Wohlford raced home from third base with the winning run on a passed ball by Cleveland catcher John Ellis in the 10th inning, giving Steve Busby the victory over Eric Raich. Wohlford singled with one out in the 10th and went to third on a double by George Brett to set up the winning run.

Jim Palmer notched his 10th victory with a seven-hitter and Mark Belanger knocked in three runs in the Baltimore victory. Palmer, who won a record-tie 16-3 record, best in the American League. He ran his scoreless streak to 32 innings—his last outing was a one-hitter against Kansas City—until the Rangers scored in the eighth on singles by Cesar Tovar and Mike Hargrove around a walk.

Joe Lahoud drove in four runs with a pair of homers, including a three-run shot in a six-run third inning, as California beat Detroit. Earlier, John Hiller got the last three outs to complete a sparkling relief stint as the Tigers nailed down a 5-3 victory in the completion of the second game of Wednesday's twin-bill, which was suspended by an American League curfew after eight innings.

The Angels opened the scoring in the third inning of the when Morris Nettles doubled, moved to third on Mickey Rivers' single and came home on a hit-and-run by Bruce Bochte. Lahoud's fifth home run of the season scored Rivers and Bochte. Lee Stanton followed with a double and a single by Dave Chalk chased Detroit starter Lerrin LaGrow.

Moon Not Blue As Atlanta Brave

JOHN ODOM

ATLANTA (AP) — John (Blue Moon) Odom, who once pitched a perfect game for major league stardom, is hoping a change of scenery and more work will get him back in the groove.

The 30-year-old right-hander acquired Saturday by Atlanta Braves from Cleveland Indians hasn't approached the success he enjoyed in 1972 when he helped Oakland A's begin their string of three consecutive world championships.

Odom had a 15-6 record with the A's in 1972 but plunged to 5-12 and 1-5 marks the last two seasons, working almost exclusively as a relief pitcher last year.

The plunge began shortly after Odom was shot in the side while attempting to foil a robbery in his hometown, Macon, Ga., during the winter after the 1972 season.

It is something Odom declines to discuss, but says he doesn't think it contributed to his downhill slide.

"I was so close to death I don't even like to think about it," said Odom. "I've just tried to forget that. I don't want to talk about that."

Odom says he hopes things will be better for him in Atlanta, 70 miles north of his hometown. "I'm quite sure it will. It can't be any worse than what I've been through."

The veteran pitcher, in his eighth full season in the majors, started the year at Oakland, but was dealt last month to Cleveland, where he pitched a two-hitter against Kansas City on June 4. He had requested an additional $5,000 from the Indians, but they refused and dealt him to the Braves.

Even Foster's Homer Doesn't Save Bardon From 2-1 Loss

Bardon's Earl Foster pounded his second home run in as many games this week but it wasn't enough as Anger Supply Wear upset the Foster team, 3-1, in the opening game of the Belleville Parks League twin bill. Devolin Motors Wear came back from a three-run deficit to down the Ellis Juniors 8-6.

Foster came to bat in the ninth inning as a designated hitter and clouted a Bob Swan pitch over the 250 foot mark beyond the field. The shaky Bardon pitcher also put one over the fence on Tuesday. Both his circuit blasts are the only out-of-the-park drives in the QPL this season.

Other than that one pitch, Bob Swan kept the Bardon bats under control. He won the contest giving up only four hits. He walked none and fanned six.

His counterpart, Ken Miller, was almost as stingy on the losers rubber. Pitching a nine-hitter, he walked only three and allowed only two unearned runs.

Jim Theriault scored the first Anger run in the first inning when he tripled and jumped home on Al Ferguson's single. The winning run came across the plate in an error. It was scored by Ted Cornell after he and Dave Howard each got up with back-to-back singles.

Bardon began a rally in the seventh, when Warren Ostrander dropped a ball into right, but Cornell threw him out when at second he attempted to stretch the hit into a double.

The Juniors scored once in the second and twice in the fourth to jump into a 3-0 lead on Devolin, but the Motormen bounced back with four in the fifth and two more in the bottom of the sixth to put the game on ice.

Ron Maracle earned the victory, giving up seven hits and striking out the same number. Don Holoway accepted him in the sixth, walked one and fanned one.

Paul Wilson toiled for the Printers. He gave up seven hits, walked four and struck out four.

Ralph Plane had two singles and collected a pair of RBI's to lead the Devolin comeback. Eric Maher also added two singles and Maracle connected for a double.

Pete Stallkovich pounded a triple for the Juniors, Jim Richardson added a double and Eric Powell punched out two singles.

Quinte League action resumes Sunday at 7 p.m. at the Alemite when the Ellis Juniors take on Bardon and Rorabeck Real Estate meets Howard and Robert. This is a doubleheader rained out on June 5.

Ross Geen, Brooke Bond's One Man Army

Geen, with seventh inning relief from Tom St. Jules, walked four and struckout five over the distance.

Laser Carpet Bells fanned four, walked three and gave up seven base hits.

Lucy Hopes Shop Develops Into Sporting Goods Outlet

Like David and Goliath, Matt Lucy's sports shop sits in the intimidating shadow of its greatest rival. Located at 54 South Front Street, Lucy's establishment, known as the Boathouse (simply because that's what it was before its transformation last winter), stands unexceedingly beside Bob's Sports.

Bob's has been at least the number two spot for the premier supplier of fishing and sporting goods in the Bay of Quinte area for years. Still Lucy stands firm in his bid to contest with the giant of his industry despite the proximity of the two.

It's not a question of whether or not his idea will get off the ground; he feels it's already flying. To Matt it's solely a question of how long it takes for his fledgling venture to soar to its highest pinnacles.

"I figure I'll be working every day, 15 hours a day for the next 10 years," estimated Lucy, "that really doesn't bother me because this is what I want to do. I want to make it work."

Right now the 19-year-old enterprizer puts in 15 or 16 hours a day seven days a week. He carries bait ranging from worms to crankbait, tackle, books and leaders to Williams Wobblers — rods, reels, rifles and scatt. Not to mention a small selection of confectionery for the fisherman planning to spend a day on the water.

"I don't have as large a stock as I'd like to," he admitted, "nor are all my prices as competitive as I'd like them to be, but most of the stock is priced just as low and sometimes lower than other places."

A homegrown product, Lucy had completed Grade 13 at Belleville Collegiate (BCI) after acquiring his early secondary schooling at Nicholson Catholic College.

Along with supplying valuable commodities to fishermen, he also supplies boats from which one may engage their skills. He rents his launches at $5 an hour.

Even though The Boathouse has only been open since May 1st (although he got a start on a part-time basis last summer) Lucy is already working to expand the 10 x 12 foot premises.

Though he's a long way from being a giant killer, he's preparing for the day when he can load his sling shot and take aim.

Staff Lucy gets help here from his Michelle, at his new boat house — The Boathouse. The shop opened on a full-time basis last month and that hope's to develop it into a sporting goods retail outlet. For now, though, he concentrates on fishing equipment and bait.

Bob Panasiuk Has Got Legs

BARRIE, Ont. (CP)— Bob Panasiuk's revitalized legs are exactly what Toronto Maple Leafs need one of the reasons the veteran golfer from Windsor, Ont., is leading the strong showing in the Ontario Open golf tournament.

Panasiuk—one of 150 golfers who tee off in today's first round of the 54-hole tournament—is the longest hitter on the program about two months ago he had his decision: suffered a back injury in April.

The running was designed to strengthen the legs that at times have caused the golfer trouble.

"I've been trying to get Hamilton into the league for the last three months and I happened to find Mr. Tobias. I was very certainly not going to stop a team going into Hamilton."

When that will happen depends on completion of an arena that will seat 15,000 seats. Henry Katz, a member of a group seeking permit to build a new arena, said he thinks the arena will be ready for opening.

"We should have it crystallized within a period of 30 to 60 days. We hope we could be in hockey in Hamilton by September of next year. I feel confident that we can do the job."

The WHA already has franchises in Winnipeg, Calgary, Edmonton, Winnipeg, Quebec, New York and Toronto—but Tobias finds appealing the prospect of having a team in a city that has a traditional sports rivalry with Toronto.

"The latest we'd like to have a team in there would be 1976 but we'd prefer '76," he said. "There's no time limit but it is certainly understood that they'd better get it going as soon as possible."

Hamilton WHA Franchise Needs Bassett's OK

HAMILTON (CP) — Ted Tobias, the 44-year-old Toronto businessman who has the inside track on the world hockey franchise awarded to Hamilton, said Thursday the first task will be to make a deal for the territorial rights.

"The franchise has been awarded to the city and not to me," Tobias said. Hamilton is in the WHA territory of Toronto Toros.

"I still have to meet with John Ziegler, the Toros president—on Friday to discuss money. We won't have a franchise unless we can agree upon it. "OK, I'm satisfied with the money you're prepared to pay me."

The decision to award a franchise in Hamilton, a city of more than 300,000, for as early as the 1976-77 season was announced by the WHA after a meeting Thursday in Costa Mesa, Calif.

Tobias, who owns the Provincial Junior A Wexford Raiders, said he will devote all his time to hockey if he gets the franchise.

Bassett said he didn't think there would be any difficulty coming to terms.

Congratulations Received by Neeld

TORONTO (CP) — It may be a little premature, but defenceman Greg Neeld has already received congratulatory letters from Buffalo and St. Paul Minn.

Neeld, who lost his left eye in 1973 while playing junior hockey with Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A Series, would like to go to Buffalo Sabres, who chose him in the fourth round of the National Hockey League amateur draft.

But an NHL rule bans players with less than 25 per cent vision in any eye. Ov Neeld's behalf, Toronto lawyer Roy McMurtry has threatened the NHL with a lawsuit if Neeld is not drafted.

Minnesota Fighting Saints of the World Hockey Association, which drafted the defenceman earlier, have no such rule.

"Since the draft, I've had many encouraging letters from people with one eye," Neeld said Wednesday. "I think they feel I'm representing them in some way. I've also had letters from fans in Buffalo and Minnesota, welcoming me to their town."

But Neeld and McMurtry feel the NHL rule is archaic and are determined to pursue it in a meeting with the NHL rules committee in Montreal next week.

The arguments will be backed up by a mask, developed by Neeld and his father, which totally protects a player's face. Neeld wore the equipment last year with Calgary Centennials of the Western Canada Hockey League, in which he scored 30 goals.

Neeld says he and his father have a patent on the mask and would like to have it manufactured for minor hockey players.

NHL referee-in-chief, Scotty Morrison, chairman of the rules rules committee, inspected the mask this week but refused comment. NHL president Clarence Campbell has already gone on record as strongly opposing any change in the rule.

Player Relations Touchy Subject With Ralph Sazio

By MEL SUFRIN
CP Sports Editor

Ralph Sazio gets more than a little annoyed when reporters ask him about the problems he has had coming to terms with members of Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

"Why don't you guys write the same sort of stories about other Canadian Football League clubs?" he asks. "Everybody's got problems."

The Tiger-Cats general manager is sensitive about suggestions he is more tight-fisted in contract dealings than other CFL bosses. And he doesn't like it when asked about the status of injured players who had talked of quitting elsewhere.

Sazio's annoyance came to the surface in a discussion of the big, seven-player trade he completed Wednesday. He sent tight end Tony Gabriel and receiver Gary Kuryk to Ottawa Rough Riders in exchange for offensive tackle Doug Collins, defensive back John Krupop and linebacker-halfback Terry Wellesley.

He also shipped Bob Richardson, an offensive tackle and sometimes tight end, to Saskatchewan Roughriders for Lawrie Skolrood, a tight end.

There has been talk that Gabriel's days were numbered after he launched an unsuccessful court case against the Ti-Cats, demanding extra compensation for last season's extension of the schedule to 16 games from 14.

There has also been some suggestion that Richardson, the Ticats player representative, had fallen into disfavor because of his remarks about Sazio's tight hold on the purse strings.

But Sazio insisted there was no personal animosity at the root of his decision to make the trade. As one of two CFL teams who made a profit last year (the other was Winnipeg Blue Bombers), he said Hamilton simply was not prepared to pay the salaries demanded by the likes of Gabriel, the player voted No. 1 Canadian in the league in 1974.

"What's wrong with being able to say you can't afford? We asked, noting that, unlike Western Conference teams, the Ti-Cats are privately owned and cannot rely on fund-raising dinners to balance their budget.

The Tiger-Cats do seem to have received more publicity about player-signing problems than other CFL teams.

There was Lou Clare, the defensive lineman saying he might give up football and try out with the new Cincinnati Stingers of the World Hockey Association. There was running back Andy Hopkins saying he might play out his option because he thought Sazio's policy was to sign players as cheaply as possible and hold their salaries down as long as possible. And there was veteran all-star back Garney Henley saying team morale had changed over the last five or six years because of the publicity given to such high-priced stars as Johnny Rodgers of Montreal Alouettes.

But it's worth noting that these players are still with the team and the Ticats haven't given up on Lewis Porter, the defensive tackle who played out his option last season and said he was thinking of trying to catch on in the National Football League.

True, Hamilton put linebacker Larry Brown on waivers after he complained about money. He was claimed by British Columbia Lions but couldn't make a team there either.

Defensive back Al Brenner, another unhappy negotiator, was traded to Winnipeg. And quarterback Don Jonas gave up football to become a television commentator.

But Sazio said he feels he has the players who will make his team competitive.

"I am absolutely satisfied," he said of the seven-player trade.

DeBusschere Rather Play

NEW YORK (AP) — Dave DeBusschere obviously is finding his new job as American Basketball Association commissioner difficult.

"I would rather be playing," DeBusschere, a former National Basketball Association all-star, said Thursday at his first news conference since replacing Tedd Mauchak as commissioner on Tuesday.

The 34-year-old DeBusschere joined the commissioner ranks the history of pro basketball, which has unfamiliar with the position and his nervousness by constantly flipping and spinning an ABA ball during his brief conference with reporters.

MARIO ANDRETTI

Andretti May Run Mosport

MOSPORT, Ont. (CP) Mario Andretti, runner-up in the 1974 Formula 5000 series, began unofficial practice runs Thursday at Mosport Park for Sunday's 5000 event and promptly equalled his own qualifying track record.

Andretti, a native of Nazareth, Pa., equalled the record of one minute, 14.9 seconds and later said he was pleased with the performance of his Vels Parnelli Jones Viceroy—out of its first run of the week.

The car is performing beautifully at the moment and it will have to stay that way if we hope to win," said Andretti.

A former winner of the Indianapolis 500, Andretti is spending his first full season on the Grand Prix circuit. He won three events in the 1974 series—Watkins Glen, Road America and Riverside.

The morning practice sessions were cancelled Thursday due to a heavy layer of fog on the track.

England's Brian edman will be driving a BMW in the IMSA GT race Saturday and also will compete in the Formula 5000 event Sunday. Redman won the first Formula 5000 event June 1 at Pocono, Penn.

The two races will be the only occasion this year that both the IMSA GT and Formula 5000 series fall on the same weekend at the same track.

Official qualifying runs for both series begin today.

COA Approves Bankroll

MONTREAL (CP) — The Canadian Olympic Association (COA) and its fund-raising arm, the Olympic Trust of Canada, have approved a financial assistance program that will provide about $600,000 for athletes.

Lee Crowell, COA general manager, said Thursday about 400 athletes are eligible to benefit from the program.

Last month, the federal government said it had established a $600,000 fund to aid 300 student athletes, including some who may become eligible to compete next year in the Winter Olympics at Innsbruck, Austria, and Summer Games in Montreal.

The COA program, coupled with an improved student grant plan by the government's health and welfare department, brings to about $1.5 million funds available for assistance to needy athletes.

Class A athletes are those ranked eighth or better in world standings. Class B includes those ranked ninth to 16th. Class C competitors are seeded only at a national level.

Two years ago, there were only 47 A and B athletes in Canada. By 1975, there were 91.

Some weeks ago, Abigail Hoffman of Toronto proposed that COA results of a survey conducted on behalf of the athletes, Mike Hoffman, a veteran of international track competition, received answers from more than 50 per cent of 386 Canadian Olympic candidates polled in 18 sports.

Most answers received favored biennial assistance, the system which competitors said would allow more training and travel. Fifty-eight per cent said they were unable to train full-time last year and 14 said they were dependent on their families or sponsors for support.

Crowell said the plan is really two programs in one, specific, the other general. The specific program deals with lost-time payments, and will compensate workers athletes who must take periodic leaves of absence without pay from jobs.

The athlete's daily earnings up to a maximum of $50 daily and for a maximum cumulative period of 75 days—will be reimbursed.

Considering the number of A-B-and C-ranked athletes eligible for such assistance, the COA expects to disburse up to $600,000 between now and July, 1976. The Summer Games begin July 17, 1976.

The other program will cover wide ranging at "recurring and incremental expenses associated with the demands of intensive Olympic training programs." The COA estimates a outlay of between $900,000 and $950,000 for this section.

Assistance will be in the form of regular monthly payments, but will not be identical for all applicants. Assistance will be determined by athlete's needs and individual circumstances of each applicant, Crowell said.

Program assistance will be retroactive to June 1, 1975.

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (CP) — Dave Wilfong scored five goals and added three assists Thursday as Long Island Tomahawks smashed Montreal Quebecois 10-3 in a National Lacrosse League game.

Robert Patten led Long Island with three goals. Doug Hayes, Jim Johnston and Al Coolsaet also added two each, and Jan Magee, Kevin Parsons, Bill Hoculik, Glen Neuman, Paul Warden and Kevin Barrett scored single goals.

May Increase Student Cost

TORONTO (CP) — A proposal put forward by the Ontario Federation of School Athletic Associations to increase student assessment might cost the organization one of its major supporters.

The Toronto Secondary School Athletic Association voted Thursday at its annual meeting Thursday in Toronto to reject the proposed increase to five from three cents a student for all those enrolled in high schools in Ontario.

The motion to increase the assessment was defeated after it made at the annual meeting of OFSAA last March 29-31.

"If the motion for the increase passed, we would have withdrawn from the association," said Bob Kathler, TSSAA public relations director.

The TSSAA has 25 schools in membership and had 6,582 students participating in all sports in the 1974-75 season.

CIAU Reafirms Stand

VICTORIA (CP) — The Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union Thursday reaffirmed its stand on imports in university basketball, a stand that is subject of a court action.

The rule says member teams must not have more than three players "trained out of country."

The student union at Acadia University at Wolfville, N.S., challenged the CIAU right to invoke the rule and started legal action a year and a half ago.

A public inquiry has also been conducted in Nova Scotia. The CIAU is awaiting the outcomes of both.

The Canadian Women's Intercollegiate Athletic Union (CWIAU) also reaffirmed this week, decided to hold the first national women's basketball championship, Nov. 7-9 at the University of British Columbia in Vancouver.

The basketball championship will be held at Guelph, Ont., March 5-7, the volleyball final at Moncton, N.B., Feb. 26-27, the swimming and diving in the Ottawa-Ontario region, March 6 and the gymnastics at Laval University, Quebec City, Feb. 27-28.

The basketball format will be identical to that of the best conference adding a second team to provide a sixteen-team field.

Mary Lyons of York University at Toronto was elected president of the CWIAU for a two year term beginning June. She succeeds Pat Jackson of University of Saskatchewan in Saskatoon who will complete her term.

Prisoners Win Right For Kosher Diet

NEW YORK (Reuter) — Prison officials in the United States are developing a case of indigestion over the question of serving kosher food to a small number of orthodox Jewish prisoners who are charging discrimination.

Adding to recent court rulings on this and other questions of treatment accorded racial minorities within federal and state prison systems is the flurry of publicity resulting from a news conference at which former attorney-general Ramsey Clark supported the pro-kosher food forces.

It was not a question of the number of prisoners involved, Clark said. In fact, the very situation of them being a small and weak minority in the prison system made it imperative that their case be heard.

The U.S. was founded on the concept of religious freedom, "yet, 200 years later, prisons are still denying basic religious rites."

Penal officials maintain it is purely a question of the elaborate procedures involved in the preparation of food according to the orthodox dietary laws.

The limited concessions prison officials have so far devised satisfy neither civil libertarians nor the courts.

In one recent case in New York, a member of the radical Jewish Defense League who tested the issue of kosher food in the courts was ordered released from prison and put into a halfway house program.

Now he is released on his own recognizance, three times a day—for breakfast, lunch and dinner.

In another case, the Yale law school backed a suit by a rabbi imprisoned at the Danbury, Con., federal prison.

The rabbi lost his suit but was transferred to another facility at Lexington, Ky., where kosher food is available.

While prison officials are conducting rearguard court actions, they are at the same time trying to do something about the complaint. The Lexington facility is an example.

At that institution, orthodox prisoners are allowed to purchase or otherwise receive food from outside the prison and a Jewish prisoner familiar with dietary laws may prepare it in the prison kitchen.

In some other prisons, orthodox Jews prepare all the meals insofar as food supplies and facilities allow.

Other federal facilities have established "family days" on which relatives may bring in food to prisoners.

In the case of minority groups, the paramount issue is one of legality, not numbers.

RUBBISH HELPS TO POWER

BIRMINGHAM, England (CP) — A local authority is to pay a big industrial firm to take its household rubbish away, and the firm will burn the rubbish with more traditional fuel to produce power for its factories. The contract has been signed between Imperial Metal Industries (Kynoch) Ltd. of Birmingham and Mid-lands Metropolitan County Council. The council will pay IMI $4.60 for each ton taken away, up to 15,000 tons a year.

British Record Industry Can't Find Enough Stars

LONDON (CP) — Record industry officials in Britain are concerned about the lack of new talent developing in the pop music world.

In the last year, only David Essex, the Bay City Rollers and Mud have really secured the teen-age fancy in Britain. The "star" system in pop seems to be going out of style.

The main problem is that everything has become too fragmented. Reggae, the music of the West Indies, is hugely popular in its own area as is the black music (soul) which originates from Africa and now is widely produced in the United States.

Jazz continues to diversify and is forever considered a separate art form.

Some British music observers believe the gap in popular sound will be filled by country and western music—in itself as old as pop—but these observers also say this would be a depressing development.

The problem for Britain with country music is that it is an indigenous American form. Songs of the prairie and the wide open roads don't really made much sense on a crowded island.

Authentic country singers, as such, can hardly be produced by Britain, which, consequently is destined to be importers of the music.

Normally this would not be bad, because the originals usually are the best. But with the threatened boom in this music it would be one less area for the British performer to be triumphant.

For years country music has been a major influence on artists. Yet when Ringo Starr told the world in 1964 of his undying love for old-fashioned country and western he was described as the square Beatle.

Now 11 years later Ringo may be proven correct in his forecast that country music would rule the airwaves one day. It's a simple music, suitable as both listening music and background music.

For all its gain in popularity, however, country and western music is lacking in the sort of sparkle that has made the wider world of pop so colorful in the last decade.

One of the requisites of pop stars is that they project an attitude or an outrage in some way. But country stars stand for little else but mighty fine music! The cultural aspect of pop or rock 'n' roll appears to have dissolved just as the industry itself has become larger and more diversified.

Inside the specific areas of pop, however, there still is sufficient activity in Britain to hold the attention. Teenagers still are hungry for their own idols and have elevated the Bay City Rollers to wallpaper status.

Older audiences still are receptive to singers who have been around since they were teen idols, such as Neil Sedaka, Paul Anka and Elvis Presley.

Soul music is enjoying a colossal popularity in British record charts. Mainly by American singers, it has always made its mark, but in the absence of any firm trend in recent months, newer chart names like Barry White, Eddie Holman and Gloria Gaynor have scored solidly.

The curious aspect of this is that however much one enjoys their records, they are not big personalities. It's their music that counts.

Shampoo Shocks Many Viewers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Warren Beatty is well aware that many people are shocked by the raw sex and blunt language of his movie Shampoo.

"Older people are especially upset by the picture," he said in an interview. "Younger people aren't. The critics also had trouble dealing with Shampoo and some dismissed it as a porno-flick. But it has won more establishment approval than did Bonnie and Clyde.

"Such pictures break the rules. Whenever you force a new category on the critics, the critics are confused.

"A new category looks like a mistake. But a lot of reviewers thought it was wrong to mix up comedy with violence in Bonnie and Clyde. But that was the idea behind the picture—illustrate . . . violence."

In his 15-year film career, Beatty has acted in 14 movies and produced two. The first of his productions was the 1967 Bonnie and Clyde, which aroused a storm of controversy and made a bundle of money.

"I made the picture for $1.9 million and to date it has earned about $23 million."

His second production is this year's Shampoo, which is drawing the same reaction as Bonnie and Clyde in terms of talk and money.

"Shampoo cost $2.5 million below-the-line," he said, referring to actual production expense—talent costs probably added $1.5 million.

"The figures Columbia has been giving me are unbelievable. They're talking about maybe $25 million domestic and $15 million foreign."

Shampoo depicts the collapse of the one-time family. Younger people are alerted to that theme; older people don't want to be alerted to it."

Swingers in the audience may envy George, the Beverly-Hills hairdresser who motoresprted from one sexual alliance to another, pausing only briefly for a shampoo and set. To Beatty, the character he played is a tragic figure.

"He has an unsublimated libido and is approaching middle age with no economic future. He is a product of the generation that believed in 'making love, not war.' He is ignorant politically and doesn't participate in the forms of national survival.

"He has scattered his sexual energies. Then, when things get tough, he tries to return to the nuclear family but discovers he can't."

Shampoo takes place in November, 1968, against a political backdrop that includes television speeches by Richard Nixon and Spiro Agnew.

Showbiz Short

LONDON (Reuter) U.S. rock singer Frank Zappa has lost a court claim for $19,000 damages over a cancelled London concert.

His company, Bizarre Productions Inc., was ordered to pay the costs of the three-week hearing in the high court—estimated at $48,000.

Zappa, leader of the group Mothers of Invention, sued London's Royal Albert Hall for alleged breach of contract after the hall management cancelled a concert two days before he was due to perform in February, 1971, on the grounds that the program was objectionable.

Judge Alan Mocatta ruled that Albert Hall was entitled to cancel the concert. But he made no ruling on allegations that Zappa's songs were "obscene," objectionable or indecent."

MONTPELIER, Vt. (AP) — The seven children of Pulitzer Prize-winning novelist Pearl S. Buck will inherit the author's estate, the Vermont Supreme Court ruled Tuesday.

In deciding unanimously to uphold a lower court decision, the court agreed that Miss Buck's last will and testament was invalid.

When Miss Buck died at center March 6, 1973, at the age of 80, her will left most of her assets to her business manager, Theodore Harris.

In contesting the will, her son, Edgar Walsh of New York City contended that Harris took undue influence with the author in having the will drawn to his benefit.

Harris and Miss Buck met in 1963 when he was a dance instructor. He was subsequently hired as her business manager.

Fear of Flying

VANCOUVER (CP) — Peter McLean, a psychologist at University of British Columbia, has developed a do-it-yourself program to cure people who are afraid of flying. He said fear of flying is a chain reaction of negative thoughts and body reactions which can leave the victim panicked, nauseated and rigid with terror. He plans to test the program on a large scale this summer.

Some bankers fail to do well at bridge because they think that a trick taken early interest. Actually, there are plenty of occasions when refusing to take a trick early will lead to a nice capital gain.

East won the first trick with the jack of spades over dummy's 10 and led back the king. South ruffed with the queen of trumps and West plunked on the king remarking, "No better time and place for it."

He led back a club to his partner's ace. Another spade was led. South ruffed with the ace, drew trumps and claimed the balance.

West had nothing to gain by overruffing at trick. Spades must be just discarded. Later on that king of trumps would score over South's jack or 10. West would put East in with a club. A third spade would be led and there would be no way to keep West's eight of trumps from winning the setting trick.

Incidentally, this type of play is not too unusual. You will be surprised at the number of extra trump tricks you will gather if you refuse to overruff automatically.

Beggar Uses Savings to Help Bombay Children

BOMBAY (CP) — Abdul Hassan, 68, who has been a beggar since he lost both his parents in a drowning accident, has found a new occupation for the remaining years of his life.

"I have saved enough to live comfortably in a lifetime of wande ting around the streets with a begging bowl," he said.

So Hasan, a bachelor, has started a school for about 50 children of beggars. He said it is his ambition to see that no child in Bombay is forced to beg.

Recently he found a nine-year-old girl begging in front of the Taj International Hotel. He took her to his one-room tenement, gave her a bath and fed her a hot meal. She became his 37th student.

Hasan estimates there are 1,000 children begging in Bombay, many forced by captains who may one day become delinquents.

Three times a week he conducts an open-air music class for as many as 150 neighborhood children.

"If a child is poor, let it earn a living through music," he said.

His students tour the city in groups of six, singing the latest film songs and collecting pennies and sometimes even dollars from appreciative citizens.

Raj Kapoor, a popular film star, is reported to have shown interest in enrolling two of Hasan's protegees for roles in a film.

Hasan said he plans to be an independent candidate for Parliament in the next election.

"I want to compel the government to draw up schemes for the welfare of the poor and the homeless and I want a political power for this," he said, adding that he distrusts professional politicians because they seek the votes of poor people at election time and ignore them once the campaign is over.

He is also wary of the police. Having been shooed with arrest "recently for allowing his dog to lie in the street."

"My past is always shadowing me," he said. "But I am determined to prove that beggars can become useful citizens."

Child of 5 Needs 12 Hours' Sleep

By G. C. THOMPSON, MD

Dear Dr. Thompson: My son and his wife live upstairs. They have a five-year-old son. The little fellow is allowed to stay up every night until 10:30 p.m., later on weekends.

I tell my son the child doesn't get enough sleep, because I can hear him rise early. By the end of the day he is very irritable and cries easily. My son tells me I'm old-fashioned, that his son doesn't require a lot of sleep. Please advise—Mrs. R.

I don't know what you consider "early," or whether the boy gets a nap during the day. I can't settle anything. However, generally, a child of five should be getting approximately 10 to 12 hours of sleep each day. True, some children get adapted to adult sleep routines, but I do not think it is wise to encourage this. In your grandchild's case, the tiredness can be attributable to fatigue if he isn't getting the rest I mentioned above.

This might be fine now, but it could lead to some real problems if continued on into his early school years.

Dear Dr. Thompson: I used to be able to spend all day in the sun without any adverse effects other than a little sunburn. Now, two or three hours is enough to give me a severe headache and make me feel very weak.

Could something serious be involved?—Mrs. G. B. D.

You don't mention ever having had a severe sunstroke, which would have been an extremely memorable event for you to mention, and a possible explanation of your photosensitivity.

Changes in your tolerance can also be attributed to medicines, including oral contraceptives or the Pill. Where you do your solar-basting can be another factor—if, for example, you have changed residence from an area of high-snow conditions to one where pollutants are relatively low. It can mean that the sun rays are more potent, being less filtered. This can accounts for the severe reactions among some city-dwellers vacationing in the clear-aired sunworshipping centres.

Also, people tend to become more sun-sensitive as they grow older. One study noted a decided change after 40. Any woman seem to be more affected than men by a three-to-one ratio.

Knowing your present intolerance, you should alter your sunning methods. Three hours at a time is far too much. Take 15-minute exposures, front and back and, if necessary, increase the times gradually. If you try this and your reactions continue, then you will have to look elsewhere for the cause. You may have to change your method of contraception if you are on the Pill.

Dear Dr. Thompson: A while back you answered a lady with a bladder problem—incontinence—and you suggested some exercise. I believe you should explain the exercise, telling women how it should be done. My doctor, now retired, suggested them for me. He recommended I do them whenever I think of it, sitting, lying down or standing tiptoe. I think if every woman did this simple exercise, there would be less incontinence in old age.—N. K.

The exercise you refer to is the Kegel exercise which consists of contraction of the muscles of the perineum, in female, this is the area between the vaginal orifice and the anus, and in the male between the scrotum and the anus.

The exercise, quite simply, is the alternate contraction and relaxing of the muscles repeatedly as if to stop urination. If you can urinate, then stop purposely; that will give you an idea of what the exercise can do.

But in cases of urinary tract infection or structural disorder of the pelvis, the exercises will not help. Persons with problems of incontinence should be checked for such things as allergies and urinary tract infections.

Injunctions May Be Used to Stop Illegal Strikes

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government proposed changes Friday in the Labor Relations Act including forcing the membership requirement for automatic union certification to 55 per cent from 45 per cent.

Other amendments would allow the labor relations board to issue injunctions to end illegal strikes and place the onus of proof on employers in complaints of illegal discharges or discrimination. Certification would be automatic where illegal employer interference was used.

The amendments provide for complaints to the labor board against discrimination in employment in union hiring halls and for the mandatory dues checkoff on written request of an employee.

Labor Minister John MacBeth told the legislature he seeks changes in the act to give himself power to appoint a mediator at the request of either party, or on his own initiative at any time during the life of an agreement.

A disputes advisory committee would be established to confer with bargaining parties and advise Mr. MacBeth in "difficult bargaining impasse situations where conventional settlement techniques fail".

Mr. MacBeth said he seeks "the right to direct and supervise ratification votes in the case of prolonged strikes." The labor relations board would be given expanded powers to enjoin illegal strikes and lockouts.

The amendments also provide for interim certification to permit bargaining to begin where bargaining unit description disputes otherwise prolong the certification process.

Changes would also put teeth into reporting procedures and allow "victims of discriminatory practices in hiring halls to bring their complaints to the Ontario labor relations board for resolution."

Mr. MacBeth said he feels the amendments, the first proposed to the act since 1970, are needed because Ontario "cannot afford to stand still in this dynamic field."

The proposed amendments should make collective bargaining more accessible to the unorganized and further protect individual employees against contraventions of the act, he added.

Stephen Lewis, Ontario NDP leader, said he was not impressed and termed the amendments weak.

Later, he questioned Mr. MacBeth on the absence of an amendment which would make good-faith bargaining legally enforceable.

"I'm satisfied that when most people come to the bargaining table they are trying to bargain in good faith," Mr. MacBeth replied.

The proposed act was given first reading and will be debated by members when it returns on second reading.

Labor representatives greeted the proposed amendments favorably, although with some reservations.

Lynn Williams, District 6 director of the United Steelworkers of America, said he opposed the principle of the minister's right to order a ratification vote.

Robert White, administrative assistant to Dennis McDermott, Canadian director of the United Auto Workers, said the amendments are a step in the right direction, but that he believes the provision for an imposed vote is unnecessary.

Nurses Facing Bill

HALIFAX (CP) — The Nova Scotia government carries a big stick into new contract talks today with 1,000 striking nurses after making it clear Friday that, if necessary, it will force them back to work by an act of the legislature.

The government pushed a back-to-work bill through second reading and referred it to the legislature's labor amendments committee before the house adjourned until Monday.

There were plans to have the house meet again today until the nurses indicated they were prepared to resume bargaining. "We could continue to fight on old ground or find some common ground," said Theresa Murphy of Sydney, president of the Nurses' Staff Association of Nova Scotia. "We'll sit down and plead our case."

Premier Gerald Regan said it will be difficult to narrow the wide gap between the nurses' wage demands and government offers but that this would be the first priority of talks today.

"If the efforts fail, we will proceed with the legislation Monday," Mr. Regan said.

The nurses launched a strike Thursday at 41 hospitals in Nova Scotia—four in the Halifax-Dartmouth area and eight in Cape Breton—to back demands for wage increases in line with those in other provinces.

Nurses in Nova Scotia earn a basic $621 month, compared with $949 in Ontario. They say the government's last contract offer would bring them up to $765 in the first year of a two-year agreement and $842 in the second year.

Brezhnev Wants Weapon Ban

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet Communist party leader Leonid Brezhnev has proposed that the United States and the Soviet Union initiate an international agreement to ban development of systems of mass destruction "even more terrible than nuclear ones."

In a televised speech Friday, Brezhnev said there is a "serious danger" that modern science and technology will create such weaponry.

He did not specify any particular weapon system under development.

Sources in Washington said the only new systems under study make use of lasers but development of such weapons is still 10 years away.

Under existing accords, the U.S. and the Soviet Union have agreed to limit the proliferation, testing and development of nuclear weapons. They have also agreed to an international ban on environmental warfare and are currently negotiating a limitation on missiles armed with multiple nuclear warheads.

Intelligence Committee Could be Abolished

WASHINGTON CP — Senior members of the House of Representatives are planning a move to abolish its intelligence committee because they think it has been taken over by people who are a threat to United States intelligence agencies.

Representatives Richard Bolling (Dem., Mo.) and Samuel Stratton (Dem., N.Y.) said Friday a resolution to abolish the committee will be introduced Monday when the House takes up Representative Lucien Nedzi's request to resign as chairman of the embattled committee.

Stratton says that Representatives James Stanton (Dem., Ohio), chairman of the committee's CIA subcommittee, leaked classified information by saying the CIA was involved in the assassination of at least one foreign leader.

"It seems to me clear this is not going to be a responsible inquiry," Stratton asserted.

Opposition Wants Thorough Inquiry

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau announced Friday a public inquiry into this week's British Columbia penitentiary incident and opposition spokesmen immediately complained that it did not go far enough.

The prime minister announced in the Commons that Chief Justice J. L. Farris of the British Columbia Appeal Court will head a three-man inquiry into the incident that resulted in one death.

The inquiry would deal only with what happened at the New Westminster, B.C., maximum security penitentiary where 15 persons were held hostage in a radio interview broadcast by CHC radio that she had a "very positive relationship" with one of the convicts during the siege.

In a tape recording of the interview, Louise Stratton, one of the first hostages seized, said she was not having sexual intercourse with the prisoner when the hostages turned on their captors. The ordeal left one prison worker dead and one of the convicts severely injured.

In the interview, Ms. Stratton said she was asleep when the hostages decided to make their move.

"I was really sound asleep 'cause I'm not even really sure who woke me up. I got up first and then (Claire) Wilson got up.

"We were not having sexual intercourse at the time.

"I was on drugs while we were there. I was on demerol and I probably mainlined maybe four times and the rest of the time had subcutaneous injections."

It will not deal with government actions up to the time early Wednesday when the hostages overcame their captors, an incident that resulted in the fatal shooting of Mary Steinhauer, a prison employee. Mr. Trudeau said the public is aware of government actions.

The inquiry will be public except in cases where the judge feels, in the words of the terms "information is likely to be received which should not be disclosed in the public interest including the interests of the safety and security of penitentiaries."

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield, John Diefenbaker (PC—Burnaby — Richmond — Delta), Stuart Leggatt (NDP—New Westminster) and Eldon Woolliams (PC—Calgary North) said in interviews that the inquiry should also look into the growth and handling of the incident after receiving a foreign offer to take the prisoner off certain conditions.

Mr. Stanfield and others said there should be an inquiry into the whole prison system, perhaps after the Farris inquiry.

Others opposed to conduct the inquiry under the Penitentiaries Act are Jack C. Lynch, St. Fraser Valley representative for the John Howard Society who in the past has served time in prison; and Henry E. Popp, 27, director of operations security for the penitentiary service.

The terms of reference of the Farris inquiry say it is essential that the full circumstances, causes, reaction, procedures, results and other factors in the incident be investigated.

Mr. Reynolds and Mr. Woolliams both called for a royal commission into the entire penitentiary system. They questioned whether the Farris inquiry will be public or whether much of it will be in camera for inadequate reasons.

Hostage Had 'Relationship'

VANCOUVER (CP) — One of the women held hostage for 15 hours by three British Columbia penitentiary prisoners in a radio interview broadcast by CHC radio that she had a "very positive relationship" with one of the convicts during the siege.

In a tape recording of the interview, Louise Stratton, one of the first hostages seized, said she was not having sexual intercourse with the prisoner when the hostages turned on their captors. The ordeal left one prison worker dead and one of the convicts severely injured.

In the interview, Ms. Stratton said she was asleep when the hostages decided to make their move.

"We were not having sexual intercourse at the time.

"I was on drugs while we were there. I was on demerol and I probably mainlined maybe four times and the rest of the time had subcutaneous injections."

College Staff Welcomes Bill

TORONTO (CP) — Charles Darrow, president of the Civil Service Association of Ontario (CSAO), said Friday proposed provincial legislation giving Ontario community college employees expanded bargaining rights is "long overdue but welcome."

The legislation, introduced in the legislature Friday, places the 8,500 community college employees, both teaching staff and support staff, under the Ontario Labor Relations Act, and gives them the right to strike.

13 Lucky Number

By AL ZABAS

TRENTON — Only superstitious folk believe Friday the 13th is a day filled with a lot of good chances for bad luck.

Al Clarence Ash of Cobourg was everyone, he no longer.

Yesterday, Friday the 13th, Mr. Ash won $10,000 on holder of ticket number 97728, series 1, in Ontario's Wintario Lottery.

The Trenton regional assessment office employee held three tickets for the draw that was held Thursday night.

One paid off, but Mr. Ash didn't seem overly excited about it. "I don't let little things like this bother me," he said with a smile tugging at his cheek. "I would if it was the big one (the $100,000 prize)."

Fellow employees during coffee break Friday seemed more excited than he was. In Lou's Pantry, a snack bar in the basement of the assessment building, smiles and congratulations were plentiful, and Mr. Ash seemed a little embarrassed by the fuss.

The 56-year-old man bought his three tickets there and continued with a string of good luck in the building. In a previous Wintario draw, a woman had won $100. In a previous Olympic draw, several women shared a $1,000 prize.

Of the seven tickets he checked his tickets, and he had.

Asked what he planned to do with his newly-won wealth, he said he'd take a "nice holiday this summer." To that comment, Jeff Cridland, owner of Lou's Pantry and the man who sold him the ticket, said with a mischievous smile, "and that covers a multitude of sins."

Ash, father of a son and 18-year-old daughter whose birthday was Friday, said the money won't go to pay off his mortgage, in the usual way of spending "found money".

"My half mortgage payment is in the bank, waiting," he said.

New Landmark for Downtown

Downtown Belleville has a new — if temporary — landmark: The tower crane to be used in construction of Century Place office-commercial complex at Each Bridge and Front streets. Now assembled, the crane reaches a height of about 120 feet with its revolving-boom stretching close to 200 feet. The big development is scheduled for completion in summer of '76.

Couple Saved Above Falls

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — Police said two men Thursday night hurled a young couple over a railing that protects tourists from falling into powerful rapids near the brink of Horseshoe Falls.

Investigators said Mary Camann, 20, of Niagara Falls, N.Y., clung to a rock until pulled from the rapids by a tourist, David Dahlberg of Grantsburg, Wis.

Miss Camann's companion, Joel Bahr, 19, also of Niagara Falls, clung to the railing.

Police said they had a description of the two men and had begun a search for them. The reason for the action was not known.

The incident occurred shortly before midnight at Terrapin Point on Goat Island, a small island situated in the middle of the Niagara River between the waterfalls.

The island is a popular spot for tourists because they can view the American Falls close-up from one side of the island and the Horseshoe Falls from another corner of the island.

The Niagara Frontier State Park Commission police said Bahr and Miss Camann were standing along a railing at Terrapin Point when the men approached and threw them over the railing.

Dahlberg told police he was walking with his brother and sister when he realized someone was in the water. He climbed over the railing and pulled the young woman ashore.

Bahr said he told the men they could have anything they wanted. "But one of them said, 'Shut up, whitey,' and stuck his fingers in my mouth to keep me from screaming."

Park Use as Classroom Gaining Area Support

The use of Prescq'ile Provincial Park as an outdoor classroom for elementary school students is increasing each year, Ontario Minister Peter Hurley says.

In May and June classes are invited to take advantage of the park's unique facilities for viewing forest, field, marsh and shoreline and their wildlife inhabitants.

Teachers can visit the park for the day or overnight — at no charge — and a team of five naturalists is available to work with teachers to interpret their surroundings to the students.

The various elements of the program are guided nature walks, tours of the park's Museum of Natural History, group discussions and audio-visual presentations to combine to give children a of the environment. Because the activities are interesting and enthusiastic, learning becomes fun, Mr. Hurley adds.

Recently Connie Raynor, Ann Bugg and Peter North, Grade 6 teachers from Murray Centennial School, took three classes to the park on three separate days.

They said the children learned much more in the park than they could have in the classroom: they experienced everything we had taught."

Farm and District

Proper Storage Lessens Hay Crop Silage Loss

If a farmer has had problems with his crop silage, he should take a close look at his management system. According to Gordon Goldish agricultural engineer J. B. Arnold, cutting, moisture content, storage and feeding procedures should all be examined carefully before the crop is cut and put up in the silo.

"For proper oxygen exclusion in conventional silos hay crop silage must be cut to pack in well," says the Ontario ministry of agriculture and food environment and special projects engineer. "A one-quarter to three-eighths inch theoretical cut is recommended.

He explains that the theoretical cut is the distance that the forage travels into the cutting cylinder between the successive cuts of the knives. With windrowed crops, many of the stems do not feed in straight, so the actual length of cut may average twice the theoretical setting.

"Theoretical cut should be adjusted by changing the gear ratio between the feed mechanism and the cutting cylinder — not by removing knives from the cylinder," he advises. "In addition, farmers should refer to their operator's manual for instructions on setting their machines." Sharp knives and setting the shear bar to a minimum knife clearance are also important factors in obtaining a short cut.

The cutting length of hay crop silage put up by dairy producers should be a compromise between the short cut required for good packing and the longer cut needed to provide dairy cattle with their roughage requirements.

The engineer says conventional concrete tower silos should be maintained crack-free so air cannot enter to cause excessive spoilage.

"Interior walls of the silos may require periodic resealing — a normal maintenance procedure during the lifetime of the structure.

Farmers who are in doubt about the condition of their silos or need instructions on resealing them, should contact the Ontario Silo Association or their county agricultural engineer," he suggests.

Silo size also has an effect on the amount of spoilage. "It must be sized so that a minimum of one to two inches of material is removed each day during cold weather and three to four inches in hot weather. Failure to do this results in excessive heating, growth of molds and significantly lower feed consumption."

Fire Bill Out of Line

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

Goliath wasn't slain by David this time but neither did the little fellow get a beating. Rather, he still came out ahead at the end of the game, having taken a strip of pride off the back of the giant.

You can't help admire his spunk. Yes sir! Murray Township took on big Trenton, and won.

To mix metaphors, Trenton tucked its tail between its legs, turned, and walked back to its doghouse (read treasury) $10,000 short of the money it wanted for its fire protection service to the township.

Trenton learned that it can't arbitrarily increase the cost of a service and expect to get what it wanted. It learned, one hope, that negotiations, or some form of talks, should be undertaken before putting the municipal foot down.

Trenton just can't act like the two senior governments and impose its wishes. It simply doesn't have the power of being the sole possessor of a unique service.

Oddly enough, it must have recognized that very fact during the five months it wailed for Murray Township to pay its 1973 bill.

The town billed the township $30,000 for fire protection this year, up 150 per cent from the $12,000 agreed to in a 1972 contract, and paid in 1974. Notification of the increase came early this year.

But at budget time, the town had a few thoughts, probably accompanied by unpleasant words aimed in the township's direction, over the likelihood of Murray paying what Trenton demanded.

So what did Trenton do? According to town treasurer Brian Fagan, it wrote only $6,000 in its budget as the anticipated receipts from the township for this year's fire protection service.

Judging from that action, it seems Trenton didn't really expect to get the full amount, in this case $15,000 for a half-year's service. Rather it was expecting payment for a half-year under the old contract $11,000 a month.

Trenton, said the treasurer "played it safe" because it didn't know what response it would get from the township.

As it turned out, the town was paid only for five months of service, having cut off protection as of June 2nd.

I'm prompted to wonder if Trenton didn't want to end altogether the service it provided the township. Perhaps it reasoned that a big bill would frighten the township away.

Well it did. And the township may have won in the end.

Township officials place yearly costs of fire protection from Ameliasburgh, Frankford and Brighton at $12,000. That's a far cry from $30,000. Adding costs the township will face when it sets up its own small fire department, total yearly costs are foreseen to be $20,000 below $30,000.

Either way, the township saves money. Either way, David has won.

Bats, Foxes and Skunks Common Rabies Carriers

Before you take your dog on vacation, make sure he's had his rabies shot. For safety's sake, Ontario ministry of agriculture and food extension veterinarian Dr. H. J. Neely advises that the family pet be vaccinated at least 10 days before departure.

Dr. Neely says: "In most parts of Ontario, rabies is endemic in our wildlife. It's possible for the family pet to be fascinated by foxes and skunks, which are mainly responsible for the transmission of rabies to pets."

He issues a strong warning to parents to keep their children away from foxes and skunks. These animals assume abnormal behavior if infected with rabies. Under normal circumstances, they will try to avoid people but when infected, they become aggressive and move into inhabited areas.

"In recent years, it has been found some bats are also capable of spreading the disease. Usually the bats are nocturnal and are not infrequent visitors to the campfire," the veterinarian says. "The important thing is to try to avoid them, but if you are exposed to a bite or scratch, consult a physician immediately."

The rabies virus is transmitted through the saliva of a rabid animal. Call a physician promptly if anyone comes in contact with it.

Dr. Neely emphasizes that any animal suspected of having rabies must be reported to the nearest office of the Health of Animals Branch, Agriculture Canada, Ottawa.

Clean Streets Draws Dollars

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Circled in red on most Picton merchants calendars the tourist season should be the signal for a clean sweep on Main Street.

Picton mayor Donald King recently told the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce that Main Street in the morning, especially Sunday morning, often is untidy. He mentioned papers, bottles and other trash dropped by litterbugs and urged merchants to co-operate in a clean-up.

In a community where tourism is considered as important industry the man on Main Street often seems to take an indifferent approach.

A number of Picton store fronts and business blocks need repairs and paint jobs if the tourist, not to mention the local shopper, is to be impressed.

Several downtown stores do show off fresh coats of paint and renovations inside and out but other shops hide behind peeling paint, sagging awnings and dirty windows.

It's time the merchants took a customer's eye view of their stores with consideration for needed repair work and improved fronts.

Often the merchandise sold in these less attractive shops is of good quality and is well — displayed. By improving the outside appearance of such stores the owners possibly would woo more tourist dollars.

Mayor King has called for a closer police watch on litterbugs and has urged all merchants to clear papers and other rubble off the streets.

His suggestion are excellent and certainly show concern for the tourist's first impressions of the town.

Two years ago the town set out his own street planters this spring said he has been forced to remove them as vandals continue to pull the plants.

Although it can be difficult to keep everything coming up roses, or at least geraniums, on Main Street merchants should continue their efforts to brighten the town with planters.

If one merchant takes pride in his store front it is likely his next door neighbor will take the cue and improve his shop.

On a broader scale possibly the chamber of commerce could consider more attractive sign at the town limits to welcome visitors here.

A project to afford a facelift for the town's business section should be considered. Perhaps light weight planters that merchants could easily move indoors at night could be suggested to replace outdoor pots that tempt vandals.

The tourist dollar, important to Prince Edward's economy, should not be treated as small change.

With attractive shopping malls near Picton the merchants should strive to offer customers here stores with eye appeal.

Manure Fertilizer Has Several Uses

With the higher costs of fertilizers, farmers cannot afford to misuse the valuable resource of livestock manure.

"Manure has to be considered one of the most useful by-products of agriculture," states soils specialist Professor T. H. Lane, of the department of land resource science, Ontario Agricultural College. "If a farm is operated under a grass forage program, it's an ideal situation in which to utilize manure."

With any good grass, such as brome, timothy or even red canary, the amount of production can be spread over three time periods: in early spring, right after first harvest and again after second harvest or in early fall. This allows a farmer much more flexibility in the time of manure application.

The grasses can make excellent use of the nutrients; however, they can be overfertilized. The varying levels of nutrients (especially nitrogen) in cattle, swine or poultry manures can build up nitrate levels to toxic levels in the crop, with the increased hazard of leaching these nitrates into ground water systems. To determine the correct rates of application, Professor Lane recommends that farmers have their manure analyzed for N-P-K levels to prevent applying it beyond the grasses' needs.

From the research data collected at the Ontario Agricultural College, trials show that grasses fertilized with manure can achieve a good production level, with quite a high level of protein quality.

Peace More or Less but NATO and Mid-East Countries Maintain Arms Build-up

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

The common denominator in the major world news stories about NATO and the Middle East is arms escalation.

The latest development in increasing the world's weapon supply is of course the Belgian purchase of $2 billion of the U.S. F-16 fighter.

Actually it's a four-nation deal within NATO and could ultimately bring 329 billions in spin-off sales to the American aircraft builders.

In the Middle East, in spite of continued moves toward an Israeli-Arab peace settlement and the re-opening of the Suez canal, arms build-up continues at a level greater than before any of the previous Arab-Israeli conflicts.

Israel recently unveiled a modern jet fighter built and designed entirely in that country (with large assists from France), small, markers of the Mirage fleet already owned by Israel.

The latest flow of Russian weapons to the buoyant Egyptians who still hold the other side of the Suez canal after winning it back in the Yom Kippur war of October, 1973, includes the sophisticated MiG 23 jet fighter.

And it is interesting that the lead ship in the procession opening the Suez canal was the Russian-built Skoryi class destroyer called Aswan by the Egyptian navy, in honor of the day the last Arab-Israeli war broke out.

Nor should one forget that the USSR's operation gives the big Soviet fleet in the Mediterranean easy access to their growing one in the Indian Ocean and to the Soviet-supplied base at Aden.

Further east, the expanding Iranian economy to be built in part on a huge military infrastructure, includes much military equipment in its growth.

The Iranian navy, which was a truly gunboat fleet until the pre-Islam in oil, has just bought four conventional submarines from the United States Navy to give that country's fleet a "presence" in the Indian Ocean.

The staggering Iranian purchases of the latest jet aircraft and tanks will give her armed forces a strikes close to that of most NATO countries and in effect make them larger on land than those of the British who are themselves selling the Shah about 1,000 modern tanks.

Remember too, that President Ford's tough speech immediately after the last Americans withdrawal from Vietnam and its military debacle, was made at the launching of the huge new nuclear aircraft carrier of the United States Navy.

It's a $1 billion ship and, at a time when we haven't a no intention of reducing their muscle around the world.

Curiously this is all happening at a time when we haven't a single conflict under way in the world for the first time since 1945.

The Middle East is at peace. The 30-year long war in Vietnam has ended. There are no colonial wars, the longest one ending with the Portuguese announcement early last year that Lisbon would get out of Africa.

The argument now is an economic one as well as a strategic one. To what extent are such vast outlays of money justifiable part of keeping economic healthy and maintaining technological work forces?

Certainly for the non-nations like Iran, such huge arms purchases have to be very inflationary in their economies.

The Menace of Crime

The one constant fact amid all the arguments on capital punishment — for and against — is that policemen and ordinary citizens are being slain by persons who not only escape the noose but frequently are paroled after serving only a fraction of their sentence.

The police in particular are concerned because the law as it stands, with commutations of the on-paper death sentences, and the granting of parole in relatively short order, mean in effect it is open season for every thug with a pistol, rifle or whatever.

A Montreal Gazette report of the funeral of slain city police officer, Det. Sgt. Gilles Beauvais, last weekend, noted several of the hundreds present from among his colleagues "made it clear they want the death penalty restored and parole laws revised."

"If society can't protect its policemen properly, why should policemen have to worry about protecting society?" said Det. Sgt. Michel Beauvais, brother of the 35-year-old officer killed in an exchange of gunfire.

The mood of the police, in Montreal, as elsewhere, was reflected by the words of police chaplain Jean Boulay who said it was the 42nd time the city's policemen were mourning a colleague who died in the line of duty. He laid it on the line when he said: "This freedom by parole is a grotesque farce. More than half of all crime committed each year is committed by people who are on parole."

More than half . . . remember that.

And among the mourners was policeman Georges Houle who also lost a brother. It was back in 1957 and he was killed by a man released from jail on parole.

How many more policemen will die before the government and prison authorities enforce the law as it should be (making life imprisonment what it is meant to be, if not restoring capital punishment.

Travel and Immigration Poses Parasite Problem

Kitchener-Waterloo Record

A shortage of money and staff appear to be stopping work the Waterloo Region health unit would like to do to combat the spread of intestinal parasites. If there were enough nurses on staff, the units would track down contacts and arrange checks by physicians.

It is a relatively new problem in public health for this part of Ontario. It exists because more people go as tourists to tropical countries, or come from such countries as students or immigrants, without adequate health checks. Flatworms, hookworms and other parasites that live and feed in the small intestine can come with them, and be spread through human contact.

The warning given by Dr. Elizabeth Huntington, associate medical officer of health for the Waterloo Region, follows on a recent warning by Dr. Roy Chatterton, a Cambridge physician who handles parasitology cases for 11 other doctors in Cambridge. In the past year Dr. Chatterton has treated more than 400 cases of parasites and tropical diseases.

For more than two years warnings have been issued from Dr. Harding le Riche, professor of epidemiology at the University of Toronto, that health problems are being imported to this country. One of the difficulties in controlling the spread of such ailments is that many Canadian doctors are not trained to recognize tropical disease, and might not ordinarily suspect a parasitical cause.

Senior Citizens Helped

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

The young people's program of help to senior citizens in this area is outstanding. Many aged elderly people need help at times.

Most people like to stay in their own home as long as possible but are unable physically to clean floors, etc. This is where this service comes in so handy and best of all it is free.

I had reason to use the service and two most delightful girls came to my home and did many jobs really well. They will do any job.

Belleville has needed such a service for a long time. I have friends and surely appreciated the help and hope such service will continue.

Dan Hosford is to be commended, also his staff for such a fine job they are doing.

VERY GRATEFUL

Paper Recycling Issue

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

My letter under the title 'No Programs — Comments?' in your issue of apparently did not meet with the approval of Mr. J.H. Forbes, whose concept of a viable paper recycling program is the end of all, and approach by the pulp and paper industry. And that the Canadian people must quietly acquiesce to the idea that we can save conserve resources and the national economy on a basis of economic expansion. To me this is the path to ruin and a prescription for disaster.

The purpose of the environmental protection act is to provide for the protection and conservation of the natural environment. Therefore I think I have every right to expect the Government of Ontario and the Ministry of the Environment, to exhibit the leadership necessary in this way in our throwaway society — to encourage and promote the reduction of waste which keeps increasing, but to date it has been more of a prutsh than an accomplishment.

With 500 million tons of paper products going to dumps and so called landfill sites every year in Canada, this to me would seem to be a good place to start recycling every day of the year, and not just when it is convenient. This represents approximately 85 million trees lost forever. Also enough paper used up in dumps and landfill sites, to fill a row of more than 875 million dollars to haul the waste paper to dump sites.

Only one-third of this problem is Ontario's. Are we prepared to stand by and allow the senseless destruction of our forests. This is a quick profit can be made from destroying our heritage! I do not think the Canadian people will allow this to continue.

At the risk of ruffling a few feathers I would suggest the primary concern of the pulp and paper industry is profit. If in the process people are hurt and the natural environment is polluted and stripped it is unfortunate. But nothing must be allowed to stand in the way of what some people call progress.

An editorial in the Toronto Star, November 11, 1974: So let them go on earning their fabulous profits."

The Indians of the Grand River and Walpole Island Reserves in Northwestern Ontario are suffering helplessly in a classic void of government responsibility and corporate quibbling.

Land from the English and Wahigoon rivers are a staple in the diets of the Kenora area Indians. And these fish are contaminated with mercury dumped into the waters by pulp and paper plants over a 10-year period.

The Toronto Star, 25 March, 1975: "Mercury contamination found in cats fed northern river fish." Mr. Stuart Leggatt (NDP New Westminster) is reported to have said. A paper company is apparently the polluter, but it was given Federal grants since the pollution was discovered. "Is this the 'Co-operative' concept of the corporate citizenship? What do you think?"

Is this the record of an industry concerned about conserving resources, the welfare of people and the environment. It seems to me there is a lot to be desired from such viewpoint, but a financial one.

KENNETH R. PEOPLES.

Thin News Pickings

Even a newsman would have to admit it is pretty dull pickings in the news these days.

With President Gerald Ford's "the war is over," remark after and capitulation of the Saigon government, and with Watergate also something of a distant memory, there is a noticeable dearth of hard news these days. So much so that some sections of the media are still harking back to the past. Such as the CBC woman interviewer who was on the other night talking with . . Martha Mitchell.

All this in what is virtually the twilight of the big Washington scandal. Even Richard Nixon has been allowed to fade practically out of media sight, although such indefatigable probers as The National Enquirer and McCalls have run after-the-fall and post-illness articles on the former president.

There is word too that Mr. Nixon has been in touch with various political figures, that some have even been seeking his advice, and that he is being urged to move to New York to be closer to the action.

It will be no surprise if ultimately Mr. Nixon is more in the forefront of things again.

Memory, after all, is short, but not so much as that an observant viewer of NBC news remembered that the subject of a recent Sunday Profile — a Montana rancher called Wally McRae who is holding out against government plans to mine the cattle country's coal wealth, had been profiled a couple of years ago.

There is a dearth of things going on; hence this drazeine of old material from files by at least one network, and the corn that characterizes much of "silly-season" news programming.

Brantford Expositor

The veterans of the major Catholic and Protestant organizations have only themselves to blame. For years, they have fostered prejudice and hatred and violence. Some of them may now be getting sick of the results. But it is too late. The lessons they have taught have been well learned by the younger generations of Ulster; members of the new murder squads are generally aged between 14 and 18.

Boating and Swimming

Attention to Basics is Essential

The Red Cross provides many rules. But if persons would heed but two of them only, many lives could be saved. They are:

If you cannot swim, learn, and until you can swim, stay out of boats and away from water. And if you can swim, even if you're an expert, always wear a life jacket when in a boat of any size.

Brockville Recorder and Times

The boating season has started with a note of tragedy in Eastern Ontario this year with several drownings already reported. The latest, and the nearest to home for readers of this newspaper, was the death of two young people near Delta of the week-end. It was a tragedy that will befall many more people before the summer is over, perhaps needlessly.

Such tragedies could be averted, possibly, if only people would heed the water safety rules so frequently stressed in campaigns in this and other newspapers in support of the efforts of the Red Cross Society to make everyone conscious of the need for an awareness of the hazards presented when boating or swimming.

Recently Cannifton United Church held a service for the purpose of dedicating the church bell which had been placed in the tower of the church shortly after it was built, over 100 years ago. About 50 years ago the tower and the weight of the bell were considered unsafe so the bell was taken down and stored in the church premises. Two new beautifully trained oak doors were dedicated at the same service. They were a gift from Mrs. Will Drury of Toronto in memory of her parents the late Mr. and Mrs. R. Rosevear.

Members of the Ontario Jewellers Association held their annual convention in Belleville for the first time when they met June 12th at the Bay of Quinte Country Club. Mayor George Tice and J. O. Herring, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, welcomed the visitors. Mr. J.E. Logan of this city was elected president of the association for the coming year.

Ministers whose stations have been changed will be expected to report at their new stations on July 1st. This decision was reached at noon today at the Bay of Quinte Conference. Because of the forthcoming church union, the church property committee recommended that authority to sell the Minden Methodist Church be granted, the church not to be used for religious purposes again. Garden Hill methodist Church will also be sold, the proceeds to go to the United Church.

Prospect of Drought in 1976 to Add to High Inflation

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Inflationary pressures are becoming stronger again, as evidenced by the 0.8 per cent increase in the consumer price index for May.

—Next year could be a poor crop year, if certain cyclical patterns hold true.

—The world price of crude oil will take another big jump as a result of the decision by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries to stop selling their prices in dollar terms.

Weather patterns dating back to the turn of the century suggest that there is a 20-year cycle of solar activity, which will reach its low point in 1976, according to L. B. Thompson, associate dean of agriculture at Iowa State University.

This could result in the worst drought on North America's Great Plains since the mid-1930s, Dr. Thompson believes. Around 1934 it was the most dry in mid-1950s, growing areas were hit by long periods of dry, hot weather.

That spells trouble for cattle producers as well as grain growers. A shortage of feed grains in 1976 would probably bring about a dramatic liquidation of herds—which are unusually large now—and a big drop in cattle prices.

Consumers might—or might not—enjoy some temporary price cuts at the meat counter.

But in the broader picture, a 1976 drought would clearly force up food prices—which have already risen an average of 11 per cent in Canada during the past 12 months.

The Arab-dominated oil producers' cartel, OPEC, has decided in principle to abandon the dollar and instead quote selling prices in terms of "special drawing rights" of the IMF.

The SDR is a unit devised by the International Monetary Fund and based on the value of 16 leading currencies.

The effect will be to increase the cartel's price of oil from the current $10.46 a barrel to more than $11, it is estimated.

And that fixed price is likely to take yet another jump after Sept. 30, when the current "freeze" comes to an end.

Even though Canada is more or less self-sufficient in oil the OPEC move will send Canadian prices higher—since OPEC supplies eastern Canada's needs, and export tax on sales of Western Canadian crude to U.S. customers doesn't quite make up the difference.

Last year's experience showed that big increases in food and oil prices soon lead to big price increases in almost everything else. Petroleum-based energy, for example, is a cost factor in nearly every aspect of modern life.

In addition, producers of key primary materials in the Third World are forming new OPEC-type cartels with a view to multiplying their prices.

And, of course, every percentage point increase in the consumer price index brings a demand for a big, three or four percentage point wage increase from strong unions, especially those in the public sector.

With the early warnings of more and bigger inflation as clear as they are today, it is essential that the forthcoming federal budget should bolster Canada's pitiful little defences against rampant inflation.

Today In History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Charles I of England suffered the worst crushing defeat at the hands of parliamentary forces in Cromwell's age today—in 1645—at the Battle of Naseby. The battle was decided by the superior discipline of Cromwell's new-model army, which did not break when attacked and did not allow itself to thin out when in pursuit of royalists. Parliamentarians captured 100 standards and all the king's baggage and cannon, ending further resistance.

1616—Champlain left Quebec with Hurons to attack Iroquois.

1829—First Methodist church in Montreal was built.

1919—British flyers Alcock and Brown were first to cross the Atlantic from Newfoundland to Ireland.

1941 — President Franklin Roosevelt froze all German and Italian assets in the U.S.A.

1954—Sir Winston Churchill was formally invested as a Knight of the Garter.

Tensions Induce Nuns To Leave Their Orders

NEW YORK (AP) — When a Roman Catholic nun quits her order, it's usually because of tensions and her feeling that within the group she can't really be herself.

This is the finding of a recent study on why sisters leave their communities. As a step they have taken at quadruple the rate of priests in recent years.

Women are reacting more keenly to the stresses, which may be greater for them because of male domination of institutional structures, the researchers say.

Although the spotlight generally has focused on departures of priests, their numbers in the United States have declined only 5.8 per cent, down from 60,000 to 56,000, but the count of nuns has taken 22 per cent, 181,000 to 140,000.

Moreover, 41.2 per cent of religious women now are entering religious life, compared to 58.1 fewer seminarians preparing for the priesthood. Inquiry why the nuns quit, the study, sponsored by the National Sisters Vocation Conference, found that the biggest proportion, 69 per cent, cited personal tensions such as inability to be themselves, loneliness, a sense of insecurity and lack of support from other sisters.

The study, co-ordinated by Franciscan Sister Margaret Ann Modde of Washington and Dr. John Pin Koval, chairman of Dayton University sociology department, involved responses from 1,402 former nuns.

The second-ranked category of reasons for departure, cited by 54 per cent, concerned organizational stresses such as slowness of reforms, conflicts with superiors, the community's inadequate awareness of social-moral issues, and obstacles to adult decision-making.

The third-ranked category, cited by 37 per cent, was "intimacy stress," including the desire to marry and need for sexual intimacy. Religious commitment stress, such as loss of faith and reluctance to continue representing the institutional church, was mentioned by 23 per cent.

Noting that most of the women gave several reasons for quitting, the report says the data make clear the basic motive rarely is loss of faith or "reasons related to the cultural truisms of sex or a man."

Instead, the reasons usually are problems of personal fulfilment and identity, interpersonal relationships and the organizational systems, the report says, adding:

"The lack of personalism and personal autonomy, cited by 44 per cent, concerned loneliness and the absence of support from other sisters in work and community, then—and perhaps only then—seem to produce a longing for more traditional forms of interdiscipline through marriage and sex."

Sister Elizabeth Carroll of Washington, D.C., commented:

"Women continue to be treated within church structures as non-persons, or at best, part persons. . . . Only through the formal acknowledgement of the equality of women with men in the ministry will the ministry be redeemed."

A survey of the U.S. Catholic Conference, the national action arm of the church, found that no women hold decision-making posts in its various agencies, although 85 per cent employees include 178 women, 129 on the clerical level, and 49 professionals; but as assistants to male executives.

Jesus Wouldn't Have Made Roman Empire 'Who's Who'

By DR. GORDON C. SMYTH

If there had been a first century "Who's Who in the Roman Empire", it would not have contained the name of Jesus of Nazareth. He did not create as wide a reputation as the founder of Islam, Mohammed, did in the seventh century, or as Mohandas Gandhi did in our own century.

For some thirty years, Jesus lived quietly in Nazareth, known to his neighbors as the widow Mary's son. For about three years he went through cities, towns and villages of the province of Galilee.

For some time, large crowds gathered to hear what Jesus had to say since he spoke, not in dry platitudes but in sparkling parables. Even more, they were drawn by his works of healing since he had a mysterious power to restore bodies and minds to wholeness.

As long as Jesus offered what they wanted, audiences grew. But when he began to rebuke them for their self-interested pursuit of him and to challenge them to adopt both his faith and manner of living, the numbers dwindled.

Then when Jesus made it clear that he had to go up to Jerusalem, where he would likely experience the fate of the prophets, the number of admirers was reduced again. Multitudes had been eager to join the company of a popular leader and a powerful healer who might prove to be a patriotic leader in a revolt against their Roman overlords. But they had no stomach for a cause that would end in the crucifixion of their champion.

After this many of his disciples drew back and no longer went about with him. Jesus said to the twelve, "Will you also go away?" Simon Peter answered him, "Lord, to whom shall we go? You have the words of eternal life; and we have believed, and have come to know, that you are the Holy One of God" (John 6:66-69). Close and experience were to prove St. Peter right.

If we do have a new Dark Age, which we probably shall have, writes Dr. D. Elton Trueblood, distinguished Quaker philosopher, "we can expect the Christian community to survive through the darkness as it did once before. We are part of something which Christ brought into the world with the prediction that it would prevail in spite of all dangers" (Matthew 16:18). In fact, it is not draw back because of the anti-institutional mood of the times. Let us learn that "institution" is the social or communal expression of personal endurance. And endurance is a virtue.

But we are challenged to something else, to. We are called to the thrill of pilgrimage, to the satisfaction of costly discipleship that posterity will note with gratitude, to joy in a global fellowship of those who have believed and come to know that, in Jesus Christ, God has visited this earth.

Russians Lukewarm To Fight Against God

LENINGRAD (Reuter) — Young Russians still are told what a wicked thing religion is but they appear more curious than zealous about the fight against God.

One centre of the Soviet. Union's struggle against vestiges of religious thought is in Leningrad, where a former cathedral houses the Museum of Anti-religious Relics and Atheistic Propaganda.

Although a centre of atheism, the former Cathedral of Our Lady of Kazan still is known to Russian passers-by as the Kazansky Sobor (Kazan Cathedral).

It is a majestic building, modelled on St. Peter's in Rome, with a sweeping semicircular colonnade of Corinthian pillars.

Groups are bussed from schools or on tours to lectured by guides on the horrors and injustices inflicted through the ages by priests, soothsayers, cult leaders, church inquisitors, witch doctors, black magicians and religious fanatics and devotees—right up to present-day Zionism.

Zionism, presented as one of the world's great evils and prime source of interracial strife, gets a much more prominent place than, for example, Grigori Rasputin, the monk who shed his influence over the court of the last czar, Nicholas II.

Albania has gone much further than the Soviet Union in combating religious practice. Young ski clubs and mountaineers and turning them into theatres or warehouses. Russian priests have been deprived, imprisoned, deported or executed on charges of treason.

In the Soviet Union the policy is to combat religious rites and recruitment by propaganda. In the Leningrad museum groups of young Russians pad around silently behind their guides.

They seem awed by the heavy baroque interior of the former cathedral and their guide pauses occasionally at most resembles a devotional occasion. But there are other behavior patterns—young sailors on shore leave eye girls in the groups in between examining the relics.

Students, couples and young housewives seem to use the building as a rendezvous point. The museum is free of charge and warm, which makes it a suitable place for friends to meet before moving on to a theatre or restaurant.

Religion in the Soviet Union today occupies a place which is becoming more and more comparable to the situation in the West.

Some decline in religious observance in the West since the Second World War is generally attributed to the corrupting influence of consumer society and the materialist onslaught.

Even if the Communist state had not zeroed in on religion as a vestige of a previous exploiting society, the trend might have been similar here for today's gods in the Soviet Union are also consumerism and material comfort.

In these after pursuits is all the more intense because Soviet society, dominated by civil war, world war and Stalin's enforced industrialization, has had to wait longer for goods.

Although religion is on the decline, as much through natural social change as through official suppression, a strange new phenomenon appears to be developing. This is what is known as the "third-generationers."

Their grandfathers survived the revolution and helped to build Stalinist communism. Their parents survived the Second World War and built up prosperous, influential careers which enabled them to give their children a first-class education and all home and vacation comforts.

These sophisticated young men and women now entering adult life often seem to question the values of a purely materialistic society, though not communism as such, and look for some better reason for human existence.

Witch Doctor Claiming Cancer Cure

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (CP) — A witch doctor here is said to have cured a man of cancer.

And in a country where superstition and belief in spirits still is dominant among the black population, nobody is prepared to scoff at the claim.

Harison Gama, an African house-servant, decided to try his luck with the witch doctor after being told that his badly ulcerated leg was cancerous and would have to be amputated.

Now, two months later, he is back at work. His leg is apparently fully healed.

Gama spent a month under treatment by a witch doctor at Bulawayo in the southern part of the country.

Recently he returned for a check-up at Salisbury's Harare Hospital, where his old crippling body cast and his leg would have to be removed.

The comment on the medical card after his visit: "Wound has healed beautifully. I do not see any indication for amputation at the moment. Patient fit for duty."

But an entry dated Jan. 30 on the same card reads: "Admit for amputation."

Gama's employer, Mrs. Merle Wright, said the day after the decision to amputate was made and saw a doctor who confirmed that the leg would have to be amputated because of cancer.

"Harison was terribly depressed," she says. "He talked about taking his life. He kept saying 'What use is an African without a leg; who will employ him?' I can't even ride a bicycle.

"He decided not to return to hospital, and to try a witch doctor instead. I agreed to let him take leave."

Gama says he injured his leg in a road accident five years ago and it had given him constant trouble ever since. The wound would heal for a while, only to reopen again.

Medical report cards show he had been under constant treatment at Harari Hospital as an out-patient. Nine months later he was admitted for an operation to remove ulcerated tissue and to graft new tissue onto the wound.

Entries show that at first the graft took well but within a few weeks he was back under treatment and then referred to the hospital's cancer clinic. It was at this stage he was told he would have to lose his leg.

"The witch doctor put an end (magic medicine) both morning and afternoon," Gama says. "It started healing straight away. Now my leg is fine. There is no pain at all."

Quarters Comfortable For Crews

WAINWRIGHT, Alta. (CP) — One of the largest and most modern railway crew facilities in Western Canada has been opened by Canadian National Railways.

The two-storey, 48-bedroom crew lodge for train and engine crews operating eastbound from Edmonton and westward from Biggar, Sask.

The Wainwright facility is the third built in Alberta during the last 18 months under a plan where crew facilities are constructed and operated by private developers under a lease-management agreement with the railway. Similar facilities are in operation at Edson and Whitecourt.

Operation of the lodge is similar to that of a hotel, in that crews are not charged for accommodation. They sign the register when entering and are assigned a room. Each employee is issued a locker to store personal belongings and a second locker for food storage.

Helping Out

May Bean, widowed Foshero pensioner, is among elderly residents in Belleville area who now are benefiting from volunteer help of young people like Jill Everard, 17, (left) and Dan Hosford. The young Bellevillians are part of group funded by Opportunities for Youth grant helping elderly folk during the summer.

Despite Rigid Discipline Mounties Find Recruits

REGINA (CP) — The Royal Canadian Mounted Police have recently been criticized for training that pushes recruits to exhaustion, too-harsh discipline, bare-minimum trappings and intrusions into the private lives of members. A federal inquiry into the national police force is under way.

But the people responsible for training say conditions have changed so much in the last few years that few retired Mounties would know it's the same police force. There is no problem finding recruits.

At Depot Division, the RCMP training centre, there is saluting, recruits march on a parade square and there is an abundance of short hair and sharply-pressed uniforms.

But there's more to it than that, says Superintendent W. P. MacRae, the chief training officer.

"People are reacting to a visual relationship with the military.

"The military do foot drill and we do foot drill . . . but to assume that this generates a kind of military mentality . . . that's missing the point entirely. If we were doing that we'd be out of business.

"Police training requires that we gear the individual to respond. Police work is an individual response to every situation.

"Looking at discipline in that context is also a mistake because foot drill is not where discipline is learned. Foot drill is simply a technique for quick response, for quick obedience to a set of commands. Discipline is taught through experiencing the examples of what is done the right way. . . . We must convince the student that the standards we are trying to achieve are worth while. Foot drill has nothing to do with discipline."

Chief Superintendent H. P. Tadeson, the depot's commanding officer, said recruits themselves would like more marching and the public loves the pomp and ceremony, but the real work is done in classrooms.

Superintendent MacRae said more than half of the six-month training course given as many as 640 male and female recruits at a time is spent on such academic subjects as law, human relations, psychology, crisis intervention, minority policing and community relations.

It would be "idle," said Superintendent MacRae, for the force to pursue a glossy public relations program to change its image because such a program would be "suspect."

Depot offers "enabling" training and graduates still must spend six months in field work.

Customs Officers Keeps Eye on Cars

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — Donny Miller says it's his job to protect Canadian interests, manufacturers, leasing companies and others.

Yet, as constable in charge of customs and excise, he feels he is probably the most unpopular member of the Mississauga detachment of the RCMP.

In an age when prices know only how to rise, Constable Miller finds himself asked constantly why consumers cannot buy their goods cheaper in the United States without having to worry about police intervention.

Among the laws Constable Miller must enforce are those regulating foreign cars—more specifically American-made cars—in Canada. The regulations, set up to guard against an individual's bypassing the import duties, make it a costly venture to drive a new car into Canada without the required permit.

Recently, two $11,000 cars leased by two Canadian citizens with American driver's licences and residences in a southern state, were seized by the RCMP in Mississauga.

The drivers faced two kinds of penalties—either complete forfeiture of car, which would require them to compensate the leasing agency in the U.S., or payment of double-duty and single tax, about 45 per cent, before collecting their vehicles.

The cars were retrieved, but only after the drivers had paid penalties of $5,000 each.

The customs and excise regulations under which the cars were seized cover all vehicles except buses, taxis and vehicles used in carrying passengers for payment.

Constable Miller seizes an average of 50 cars a year. In southern Ontario, about 28 cars were seized in March this year alone.

Broken Pipe, Scribbled Notes Jewels of Revolution Museum

HAVANA (Reuter) — A broken pipe, outdated rifles and hastily scribbled notes are the jewels of Havana's Revolution Museum.

The pipe belonged to Ernesto (Che) Guevara, the handwriting is that of Fidel Castro.

The rifles were fired in the Sierra Maestra jungle by the bearded Castroist guerrilleros, who toppled the Batista dictatorship in 1959 to found the first Communist government in the Americas.

The most commonplace items used in the guerrilla days by Castro, the now-dead Che and other leaders are part of the island's history. To Cuban schoolchildren, born after the revolution, they mean as much as Churchill's cigars to the British or Napoleon's hats to the French.

The museum, inaugurated last year, is divided in a century of violent history from the fight for independence from Spain to the abortive Bay of Pigs invasion by Cuban exiles in 1961.

It is mainly a portrait gallery of Cuban independence and trade-union leaders, most of whom met with violent deaths. It is devoid of the usual trappings of power: No gold-braided uniforms, no clandestine documents and poorquality photographs of minor ground leaders.

The hundreds of exhibits are lodged in Batista's huge white marble palace, facing the ceremonial fort of El Morro which guards the entrance to Havana's harbor.

The palace was attacked in 1957 by a group of students who shot their way up the monumental staircase into Batista's office. Batista fled to safety, reported way through a secret exit, to the maze of upper floors. Many of the attackers were shot on the staircase, which now bears memorial bronze tablets.

The museum mainly tells the story of the six-year fight by Castro to overthrow Batista. It starts with the fatal attack on the Moncada barracks in Santiago de Cuba. The assailants, led by Castro and his brother Raul, were beaten back with heavy losses.

Fidel Castro was jailed on the Isle of Pines. The key of his cell is on show, as well as the typewriter used to type the first copy of his pamphlet, History Will Absolve Me. Written in jail, it was later to become the rebels' manifesto.

RETURNED FROM MEXICO

Castro was freed two years later and, in 1956, landed from Mexico on Cuba's southern coast to begin the Sierra Maestra fighting.

Photographs and documents exhibited bear witness to the difficulties of the guerrillas. There is a kind of IOU given by Raul Castro to a helpful farmer. As the guerrilla could not pay for food, the handwritten note says the debt will be settled by the future revolutionary government.

Also on show is Guevara's scanty surgery set used to attend the wounded in desperately poor conditions. Almost side is the Argentine-born physician's pipe, engraved with the names of the battles he fought against Batista's forces in 1957 and 1958.

As reinforcements reached the mountains and the guerrillas opened new fronts, conditions improved. Workshops were set up to make one functioning rifle out of several damaged weapons.

As victory drew nearer, the rebels even built makeshift armored vehicles out of tractors and bulldozers, covered with thick sheets of metal. Two of them now stand outside the museum.

Children flock into the building running from one picture to another. They are often too small to read the captions on the walls but recognize guerrilla leaders at the first glance. Among the most popular is Commandante Camilo Cienfuegos, who died shortly after the revolution when his plane was lost over the sea.

Cubans have not forgotten the handsome, bearded leader. Every October, on the anniversary of his death, they throw into the sea "a flower for Camilo." A nine-foot bronze statue of the late commandante "in a fighting posture" will shortly stand in the southern city of Camaguey.

After the guerrillas' victory, roles were reversed in Cuba and the museum shows pictures of Castro's army, by then well organized and uniformed, hunting down bands of counter-revolutionaries in the hills.

New Zealanders Staunch In Support of Monarch

Auckland, N.Z. (CP)—Even if all the rest of the Commonwealth goes republican, New Zealand shows little sign of turning away from the monarchy.

The Labor party, at present in office, has at times shown more interest in republicanism than the opposition National party. But even Labor, at its annual conference this spring, rejected by a wide margin a proposal favoring a republic. And negotiations for New Zealand to adopt a new flag, without the Union Jack in the upper corner, were dismissed as not being of "pressing importance."

For the first time this year, New Zealand has introduced its own honors awards. But the very choice of title for the new order illustrates how far the country is from abandoning its royal allegiance.

The new honor is to be called the Queen's Service Order, and will be in addition to the existing royal honors, not in place of them.

The new order will be to recognize valuable voluntary service to the community and meritorious and faithful services to the Crown or similar services within the public sector. There will also be a Queen's Service and public services.

To emphasise that the new honors do not represent any breaking away toward a system independent of the monarchy, the new awards will be made by the Queen, to whom direct recommendations will be made.

In announcing the new awards, Prime Minister W. E. Rowling said that in future New Zealand would meet the full cost of its participation in the royal honors system.

He said that the new awards reflect the fact that they are an integral part of the royal honors system and also recognized that the Queen is Queen of New Zealand.

Labor has from time to time considered whether the existing awards should be gradually eliminated in favor of an entirely independent honors system, something on the line of that prevailing in Canada. But the time for that still seems a long way off.

At the recent annual conference, Jim Bolger, M.P. Hunt, chairman of the conference's legislative committee and an MP influential in parliamentary councils, said he hoped the New Year and Queen's Birthday honors lists would eventually give way to an individual New Zealand system, but he thought the present system was working satisfactorily meanwhile.

In fact Labor, like National when in power, continues to make recommendations for the full range of honors, up to and including knighthoods. A trade unionist under become a knight in the last honors list.

Captain Canuck Defends Canada In Comic Books

WINNIPEG (CP) — He can't leap tall buildings with a single bound, race faster than a speeding bullet, or outmuscle a powerful locomotive. But he's bilingual, thinks in metric, and is totally dedicated to defending Canada from the forces of evil.

Captain Canuck, the first comic book superhero to defend Canada against enemy attack from without and within since Johnny Canuck of 1940s fame, leaped off the drawing board in Winnipeg a few weeks ago in a red and white costume with a scarlet maple leaf emblazoned on his forehead.

And although the good Captain may never tangle with the Incredible Hulk, the Fantastic Four, or Spiderman on the pages of comic books, creator Richard Comely hopes Captain Canuck will be more than competition with his American counterparts on the comic book racks.

Mr. Comely, 24, began hatching the scheme for the dashing defender of the Dominion about three years ago in collaboration with co-creator Ron Leishman. Working from a small office on Portage Avenue and equipped with about $6,000, the first issue marks the results of eight months of preparation.

Mr. Comely says the reason behind the creation of the Captain is based on the belief a superior, 100-per-cent Canadian comic book could be produced without enlisting violent gimmicks characteristic of most American comics. Captain Canuck will resort to violence only when attempts fail at peaceful solutions.

"We're not using violence, certainly not as a theme," Mr. Comely said.

"Some of it's almost an insult to your intelligence," he said in reference to American comic books.

"They're stamped 'Approved by the Comic Code,' but they don't adhere to it."

The debut issue, of which about 320,000 were printed at 25 cents each, finds Captain Canuck battling Communist powers in Arctic Standoff. An agent for Canadian International Security Organization (CISO) in the 1990s, the Captain eventually overcomes a diabolical plot by causing a short circuit in the electrical system of a battalion of nuclear missiles aimed at the Prairies.

Along the way, the Captain encounters an Eskimo named Ulak and inquires: "Do you speak English or French?" The Captain also observes while tracking down the enemy agents: "We will land within 30 kilometres of their airship . . . then we go by snowmobile."

Captain Canuck's character reflects his creator's Mormon faith. When the enemy has been vanquished, the Captain says quietly: "God was helping us."

"He's religious," said Mr. Comely. "He's also super-strong, and very intelligent. He's the strong silent type. He comes from that old school. He's out to uphold the law and protect Canada. He's like the Mounties who always got his man. He's like Batman, but not as campy."

The Canada which Captain Canuck protects in the 1990s has become increasingly important in world affairs, Mr. Comely said. Natural resources make Canada a prime candidate for domination by foreign powers.

"The world is going to be much worse," Mr. Comely said. "There's going to be more crime and more wars."

Plans for a French-language version of Captain Canuck are being negotiated, Mr. Comely said, and some American distributors have shown interest in the enterprise.

"We need American distribution to really make a go of it. We want Canadians to buy it, but not just because it's Canadian. I'm not asking Canadians to buy it because it's the only Canadian comic book."

Captain Canuck, Canada's first comic book superhero, is bilingual, thinks in metric and is totally dedicated to defending this country from the forces of evil. Concorde Proving Itself

LONDON (CP)—A three-and-back dash from Paris to Dakar in West Africa marked the start of the final phase in the development of the Anglo-French Concorde supersonic jetliner.

The flight was the first of a series of long-distance trips that will make up the 850-hour endurance program leading to the plane's certificate of airworthiness in September or October. This endurance and route-proving program will take total Concorde flight experience to more than 3,500 hours, making it the most tested airliner ever to go into service.

Concorde 202 is being flown by crews from Aerospatiale and Air France. British Aircraft Corp., which builds Concorde in partnership with Aerospatiale, will join British Airways crews on further endurance flying from July in Concorde 204.

The French-assembled Concorde 203 has been able to make an earlier start on proving flights because the journey to Rio de Janeiro is over water for much of the time while BAC's and British Airways' plans to build up endurance hours on routes to Australia via Bahrein and Singapore require much more negotiation.

Observers from British and French airworthiness authorities will go on many of the proving trips, which involve flying with standard aircraft and will be an exercise in many airline procedures: flight planning, cabin staff and even issuing tickets.

Bees Invade Attic of Home

LONDONDERRY STATION N.S. (CP) — The Johnson family has a nagging buzzing in their ears that gives them "bees in the belfry, or should it be bees in the attic."

Some 40,000 Italian bees have taken up residence in the attic of Raymond Johnson's home in this Colchester County community and stubbornly resist all attempts to evict them.

The insects have defied fire, insecticides and direct physical attacks and show no signs of ending their seven-month stay.

Mr. Johnson tried blocking all openings to the attic but the bees always found some way back to their hive.

Mrs. Johnson fears most for the safety of her children.

"All of the children have been stung at one time or another. The bees drop down through the eaves of the house into the bedrooms. I'm terrified to think of what might happen if they decide to swarm and attack someone."

The bees have not been too active of late, tent to other sections to their four-foot-long hive. But warmer weather is approaching and the Johnsons want them gone by that time.

Pollution May Be Fuel For Airborne Organisms

SASKATOON (CP) — University of Saskatchewan researchers are investigating the possibility that atmospheric pollution from automobiles and industry may cause airborne microorganisms to live longer.

The research is a joint project of Prof. M. E. Stoneham of the mechanical engineering department and Dr. S. J. Webb, formerly with the bacteriology department and now with University of South Florida.

The federal health and welfare department awarded an $25,000 grant for the first year of the project, which is aimed at determining whether microorganisms are affected by carbon monoxide and oxides of nitrogen. Most of the money will go toward to acquire an instrument, the only one of its kind in Canada, that enables Prof. Stoneham and Dr. Webb to analyse gas emissions from combustion and to identify micro-organisms and study their biological actions in the presence of the combustion gases.

Prof. Stoneham has been doing studies of combustion and emission levels by stimulating the fuel-injection process of diesel and gas turbine engines. He said the process is more efficient and causes less pollution than carburetion, which is at present used in gasoline engines.

Dr. Webb has been studying the physical and chemical nature of air, the micro-organisms it contains and how they are affected by radiation and chemicals. The work his led him to believe that some products of combustion cause airborne micro-organisms to change genetically and, in some instances, to increase their life span and resistance to drugs.

Prof. Stoneham notes that atmospheric pollution from industry and automobiles has been suspected of contributing to respiratory infections. The higher incidence of infection has generally been attributed to irritation of the membranes of the lungs and upper respiratory tract. If the theory on which Prof. Stoneham and Dr. Webb are working is confirmed, it might mean that the incidence of infection rises because of changes in the longevity of microbes in the air and their ability to infect people, as well as their increased resistance to the drugs.

What's in Candy? You'd Never Guess

If I offered you something to eat and mentioned, off hand, that mineral oil and lanolin were among the ingredients, would you think twice?

I would have but that was before I read a fascinating book. Now, thanks to new labelling, I know that those two things are among other things, make up that candy.

I hope you start connecting carnauba wax with your shiny car, keep in mind it's a vegetable ingredient lipstick.

It will be fun to read, in the near future, the components of your favorite goodies.

The Consumers' Association of Canada has urged the federal government to enforce and maintain strict inspection of meat and dairy products, of which have come under fire during recent investigations.

The federal government will examine 68 of the 89 dairy outlets surveyed by the Consumers' Association which found unacceptably high levels of bacteria and coliform organisms in milk shakes all over the country.

Other recommendations at a CAC conference include the standardization of price labels and alone in the conversion to the metric system, the enforcement of a federal environmental bill of rights written by the Canadian Environmental Law Association. The resolution's sponsor, Elaine Stefani, said that the bill would give the private citizen the right to sue industry for environmental destruction.

Other recommendations were:

— that credit card companies be prevented from forcing merchants to withhold discounts from cash customers.

— recall mesh playpens.

— recall microwave ovens which emit more radiation than allowed by new regulations.

— review labelling on glue products because many do not indicate potential hazards clearly.

— prohibit selling of hazardous products in aerosol containers.

The CAC also wants control over pesticides, herbicides, fungicides and insecticides taken away from the agriculture department and given to an independent agency.

People and Events

CHRIST CHURCH A.C.W.

The A.C.W. of Christ Church held their June meeting on Monday afternoon, June 16. Members of the clergy, church wardens and their wives, the organist, secretary, husband and many friends joined with the members to enjoy a delightful luncheon and program.

Following lunch a brief meeting was held, including several hymns, solos, and a description of several beautiful church honors by Reverend John Utley. Special guest, Reverend Jack Fletcher spoke briefly.

President Lois Beaby welcomed the large gathering, who heard reports from the various convenors. During the past month there have been a rummage sale, a wedding reception and a coffee party. The work group has been busy making several quilts, the social service group took their bus at the coffee shop at Hastings Manor and the centennial project continues to thrive.

A cheque was presented to the wardens by the group and they were thanked by George Day and Harry Bates. To complete the program, Fred Beaby showed films of California, Vancouver and Edmonton.

ST. PAUL'S ACW

The members of St. Paul's Anglican Church Women in Marmora are more knowledgeable about the metric system following a presentation by Brian Goodchild, a mathematics teacher at Centre Hastings Secondary School, at their June meeting.

The main advantage of Canada adopting the metric system will be the improved export trade with countries using the same system, Mr. Goodchild pointed out. He added because metric is worked out in multiples of 10, it will be much easier to make calculations once a person gets used to the change.

A comparison of weights and measures was illustrated as the members weighed themselves or were measured by the old and new systems.

In other business, Janey McMillan of Kingston has consented to conduct a workshop on making banners sometime in the fall, President Hazel Lavender announced.

Arrangements are also being made for a slide presentation in the fall on the renovations that are carried out at St. George's Cathedral at a cost of $250,000. The members of the ACW decided to donate $100 towards the renovations.

Bags were distributed for filling during the summer instead of holding rummage-sale projects.

—It was also decided a refreshment booth be secured, if possible, at the Marmora Agricultural Fall Fair on Labor Day.

WOMEN'S STUDY GUILD

The May meeting of the Women's Study Guild was held at the home of Doris Ragsdale with Laurene Kerr and Jill Orr as co-hostesses.

Knitted items for the Canadian Save the Children Fund were on display which are sent directly to the Canadian nurses.

After the devotional period — conducted by Irene Orr — a most interesting program on "Some Women of the Year" was presented by Olive Smith and Winnie Wilkins. A brief outline of the life and career of several outstanding women was given — 1975 being International Women's Year. — Pauline McGibbon, Indira Gandhi, Flora MacDonald, Judy LaMarsh, Rosemary Brown and Belleville's Mayor Robin Jeffrey among them. A lively discussion followed.

Loren Ellis closed the meeting with a benediction. Refreshments were served by the hostess and co-hostesses.

125th ANNIVERSARY MARMORA CHURCH

Archbishop J.L. Wilhelm of Kingston was the main celebrant at the Marmora Thanksgiving marking the 125th Anniversary of Sacred Heart Parish, Marmora, Friday, June 6. Joining him were Marmora-born priests, Rev. Karl Clemens, Kingston, Rev. Leo Forestell, St. Darjeeling, India, Rev. Francis Quinlan, O.M.I., Ottawa, Rev. Donald Gillen, Calgary, former pastor, Monsignor J.A. O'Neill, Lyn, and neighboring priests, Rev. P.H. Murphy of Madoc, Rev. C.R. Kay of Norwood, Rev. Jo Groenewegen of Stone, and the present pastor, Rev. T.G. Scanlon.

A representative group of C.W.L. members presented a gift of a gold chalice to Father Scanlon.

Father Forestell, sketched the history of Christianity in this community, starting with the little stone church built in 1861, to the present church, built in 1904.

The recently-formed Parish Council held a reception in the parish hall following the Mass.

A historical display consisted of a showcase of commemorative china and silver vessels of the early days, old documents and an old bible.

Ushers were dressed in Sunday finery of the 1900's and three bulletin boards of pictures and newspaper clippings outlining the parish activities from 1861.

TWEED SENIORS

Tuesday, June 10, Tweed's Senior Citizens' Club met at St. James United Church Hall.

Hazel Albert opened the meeting, and minutes of the last meeting were read by secretary Mabel Foster.

Charles MacAvilla, vice-president, reported that as the new head of the New Horizons Committee, he has five members to act on his committee, but needs five more, and requested volunteers.

Albert McFaggart spoke on the progress at the New Senior Citizens Housing Units, and said the work is most satisfactory.

HONORED

Rev. Leo Forestell, who has been a teacher in St. Roberts School in Darjeeling, India for the past 25 years, was honored at his home parish of Marmora recently by 250 relatives who came from as far away as Alberta to the occasion.

Chairman for the reunion was Leo Roy, Father Forestell's brother-in-law who introduced the guest of honor at the dinner held in Sacred Heart, Parish Hall.

Father Forestell will tour western Canada before returning to India.

ST. JOSEPH'S CWL

A communion breakfast attended by 67 women was held recently at the 9m Valley Motor Inn by St. Joseph's C.W.L.

Sheila Buckley welcomed members, who were addressed following breakfast by Sister Pauline Lally, a teacher at St. Michael's Separate School in Belleville, before continuing her education in Peterborough and Ottawa. She is now a religious consultant for the Kingston Board of Education and is associated with a home for girls in Quinte City. She is the sisters of Providence, the home is open to a family community for girls who need special help.

New Family Planning Group Here

By 1976, married couples in the Bay of Quinte area will probably have a chance to learn about planning a family.

That's the year in which Serena Canada — a non-profit organization which promotes birth control — hopes to have a full-fledged natural family planning program underway.

Serena leader Gaelle Le Gal was in Belleville this week to meet with various people to determine the feasibility of starting such a program here.

Mr. Le Gal explained in an interview the first step will be to hold public meetings here this autumn to find volunteer couples in the community "to offer our services in family planning."

He said the selected couples will receive six months' training to become teacher-couples to counsel parents in the methods by mid-1976. There is a minimal membership fee.

There are three methods involved. One is the well-known rhythm method which is regarded as the least effective, Mr. LeGal noted.

The second one, a mucus monitoring method, but the third is thought to be the most effective, the sympto-thermal method "to identify the fertile period with the symptoms and temperature," he said.

Mr. Le Gal pointed out sympto-thermal "can be as effective as the pill" but it is not a method which can be learned easily. It requires either personal instruction by teacher-couples or from books which are available from Serena, he said.

Serena has been operating in Canada for the past 20 years and until the last few years was partially-funded by the Quebec government. Now the federal government kicks in funds "to set up the service in all of Canada," Mr. Le Gal said.

He said Serena has teaching teams in nine out of 10 provinces and in 50 cities which have 250 teacher-couples offering the service. Serena has participated in international research studies as well, he added.

Serena Canada is located at 8 Parkdale Avenue, in Ottawa.

'No Competition' Forcast

The natural family planning methods as exposed by Serena Canada of Ottawa and the general family planning program as set up by the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit will not be at odds with each other, spokesmen for both groups.

Serena head George Le Gal said in an interview, "we will work in close co-operation with the health unit" when his group's teacher-couples begin training for the program which will begin in mid-1976.

"There's no competition at all," he emphasized. "It's a complimentary type of service."

Gale DePaul, health unit program co-ordinator, commented, "I was very impressed" after she met with Mr. Le Gal Wednesday. "They have an excellent program going and it's extremely authenticated."

She said Serena's program will definitely assist the health unit in its efforts to educate the public as to the various methods of family planning.

Mrs. DePaul said she and Mr. Le Gal will meet again in the autumn to further discuss co-ordinating the efforts of the two groups and noted the health unit has been given literature on natural planning ways by Serena for distribution on request.

Kitchenware From Trees

That makes sense but unless you've seen the kitchenware display in the Breakfast Room at Glanmore House, you might not know what it is.

Treen is the woodenware of an earlier age and the display at The Hastings County Museum includes 40 pieces of hand carved and made treen from canoe cups once hooked over the belts of the Voyageurs to maple sugar molds and butter prints, paddles and bowls.

The treen, a private collection, was researched and displayed by Glenda Emerson, Susan Bishop and Shelagh Hannon, all university students working at the museum for the summer.

Ann Landers

Important Words for Living

Dear Ann Landers: You recently had a column in which you identified the most important words in the English language. You said the six most important words are, "I admit I made a mistake." The five are, "You did a good job." Four—"What is your opinion?" Three—"If you please." Two—"Thank you" (double). The least important word, you said, was "I."

I just read some remarks made by Dr. Chester Ewing, a physician in Homer City, Pa. He identified the four most terrible words in the English language. Please print this letter. Many a teen-agers life might be changed by it.

The most terrible words are "chicken," "square," "yellow" and "brown-nosing."

Dr. Ewing said he knew of three instances where kids had been bounded by the word "yellow" until they tried dope. He then cited some conversations he had had with young people—in hospitals. They identified the reason they were drag-racing (which leads to accidents) was because they were called "chicken."

Being called "square" had made young people afraid of dressing decently, being courteous to adults, and showing respect for authority. All young people want to be considered "with it." A "square" is "out of it." That same encourages kids to prove they are "guilty" and "up front."

"Brown-nosing" is a slang term for trying to curry favor. It is especially applied to students who raise their hands in class to ask questions and they give the teacher the impression they are interested. This stands the students in good stead with the teacher—but not with their peers.

I hope the teens who read this column will pay attention to this letter. It could change their entire outlook and lengthen their lives.—Pa. Reader

Dear Reader: Amen.

Dear Ann Landers: I am baffled by jo/ jo adjectives. In a recent column you used the term "raw" sex. Will you please tell me what you mean by "raw" sex? Virginia to Salt Lake City, je how is "raw" sex different from "cooked" sex? Also, what is sex "well-done"?—Just Askin'

Dear Just: Tastes vary—as any gourmet will tell you. I checked the dictionary and "raw" is defined as "crude or uncultivated." As for what kind of sex is "well-done"—that, too, depends on the individual.

Dear Ann Landers: The high school students in our town frequently have parties at the homes of boys whose parents happen to be away. We've told our 15-year-old daughter that she may not attend any party unless one parent is present. We believe we are being overprotective and unfair.

Our daughter is a lovely, intelligent girl and we trust her. But I still believe the rule is a good one. My husband suddenly has sided with her and I'm having a hard time. We all want your opinion.—Syracuse Hassle

Dear Hass: I hope you'll hang in there. Your position is sound. When teen-agers give parties at least one parent should be on the premises and the guests should be aware of it.

Doris Clark

A Story From The Past

Dear Doris: I am told the elderly dwell in the past. Perhaps this is why I recall my school days.

In 1912 all the Winnipeg schools had Julius Caesar for literature that term, so when a famous company of players brought "Julius Caesar" to the Walker Theatre (new Odeon) Tickets at the "gods" (near ceiling) were sold to children for 25 cents.

Everything went well, till the scene of the death of Caesar.

An impressive silence prevailed, when from the lips of a boy came the call of a rooster ... "Cock-a-doodle-do!"

The result created the usual response from the children! The play went on; at the end, "Mark Anthony", came on stage. Told us how the call at that moment had destroyed the whole play. Said if someone would bring him the young "rooster" he would be well paid. Our teacher was furious and next day we all had to "May is" and write 100 lines — "I must behave."

The First World War soon followed. I have often wondered if the young "rooster" gave his life on the battlefield for the freedom we enjoy today.

The great pity is that men proceed to destroy liberty in this day, and to bring disaster on all our heads.

Dear I.W.: Oh Joy! When you think of the weeks and months that went into the preparation of that play, and the dramatic lead-up to Caesar's death, which had doubtless been rehearsed dozens and dozens of times to the point of perfection, I cannot help but shed a tear for those actors.

And then you think of the children.... Was the daring "rooster" accustomed to stealing the spotlight? This time he had a carefree, youthful audience and he broke the spell of a shocking scene of murder. The finer points of dramatic acting were lost on them!

Next, you think of those teachers who had bent their energies to interpreting Shakespeare's glorious lines, so the young minds could enjoy them as if they were being spoken for the first time. There must have been many a red face among the teachers—audience.

I question whether writing out those hundred lines really got any message through to the heads and hearts of the giggling culprits. And I think, like you, of the hard days that probably lay ahead for each one of those pre-war children.

As for the statement that "the elderly dwell in the past," it only hurts if it is wrong with that? They have a long period of the past to draw from their memory files; experience the young have yet to endure or to prize. When it comes to the sum total of personality, the past is just as important as the future.

Canadian resources exist to help with many of today's problems of daily living. Write to Doris for direction, in care of this newspaper.

Supplicants Forever Without Representation

VANCOUVER (CP) — "Four years ago, I started with the naive idea that we would simply persuade the government to implement the 167 recommendations of the royal commission report on the status of women in Canada) and then go back to our normal lives," says Joan Wallace, who served as president of the Vancouver Status of Women (VSW) for its first two years.

"It soon became clear that even if the government implemented every one of those we would still not have equal rights because we would still have no voice in writing the laws that govern our lives.

"Until we have equal representation at all levels of government we will remain supplicants, pleading for favors," she said.

"So we fight on."

The fight here began in January, 1971, when the Vancouver Status of Women was formed to combat discrimination against women. Its first goal was for government action on recommendations in the royal commission report.

When the federal government granted $1,900 to the group, telephone service received top priority. It was from NDP MLA for Vancouver-Burrard who worked from her home.

This service was the first direct assistance VSW offered to women.

Today VSW staff advise women on their legal rights and procedures in such matters as separation, divorce, child custody, property and legal change of name.

They listen to appeals from battered wives and, besides counselling in the VSW office, often accompany women to court.

The staff of six full-time and three part-time workers includes an ombudswoman and assistant; a membership co-ordinator who keeps in touch with 800 members and interest groups around the province; a member who keeps the public informed through talks to schools and women's groups; a newspaper editor in charge of producing the monthly publication, kinesis, and a book-keeper accountant.

The group exists on grants, "and we are, of course, experiencing that uneasiness familiar to all those who depend on grants," says Jo Lazenby, editor of Kinesis.

"Grants make us so dependent. We spend so much time scrambling for money and worrying about whether we'll get it."

One project planned is an audio-visual library that Jo Lazenby says would solve one of the communications problems among women in the province. United Community Services has set aside some funds for the project.

VSW receives requests for speakers and information from groups throughout British Columbia, but the staff is too small to fill all requests, she said.

The organization hopes to set up the audio-visual library of tapes, slides and films on women's needs and services to lend to schools and women's groups.

A series of workshops for high-schools covering women and the law, the treatment of women by the media and sexist stereotyping, are also in the planning stage, Miss Lazenby says.

Kinesis, VSW's newspaper, is published once a month to keep women in touch with the aims and achievements of the membership. It points out discriminatory areas and tells readers which government department or MLA to contact to press for remedial action.

In addition, there are meetings of a letter hobby group, communication workshops, consciousness-raising and orientation meetings for new or prospective members, open house and federal action committees.

What does it all mean for women who started VSW four years ago.

"My involvement with status of women has completely changed my life," said Joan Wallace.

"From a life that was centred on career, family and friends. I have not only become a crusader for women's rights, but a politician, albeit a defeated one."

VANCOUVER (CP) — All the items under the hammer were invisible at an auction held by the Women's Auxiliary to the Vancouver Public Aquarium. There were such experiences as a helicopter ride to Victoria with luncheon and a visit to the Provincial Museum.

Fewer Teenage Virgins

TORONTO (CP) — Almost two-thirds of the boys and more than a third of the girls in a survey of teen-age sex habits in Kingston, Ont., were not virgins, the Canadian Pediatric Society was told at its annual meeting Wednesday.

Queen's University research John Howard and Nicole Riche described to the meeting a survey they conducted among 466 Kingston youths with an average age of 15.3 years. This represented five per cent of Kingston adolescents.

They said they found that 63 per cent of the boys and 35 per cent of the girls claimed to have had sexual intercourse and three-quarters of those said they didn't always use contraception.

Yet, the researchers added, the majority of those interviewed said they had been given information about contraception in sex education classes.

Also dealing with children, British doctor James Tanner told the society that research shows growth in children is dependent in part on light.

Dr. Tanner said the extra light in the spring causes children to grow faster than they do in the fall. Light rays, he explained, tell the brain to arrange for production of certain hormones in the pituitary gland, the master gland of the body. Such hormones govern sexual development and growth.

A study of blind children found they were not susceptible to seasonal growth spurts, he

"Caring is Sharing"

NURSING HOME WEEK

JUNE 15th TO 22nd

People like Mrs. Ellen Murphy, 101 and Registered Nurse Mary Jane Fisher exemplify the theme of Ontario Nursing Home Week . . . "Caring is Sharing".

A little Scottish lady, who now makes her home in an Ottawa nursing home suggested this year's theme "Caring is Sharing" for Nursing Home Week in Ontario. Mrs. Robina Renshaw is one of some 24,000 Ontarians who live in nursing homes.

Each year, the nursing homes throughout Ontario that are members of the Ontario Nursing Home Association plan activities for nursing home residents, their families, friends and the community. The planning may have taken weeks of preparation — time often contributed after hours, for nursing home staff are usually busy during working hours caring for residents.

ONE OF THE QUINTE AREA'S FINE NURSING HOMES IS WESTGATE LODGE WHICH HAS JUST RECENTLY BEEN CONSTRUCTED. ALL HOMES IN THIS AREA PROVIDE EXCELLENT CARE AND PLEASANT SURROUNDINGS.

THIS PAGE IS PUBLISHED IN THE INTEREST OF THE COMMUNITY BY THESE PUBLIC-SPIRITED BUSINESSES AND NURSING HOMES.

Suspects Remanded

Two men charged with the armed robbery of the Bank of Montreal in Stirling in May were remanded Friday for one week for sentencing in provincial court in the same town.

Brian Sheldon Rodgers, 22, and Daniel Nelson Worth, 20, both of Ottawa, had pleaded guilty to the charges last week.

They were charged after two men were arrested near Kingston about four hours after the bank was robbed May 23 by two armed men who fled with about $18,000.

Charged with break enter and theft are Stephen McAdams, 18, of no fixed address, and Brian Machelle, 17, of 66 Front St.

Police laid charges after several weeks of investigation by Constables Harry Barry and Claire Dalnard. The investigation continues.

Town police said Friday about $500 in stolen property was recovered.

Nixon Charges Tories Ignoring Local Needs

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Decisions "vitally" affecting individuals and communities are being made by an impersonal, remote government under Davis leadership, Ontario Liberal leader Robert Nixon charged Friday night.

The Liberal leader, in speech to local party supporters during a supper-dance at the Four Seasons, directed his attacks more at the premier than the Ontario Conservative party generally.

"We're running against Bill Davis because he's the man whose policies over the last four years have brought us to a situation where we can say — and he believed — that it is in fact time for a change in government," he told members of the Quinte Liberal Association.

He said that during the last four years — the period in which Mr. Davis has led the government — there has been "some attitude, which is nobody's responsibility but the premier's, which has eroded the traditions of local control of the community".

The Liberal alternative: Not a return to the ways of forefathers, but a "move forward into an emphasis of democracy at the local level.

"Home rule, I suppose it could be called," said Mr. Nixon.

He said perhaps it is inevitable that after 32 uninterrupted years in power "a government loses touch with the people it's supposed to serve.

"But Bill Davis' Queen's Park doesn't listen. He and his ministers seem content up in a web of bureaucracy."

Under Bill Davis, Ontario's government is becoming even bigger, even more impersonal and remote."

Local involvement through service on municipal councils and boards has been an historic part of Ontario public service.

But now — "it doesn't matter what area of municipal responsibility I'm referring to — there is this feeling of frustration that under the Conservative government these powers have been centralized . . ."

Premier Davis has centralized many local governments.

Wheels Stolen

Roger Carleton had to walk home from the fair Friday night.

After spending the evening at the Quinte Exhibition the Octavia St. resident returned to his car to find both rear wheels and tires had been stolen. The car had been parked at the rear of Northern Electric Co. Ltd.

ments into larger regional units that "can't possibly respond to individual and community needs".

Mr. Nixon warned that regional government would be an issue in the next election.

"This is a diverse province, with diverse needs that cannot all be recognized or satisfied from the ivory towers at Queen's Park," he said. "But Bill Davis still believes that Ontario's problems can be solved with more centralization, more bureaucracy, more bigness, more spending."

Liberals reject such an approach to government, he said.

Mr. Nixon was formally welcomed to the city by Ald. Arthur Keegan, representing the mayor's office.

Immediately after his speech Mr. Nixon left for Madoc to attend a dance being held by Liberals in Hastings County, completing his two-day second visit to the constituency in two weeks.

Business Slow

Belleville isn't a big town for tattoos says Doug Brett a tattoo artist working at the Quinte Exhibition. Here, Chuck Crossen has a tattoo baby placed on his arm. The tattoo is meant as a reminder of his daughter Melanie.

Tatoos - 'They Either Love Them or Hate Them'

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Dating back centuries, tattooed designs continue to thrive as both a mark of masculinity and femininity — except in Belleville.

"Belleville just isn't much of a town for tattoo artists," says Doug Brett a tattoo artist travelling with Conklin Shows and currently plying his trade at the Quinte Exhibition. "Belleville is really quiet. I'm surprised."

The process of tattooing requires puncturing the first layer of skin and simultaneously injecting an indelible dye. "You just barely break the top layer of skin. It's not as painful as aggravating more than anything else," said Mr. Brett.

Most people aren't allergic to the dye but if they are it usually affects the red colors of the tattoo. "If they come back we just take the red out and replace it with orange," he said.

When he's not operating his Windsor tattoo shop he's travelling with carnivals working out of a panel van with his wife Judy.

"You get all kinds having tattoos put on their bodies," said Mr. Brett.

"I had a 76-year-old man come in for five hearts strung across his chest all linked together with ribbons representing each of his grandchildren. Then another time I had a mother and daughter come in for matching butterflies on their hips."

Mostly its men between 18 and 25 that come in, he said. "It's funny. People either love 'em or hate 'em."

During a slack period he worked at repairing his equipment commenting: "You've got to be a jack of all trades. With a hammer and vice grips you can do anything."

Belleville - 85 Per Cent Like Living in City

You may have liked living in Belleville in 1971 but a recent survey says you should like it here even more now.

Unofficial surveys taken by senior urban geography classes at Belleville Collegiate Institute this year and in 1971 showed a greater percentage of those interviewed in the latest survey think this city is a good place to live.

Sampling slightly more than 100 Belleville residents in various sections of the city the students found that in 1971, 80 percent thought Belleville was a good place to live. In a 1975 survey 85 per cent responded favorably to the same question.

Also in the survey, supervised by BCI geography teacher Chris Hart, it was revealed that a majority of residents are aware of the problems of growth although

County Council Meets June 24

Hastings County will go into its mid-year session June 24, Carl Bateman, county treasurer-administrator has announced. The assembly has been called for a one-day discussion of several committee reports and resolutions.

Socreds Meet Here

The Social Credit Party will hold both its federal and provincial annual convention in Belleville Sept. 13.

A site will be selected before mid-July.

The task of finding a location has been assigned Floyd Hawley, Shannonville-area farmer and first vice-president of the party's Ontario branch, and Nancy Arnold — the Wasaga Beach housewife and journalist who is candidate in Hastings-Peterborough riding for the next provincial election.

Choice of Belleville for the convention was announced by Sid Hamelin, Social Credit leader in Ontario.

Mr. Hamelin said the provincial party will hold its sessions in the morning, finishing in time to join the federal group's discussions.

BRIGHTON — A group calling itself Project Action and formed to raise funds for a possible new arena in the town area, the majority of the people were pleased with the involvement in the schools.

Leader in Town

Quinte district political organizer George Cunningham (left) chats with Ontario Liberal Robert Nixon and Lyn Harrington, Quinte Liberal Association president, before dinner meeting at Four Seasons Hotel Friday night. Mr. Nixon was key speaker at the event.

Liberal Head Predicts Deficit Will Increase

If Ontario's Conservative government is still in power later this year it will seek more funds from the legislature — thus boosting its $2-billion, Ontario Liberal leader Robert Nixon predicted Friday night.

The government's current budget shows a $1.6-billion deficit, Mr. Nixon said as he linked warnings of further government financial difficulties to the possibilities of an election.

"We don't know when Premier Bill Davis is going to have an election," Mr. Nixon admitted in a Quinte Liberal Association meeting at the Four Seasons Hotel.

But, if Premier Davis continues to "look bad" for the government, there may be an campaign until next spring — he believes, said the Liberal leader, whose party has been leading recent polls.

But "... I'm telling you if there isn't an election this fall and the legislature reconvenes they (the government) will bring forward supplementary estimates which will put Ontario's deficit this year over $3-billion."

Most Favor Extra-hour Use of Hastings County Schools

Should the schools be used after regular classes? According to David Smith, co-ordinator of community education for the Hastings Board of Education, there were 683 permits given to local groups last year which brought in approximately $18,500.000.

This money went back into the operation of the schools. In a survey done in the down-

Here are some of their responses:

OSCAR BERTRAND

Oscar Bertrand, 26, from Tweed, says he "agrees with them (the schools) being open as long as it doesn't interfere with classes".

Mr. Bertrand warns that the permits should be restricted to only responsible groups in the community.

"We have to be careful, today," Mr. Bertrand says.

Mr. Bertrand likes the idea of the fees charged to pay for the operational costs.

The fees charged to different groups "really helps everyone" Mr. Bertrand commented.

DUANE MacMILLAN

A professor of English at the University of Saskatchewan, and the former head of BCI, Duane MacMillan says the schools "should be used to the optimum opportunity".

The schools were "created for a specific purpose and should be advised by the board and the staff," Prof. MacMillan says.

The use of schools by political groups could lead to difficulties, Prof. MacMillan states. A solution he suggests could be "all" or none should have access".

JERRY EDWARDS

A recent arrival to the city, Jerry Edwards, 34, says the fee charged could be used to offset the expenditures".

Mr. Edwards says he sees nothing wrong if use of schools does not "interfere with the normal school regime".

If organized in the proper manner, Mr.—Edwards says, "no restrictions should be made between different groups" using the buildings.

VALERIE BATCHELOR

A college student, Valerie Batchelor says "it's good for the physical educational aspect".

"I'm all for it. It is good for the community to be involved," says Miss Batchelor.

The involvement of the community "brings in needed money," she adds. The 20-year-old college student is working for the summer in a downtown store.

JENNIFER SARGEANT

A 18-year-old student, Jennifer Sargeant says the schools "should be open".

"The schools are a service to the community and they shouldn't be built just for learning because with today's schools, the facilities are far superior to 20 years ago" Miss Sargeant replies.

Even though the schools are mainly for learning, they could be used during the summer "for the young", Miss Sargeant comments.

LORI PARKINSON

A bank employee, Lori Parkinson, 28, says she is "in favor of their use".

"We pay enough school tax to support them and it's good to have them in use," Mrs. Parkinson says.

Mrs. Parkinson states there should be no bias when a permit is given.

Knowles Gives Up TD Plus 1

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

When reliever Darold Knowles gets in hard, he can always pitch batting practice.

He got some good practice Friday.

Knowles, the last of the Chicago pitchers and Cincinnati Reds made him pay for it with a seven-run frame. That was only part of the incredible assault on Pittsburgh Pirates Reds' reliever 23 hits over-all and buried the Cubs 19-11 in the without hitting game of the season.

The Cubs themselves collected 18 hits and drove some of Knowles' teammates out of the game.

Knowles gave up two a touchdown and an extra point.

The National League games: Pittsburgh Pirates whipped Atlanta Braves 8-3, Louis Cardinals beat Houston Astros 5; New York Mets trimmed San Diego Padres 7-2; Philadelphia Phillies whipped Los Angeles Dodgers 5-1, and Montreal Expos turned San Francisco Giants 4-2.

Gregory Foster and Pete Rose hit home runs in a five-run eighth inning where Cincinnati added seven more in the ninth to put the game away.

The 11 runs in the last two innings gave the Reds an 18-8 lead and helped them withstand a three-run ninth for the Cubs. Cincinnati's Cesar Geronimo led all hitters with five hits in six appearances.

Al Oliver drove in five runs with a grand slam homer and a sacrifice fly, sparking Pittsburgh over Atlanta.

Ron Reed scattered 10 hits and helped himself with a two-run double, leading St. Louis over slumping Houston. The Astros lost their 11th game in the last 13.

George Stone, pitching for the first time in the majors for almost a month, stopped New York Mets on a four-hitter to lead New York to a 7-2 victory.

Rookie Jerry Martin crashed a grand slam homer and the Philadelphia broke up Andy Messersmith's no-hitter in the seventh inning when Lee Lonborg buried a two-bagger as the Phillies beat Los Angeles.

Pete MacKanin and Bob Bailey slugged home runs and Montreal scored two unearned runs in the fifth inning to beat San Francisco.

Brewers walloped California angels 10-5 and Texas Rangers edged Cleveland Indians 5-1.

George Brett and Amos Otis each one-out homer in the eighth inning of the nightcap, preventing the Red Sox from completing the twin bill and chopping their AL East lead to two percentage points over the Yankees.

Pat Dobson pitched a five-hitter and Craig Nettles drove in both New York runs with a home run and single. It was the third consecutive triumph and 9th in 10 games for the Yankees and the fifth victory in succession for Dobson.

Joe Rudi and Reggie Jackson each drove in a run with eighth inning doubles, breaking a 5-5 tie to give Oakland its win over the Tigers. Claudell Washington singled and scored the game-breaking run on Rudi's double. Jackson, who hit a two-run homer in the first inning, drove in loser Joe Coleman, doubled to score Rudi.

Hank Aaron's three-run double and a two-run homer by George Scott sparked a pair of four-run innings for Milwaukee. Scott hit his 10th home run off Dave Sells in the fourth following an RBI single by shortstop Robin Yount.

Texas, which acquired Gaylord Perry from Cleveland earlier in the day, may have found another pitcher when rookie Jim Umbarger hurled eight shutout innings in his first major league start. Omar Torrez and Toby Harrah drove in the Texas runs with successive eighth-inning doubles.

Clarence Does Have His Troubles

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Hockey League, faced by what has been described as "a bushel basket of litigation," opens its annual four-day meeting Monday.

It is expected Clarence Campbell said Friday the league faced several major problems that have nothing to do with playing the game of hockey.

CLARENCE CAMPBELL

"There's the continued uncertainty about California Seals and the problem of Philadelphia Penguins," he said.

Earlier Friday, the Pittsburgh club filed for bankruptcy after the team was slapped with a $523,000 tax lien by the United States Internal Revenue Service Thursday. General manager Jack Riley was named receiver and required to post a $50,000 bond.

The Penguins had failed to make a profit since it joined the NHL as part of the league's initial expansion in 1967.

Campbell said it was optimistic about the California problem, saying he expected a deal that would see San Francisco businessman Bel Kelly purchase the team completed here.

"If it is, it will be a transfer of control only. I expect that management would remain the same and they (the Seals) would be on their way for this year."

On the subject of conditional franchises granted Seattle and Denver for the 1976-77 season, Campbell said both were dead.

"In both cases the parties were not able to fulfill their obligations and the conditional franchises were terminated."

Ivan Mullinex of Denver Spurs, granted a conditional franchise there, decided to join the World Hockey Association and filed an anti-trust suit seeking nearly $1.3 million from the NHL.

As well, the NHL faces the possibility of a legal action from an entirely different source.

Peter Gesell, a defenseman who lost his left eye in 1973 playing for Toronto Maple Leafs with Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A Series, has threatened to sue the league if he is cut because NHL rules do not allow players with only one eye to be rostered by any club.

Gesell, who played last season with Calgary Cowboys of the Western Canada Hockey League and was the only one-eyed player in the league, will appear with his lawyer before the NHL rules committee. Gesell was drafted by Buffalo Sabres last year.

Also Friday, following a meeting in Hamilton, Bermuda, the NHL Players' Association voted to waive the league to shorten the season and offered to take a proportionate salary reduction if the schedule is cut to 70 games from the current 80.

Lakehead Faces Possible Probation

VICTORIA (CP) — Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union officials refused comment Friday on whether Lakehead University or Thompson Rivers University may be placed on probation for a year for allegedly violating CIAU recruiting guidelines.

The University of Western Ontario Friday had confirmed that Lakehead tried to persuade a Western student from Western to transfer to the Thunder Bay school.

The matter was dealt with in a closed session at the annual meeting of the CIAU which ended Friday.

Outgoing president Keith Harris of Carleton University, Ottawa, said some actions had been taken "but at the moment we're not at liberty to divulge it."

He said that to do so would violate a trust that was given to delegates and Lakehead officials.

It was revealed Thursday that Bob Pugh of Ottawa, CIAU executive director, recommended censuring Lakehead wrestling coach Gordon Gerbe for approaching the parents of Western Bay wrestler Brian Renken.

Pugh also said that Gerbe and allegedly had advised Renken's parents that their son could not attend Lakehead unless-free if he transferred from Western.

Lakehead officials said Gerbe only told Renken's parents that their son was eligible for a scholarship but offered no guarantee he would receive an award.

Renken remained at Western last year.

Vance Tomer of the University of Moncton, newly-elected CIAU president, said the CIAU and Lakehead may soon make a joint statement on the matter.

In other business, delegates voted to adopt the 30-second rule in basketball which forces a team to shoot within 30 seconds or lose possession of the ball.

Delegates rejected a proposal that would have forced athletes to play their fourth and fifth years of eligibility at the same school. Athletes are eligible to play college sport in Canada for five years.

Hockey playoffs begin next Feb. 27, 28, and 29 with the CIAU West conference winner playing at the home of the Great Plains conference champion. Winner of that series will play at the home of the Quebec conference champion March 5, 6 and 7.

The Atlantic conference champ plays at the home of the Ontario winner March 5, 6 and 7 with the national final scheduled March 12 and 13, at the home of the most easterly surviving.

In football, the Atlantic Bowl in Halifax is the annual tie-breaker between the Western conference and champion of the Atlantic winner. The Yates' Cup game also takes place Nov. 15 between the champion Quebec football conference western and Ontario conference.

Winners meet in the Canadian College Bowl in Toronto on Friday, Nov. 21.

Other national championship dates and sites:

Basketball—March 4 and 6, St. Mary's University, Halifax.

Cross-country—Nov. 8, University of Victoria.

Gymnastics—Feb. 27, 28, Concordia University, Quebec City.

Soccer—Nov. 7 and 9, University of Victoria.

Swimming and diving—March 4 and 6, Toronto area.

Tennis—Nov. 26 and 27, Moncton University.

Wrestling—Feb. 27 and 28, Atlantic University Athletic Association, Acadia University, Thunder Bay, Ont.

Other officers elected were Ed Zemrau, University of Alberta, vice-president, and Ray Johnson, McMaster University, Hamilton, treasurer.

Eric Soderholm—No Doubt Takes Lead in Ontario Open

Boyer Celebrates Birthday with 69

BARRIE, Ont. (CP) — Michel Boyer of Montreal celebrates his 20th birthday Sunday by taking the lead into the second round of the Ontario open golf championship.

And Boyer, in only his second year on the Canadian pro tour, says he has the confidence to play near the top in the race for a $3,000 first prize in this kick-off event on the seven-stop provincial tour.

"I have the confidence that I didn't have last year," said Boyer after shooting a 69 over the windsoaked Silvapark Barrie Country Club course Friday.

Boyer, who says he learned much of his golf from older brother Jean-Louis, added to his playing survey by spending last winter in Florida studying under a Montreal pro.

"He taught me how to use my irons instead of the driver on some holes. I learned how to play the game much better."

Boyer's best showing on his rookie tour last year was an eleventh-place finish at Alberta Open.

Besides the Florida schooling during the winter, Boyer also has the benefit of sponsorship this year and says it has put his mind free to concentrate on golf.

He said he isn't sure, but he thinks he will go on the tour who is sponsored by a bank. Boyer says he has Montreal and District savings bank pays his way and expenses, including a clothing allowance, and he gets to keep the prize money.

"I'm working very hard to improve my game and I'm hoping that is required in this arrangement. They (the bank) wanted sponsorship on the American tour, if and when they feel I'm ready, I'm ready."

Boyer's 69 gave him a two-stroke lead over veterans Frank Whibley of Toronto and newcomer David Wren, of South Africa. Two rounds of 70 were enough to break par-72 out of a starting field of 140 amateurs and pros.

At even-par 72 were rookie Mike McHardy of Port Colborne, Bay, Ont.; Pat O'Donnell of Windsor, Ont.; Bob Fowler, Calgary; defending champ Jim McHardy of Port Colborne, Ont.; Bob Rose of Hamilton, Ont., and Dave Barr, Kelowna, B.C., and Tom McGinnis of the United States.

Another big group at 73 included Moe Norman of Gilford, Ont., a two-time former champion, Phil Giroux of Montreal and Gary Pitchford of Toronto.

The cool winds under cloudy skies helped send a number of other tour veterans into the high scores. Among them are Dan Haldorson of Brandon, Man., and Will Homenuk of Winnipeg, both regulars on the U.S. tour. Haldorson shot a 75 and Homenuk a 76.

Panasiuk of Windsor, Ont., voted Canada's top pro last year, shot a 78 as did veteran amateur Nick Weslo of Mississauga, Ont., a former Ontario Open champ.

Call Me Bill at the Wire In Carling O'Keefe Feature

Feature races at the Quinte Exhibition Raceway seem to bring out the best in some horses and their drivers.

Friday evening the Carling-O'Keefe Invitational was no exception, as Belleville's Art McDonald drove Call Me Bill to the wire in a photo finish in 2:08.4.

For the horse it was its fifth victory of the season as it took home the $800 purse and a cooler (blanket).

Throughout the night, the track was labelled as fast and things got moving in the first race when Gary LaBrash drove Ocean Doo to victory, the horse's third consecutive win, in a time of 2:12.2.

Race two saw Jaco Chief lead the way with 19-year-old Gord Robbins the driver. Gord started driving only this summer.

Gord Whyte drove Badger to his first win of the year in 2:12.2, as did Brian Belleville with Just George in the tenth winning in 2:11. It was the first Brian win for Just George.

Henry's Model T, driven by Larry Zebedee, and Richards Dream with Gary Rideout both gained their second victory of the early harness racing season. For Model T it was the first win in a driver.

Ed Burleigh's owned Bermac Grey of Belleville was the third race of the season with Wilson Inwood at the reins.

Ocean Doo driven by Doug Stacey of Gananoque and owned by Ray Stacey won its second in a row, and third of the season.

The feature ninth race won by Call Me Bill, in a photo was a classic race as four horses jammed the wire.

McDonald, the winner, was previously challenged by Vern Moulton's Scotty's Bay horse John's Duke, and Bejeau, Bugsy's Western's D, Wenz.

With the fair on, attendance could not be taken, but the enthusiastic crowd never dwindled below 1,500. The control reached a season high of 945,285.

Calling the Shots His Way of Helping Sport

"They're off and pacing." A familiar saying at the Quinte Exhibition Raceway. But who is the man who, without fail, calls the races every Friday evening? It's Gary Stewart, the voice of QER.

Gary, now in his fourth year calling the horse races at the track, takes an avid interest in the sport.

His father, Alex, used to race horses and that's where it all began.

Gary, a car salesman in his hometown of Campbellford, not only calls the Belleville track once a week, but also is the voice of Kawartha Downs in Peterborough every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

"When I first started, I was really hoarse but my vocal cords became much stronger and it doesn't bother me as much.

"I used to call at Morrow Park in Peterborough, and I've called a few fairs, and that's how I got into the horse calling business," Gary explained.

"The thing about calling," says Gary, "is that when you make a mistake everybody hears you."

"Harness Racing is a vital sport," he said. "It means so much to so many people that it would be a shame if we were to lose it."

"Everyone does their part to keep it going, and mine is in the race calling," he added.

So, the next time you attend the QER, and hear the races calling with the familiar "and here they are" you'll know that it's Gary Stewart at the mike.

Mead Johnson Surprises CNRA with 10-5 Upset

In Belleville Industrial League Softball action Friday night at Alemite Park Mead Johnson upset CNR by a score of 10-5.

Harold Wilkinson and Fred Davis started the pitching duties for Meads, allowing nine hits between them. Wilkinson struck out three batters. The loser for CNR was Junior Day, who allowed eight runs on six hits and five walks. He struck out two. Perry Soule came in for an inning of relief.

The offensive story for Meads was Charlie Rowbotham with a couple of doubles, Jim Sofka with two singles and Reg Bennett singled and doubled for the winners. CNR got three singles from Jerry Lucas and a triple from Barry Tomlin.

The win was only Mead's second of the year, but it was good enough to put them only a point behind third place Intelligencer. The loss to CNR stopped their bid to move into second place in the East Division standings ahead of the Independents.

In the other contest at Alemite, Black Diamond set down the Post Office 4-1, on the pitching of Jack Francis, for five and a third innings. He allowed just one run, off three hits, a walk and two strikeouts. He was relieved by Ron Bateman who stymied any attempts by the Post Office to come back, giving up just one hit in the two and two-thirds innings he pitched. He walked two and left three Post Office batters standing at the plate.

The loser for the Post Office was Norm Lockhart, who allowed four Black Diamond runs in his six innings pitched, he gave up five hits, two walks and sent five batters back to the bench on third strikes.

Francis helped his own cause with two doubles in the game, while Terry Hiddleston helped him along by cranking three triples. For the Posties Ron Marriot also had three triples, while George Johnson hit a couple of doubles.

The Black Diamond victory helped them maintain their second place standing in the Eastern Division, while the Post Office lost a chance to fallen their lead in the West over UIC.

In other junior games, Karen Allan slammed three home runs to lead Daisy Queen over Reid's Dairy 38-10; Jennifer Skinner outlasted Lisa Muir in the pitching department as BYBF topped Branch 99 20-24 aided by Barrie Jackson's grand slam home run; Little Misses beat Dixie Lee 25-17 as Lisa Vesser belted three homers and Diane Wilkinson, two, and Dixie Lee took the measure of Reid's Dairy 34-4.

Get Ready to Meet a Whole New Generation of CFL Stars

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

As in previous years, it may take a while to get used to some Canadian football League teams early this season. New faces and trembling rookies give even the most dedicated fan a cold case of nerves.

But it's a little different this year. Some veteran leaders and the lure of money from the rival leagues have taken away a number of veterans.

Among the players who will be missing at the opening of training camps this week are: Larry Robinson and Gerry Shaw, both Montreal with Calgary Stampeders; quarterback Don Jonas of Hamilton Tiger-Cats; quarterback Rick Cassata, running back Jim Evenson and Moe Racine of Ottawa Rough Riders; Bobby Thompson and Pete Wysocki of Saskatchewan Roughriders; and Ed George and Mary Luster of Montreal Alouettes.

Cassata has signed with the Hawaii of the World Football League. Thompson, a speed running back has joined Detroit Lions of the National Football League and Wysocki, an outside linebacker, is with the Philadelphia Eagles of the NFL. George has signed with Baltimore Colts of the NFL and Evenson has gone to Portland of the WFL. The others have retired.

However some highly-touted rookies and players previously overshadowed by their ongoing team-mates may make the fans forget the absentees.

NHLPA Makes Demands

Players Want Shorter Season

TORONTO (CP) — The National Hockey League Players' Association (NHLA) wants the NHL season shortened and by reducing the number of games, by condensing the time required to play them, says Alan Eagleson, NHLPA executive director.

Eagleson said in an interview from Hamilton, Bermuda, that the shortened season was the main recommendation emerging from the NHLPA annual meeting held this week on a cruise ship from New York to Bermuda.

"The main concern of the players is the length of the season," he said. "The players would take a proportionate salary reduction if the schedule were cut to 70 games. But the owners say they need the revenue from the 80 games to offset their increased costs."

The NHL owners has refused to reduce the 80-game schedule. The 1974-75 season stretched from Oct. 9 to the last game of the Stanley Cup series on May 27.

Eagleson said the players' proposal is to delay training camp until Sept. 15, open the regular schedule Oct. 2, end it March 31 and finish the playoffs by May 15. Some NHL camps open as early as Sept. 5, followed by 10 pre-season games.

"The players feel that extending the playoffs beyond mid-May is a bit absurd, especially when they run into bad weather as they did this season," said Eagleson. "Often during the

Tourney Should Start Today

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — If the crowds weren't free and the rain clouds stay away, they'll play the first round of the Eastern Philadelphia golf tournament today.

The event, now Friday so the golfers didn't. The first round now has been wiped out twice and the tournament schedule set back to a Monday finish.

The much-delayed tournament now calls for single rounds of 18 holes today and Sunday with a double round of 36 holes Monday.

Then again, maybe not.

"We've got a good forecast for today," said John Montgomery, an independent tournament director whose organization is in charge of this event. "But the forecast for Sunday isn't good."

Thursday's scheduled first round was washed out by continuing rain. Rain Friday morning dumped another 2½ inches on the already soaked Whitemarsh Valley Country Club course.

Dibbs Hangs In

PARIS (AP) — Eddie Dibbs, the United States' last male hope in the French open tennis championships, was fighting against bloated feet today and hoping to reach his first major European final.

And Chris Evert, undefeated in Europe for two years, was heavily favored to win the women's crown for the second consecutive year.

Dibbs, 20, from Miami Beach, Fla., faced Guillermo Vilas of Argentina.

The little American has been taking things easy since overcoming Raul Ramirez of Mexico two days ago. He finished that match with bleeding feet.

The all-American seeded to the defending champion, Bjorn Borg of Sweden, against Adriano Panatta of Italy.

Only a miracle seemed likely to stop Miss Evert from taking the women's title again.

Evert will play Martina Navratilova, the fast improving 19-year-old left-hander from Czechoslovakia.

They last played each other in the final of the Italian Open in Rome two weeks ago. Chris walked in and dropped only one game.

One final was decided Friday. Brian Gottfried of Fort Lauderdale and Ramirez, the world's top doubles pair of the moment, defeated John Alexander and Phil Dent of Australia 6-4, 2-6, 6-3, 6-4 and shared prize money of $7,500.

JIM EVENSON

The nine CFL coaches get their first chance to test newcomers in exhibition games starting July 1—the earliest date in history for the start of the pre-season schedule.

Two games will be played Dominion Day—Ottawa at Edmonton, Winnipeg at Saskatchewan at Winnipeg Blue Bombers. The following day, July 2, Montreal plays in Calgary and Toronto Argonauts visit the Tiger-Cats.

British Columbia Lions open their exhibition season July 3, playing host to Ottawa.

Hamilton has had trouble with a number of its players because, said general manager Ralph Sazio, the Ticats were not prepared to pay the kind of money demanded by tight end Tony Gabriel, the No. 1 Canadian in the league in 1974.

So, Gabriel was traded to Ottawa and Ticats received Gary Kozyk for offensive tackle Doug Rick, defensive tackle John Krupp and flanker-halfback Terry Wright. Krupp was an all-Canadian swap. Offensive tackle Bob Bickerdike went west to Saskatchewan for tight end Jim Reilly.

The Alouettes, who won the 1974 Grey Cup with a 20-7 win over the Edmonton Eskimos, will have 37 players at their training camp opening today.

Montreal coach Marv Levy said he expect to repeat as champions is not to "greatly change the personnel." With that in mind, the Alouettes will start the camp with 26 of last season's starters.

Dave Lewis, who played in Montreal in 1967 and 1968, has returned and Levy expects he should add "considerable punch to our offence and kicking game." Lewis, formerly with Cincinnati Bengals of the NFL, is listed as a quarterback but he also can be used as a runner, punt back, defensive halfback or a punter.

Veteran Jerry Keeling is expected to have a tough time holding onto his quarterback position with the Rough Riders. Ottawa has four younger players seeking a job at quarterback—Gerry Dulaney of Tennessee, Tom Clements of Notre Dame, Ben Kimrd of Maryland and Canadian Bill Robinson.

In Toronto, Russ Jackson, former outstanding quarterback with Ottawa, will be coaching the eight teams, but the Argonauts received bad news Friday when they learned their all-Canadian defensive tackle Pete Wysocki, who last season was traded from Montreal to Ottawa, will be retired because of a back injury.

BOBBY THOMPSON

PETE WYSOCKI

Jim Stuhlmaker, will be lost to the team for from two to seven weeks.

Officials say Stuhlmaker may have tore the outside cartilage in his right knee during a blocking drill, and if so, will undergo surgery for the second time in a year and a half. He will be lost to the Argonauts for six or seven weeks.

In the Western Conference, the Roughriders will take 46 players to camp, about half of them newcomers. Coach Ted Hilsey says: "We feel we have two or three excellent young running backs in Steve Beland from Bayler, George Palmer from Oklahoma and Richard Crump from Miami."

Hilsey said the quarterbacking spot is the best it has been in quite a while with Chuck Ealey and Ralph Brock back.

The Stampeders went to improve their season for obvious reasons, of course, is that the 1975 Grey Cup game will be played in Calgary.

The No. 1 quarterback now is Joe Fisarcik, who took over from Peter Liske when the Stampeders traded him to B.C. Fisarcik was the hero in last victory in three of its last four games. After his job are Karl Douglas, involved in the Liske trade, and rookie Rick Fleuelle.

Twenty-five rookies and veterans will book into the Edmonton training camp Sunday. The veterans include Larry Moat, Bubba Bridges, John Konikowski, Joe Moore, Al Phillips and Craig Ramsay.

Head coach Ray Jauch says Wayne Matheson, Tom Lapaska and Sam Britts form the keys to improvement in the team this season.

At quarterback, there will be the familiar Tom Wilkinson vs. Bruce Lemmerman battle and a challenge from two-year NFL veteran Dennis Morrison from San Francisco 49ers.

Will Alouettes Repeat Performance?

MONTREAL (CP) — Marv Levy says the mark of a championship team is one that repeats as champions for a series of years and he hopes that Montreal Alouettes will qualify.

The Alouettes, who won the 1974 Grey Cup 20-7 over Edmonton Eskimos, begin preparing for the 1975 Canadian Football League season today at St. Johns, Que.

Levy said one way to repeat as champions is not to "greatly change the personnel." He added that 21 of last season's 24 starters are back with the club.

"We feel in order to repeat we must improve our kick coverage on both punts and kickoffs. We have to be a good team to take advantage of the new punt return rule—and I think we will be.

"Our defence has to cause more turnovers and we have to get better pass coverage from our linebackers. Offensively we need better downfield blocking so we can spring those long plays. We have to pick up the pass rush and the blitz a bit better."

One hole Levy will have to fill in the defensive secondary is Marv Luster's old spot. Luster retired after the Grey Cup win.

"And with the departure of Ed George to Baltimore Colts we have to do something in the offence line," he said. He said Wayne Wargin, Gary Chown and Doug Smith could compete for the spot.

"The running back situation is wide open as we enter training camp as a result of Larry Sherrer's injury during the win-ter." Sherrer, who scored Montreal's only touchdown in the Grey Cup game, was hurt in a hang-gliding accident in California.

Dave Lewis, who played in Montreal in 1967 and 1968, has returned to the club. Lewis, listed as a quarterback, will battle veterans Sonny Wade and Jimmy Jones for the job.

Some players have not yet signed for 1975, including defensive halfbacks Phil Price and Ward Smith and flanker Rody Florio. Ah Yon and Price are Canadian-Americans.

Among top Canadian newcomers are John Archbold of Toronto, Rene Brooks of Alouettes' top choice in the Canadian college draft, and Gerry D'Aiello.

Archbold was in Montreal's training camp last season and kicked three field goals and two converts in the first pre-season game. Brooks was most valuable player for McGill Redmen of Montreal in 1973 and 1974.

Porter Back With Ti-Cats

HAMILTON (CP) —Lewis Porter, who had played out his option with Hamilton Tiger-Cats, has signed a player contract Friday with the Canadian Football League club.

Porter contacted by several National Football League clubs, including Cleveland Browns, Green Bay Packers and Miami Dolphins, before he signed with the Ticats.

Details of the contract were not disclosed but Gerry Sterling, Porter's agent, said it was substantially more than Hamilton's first offer.

Clyde Gray–Angel Espada Fight Plans Hit Snag

TORONTO (CP) — The Clyde Gray-Angel Espada fight June 28 for the World Boxing Association version of the world welterweight title may be in trouble, says Irving Ungerman, Gray's manager.

Ungerman said Friday a $45,000 guarantee which was to have been placed in escrow with Top Rank, promotor of the fight, has not been received.

Ungerman said he will accompany the Toronto boxer to San Juan, Puerto Rico—site of the fight—on Monday and make a much-needed five-day stay.

If the Espada people have not come up with the money by then, Ungerman says he will "track down" Bill Brown to declare the title vacant and suspend Espada.

Ungerman said he would not request Gray to be named as champion if Espada is suspended.

"We don't want it handed to us. Clyde has worked hard enough that he should win it by ring."

A week ago, the Columbia Broadcasting System, which planned to televise the fight live, revised it to be postponed to July 12. Ungerman and Espada's spokesman both agreed that was impossible and agreed to forgo the deal. Each person was to have made 20 per cent of the $120,000 television revenues.

Shaw Advances

ST. Andrews, Scotland (CP) — Dale Shaw of Sidney, B.C., won two matches Friday to move in the semi-finals in the British women's golf championship against competitors from Britain, Australia and the United States.

The Canadian advanced to quarter-final play when she eliminated Angela Souallach of Britain 2 and 1 in a morning match, then beat Alison Sheard of South Africa 3 and 2.

Andretti Leads Qualifying Times

MOSPORT, Ont. (CP) — Mario Andretti led official qualifying trials Friday at Mosport Park in preparation for the sixday Formula 5000 race.

Before rain soaked the pavement and reduced racing speeds, Andretti's Vicerey Lola took in nine minutes, 13.307 seconds, establishing a new Canadian 5000 qualifying record of 120.771 kilometres an hour.

The time not only beat the previous mark set by Andretti at last year's Mosport 5000 but came close to matching the Formula One qualifying record of one minute, 13.1 seconds set by world champion Emerson Fittipaldi's McLaren last September in the Grand Prix of Canada.

Andretti's closest competition came from Canadian Jacques Lacoste in a Vicerey Lola, had the third best time with 1:14.561.

Unser was one of those who crashed, totally writing off his Lola Mark 8 car. He had to count on his backup car, a Lola T-400, the new 1975 model.

Unser was the third man in a three-car pileup at corner nine involving Jacques Lacoste and Brian Hayes' Lola.

Woodner, of Berkeley, Calif., said his car lost brake fluid and collided into the guard rail. Hayes and Unser subsequently hit Woodner's car. The crash was Woodner's third of the week at Mosport.

Brian Redman of England, whose Lola T-333 was fifth-fastest qualifier, with a lap of 1:15.488, was also involved in an accident with another car. Redman says he expects to have his car repaired in time for Sunday's race.

Fourth fastest in time trials was Tasman champion Warwick Brown of Sydney, Australia. Sixth fastest went to David Hobbs of England in a Lola T-332.

Fastest Canadian in Friday's trials was Eppie Weltens of Toronto with a lap of 1:16.607.

Meanwhile, Camel GT champion Peter Gregg of Jacksonville, Fla., was fastest qualifier in the Trans Am Series Camel GT championship race at Mosport.

Nunn Breaks Deadlock With 19 Seconds Left

BOSTON (CP) — Bill Nunn's goal with 19 seconds left in play gave Montreal Quebecois a 5-4 win over Boston after the Bolts tied the score seven seconds earlier in a National Lacrosse League game Friday.

Ross Jones fired six goals for the Quebecois, who moved into a tie for first place in the West Division with Long Island Tomahawks visiting Philadelphia Wings.

Transport For Christ — Eastern Ontario, is endeavouring to educate the motorist concerning methods, the correct methods, to manoeuvre around these large trucks. Many times thoughtlessness or lack of instruction creates tense situations or accidents, involving the motorist and trucker.

THIS IS A BEGINNING SERIES

Mr. Motorist leaves work Friday evening. He is somewhat unnerved by the hectic week. Eager to get to the weekend cottage retreat he speeds down the 401. A short distance ahead a semi is traveling at moderate speed. The weekend driver overtakes the truck and swerves directly in front, only a few feet. "Passed, now I can ease him!" If he, the motorist, blows a tire now, the transport has no room to stop! To swerve would mean loss of control. T.F.C. urges all motorists to leave enough room between you and that eighteen wheeler before coming back into the right lane. Put Yourself In The Trucker's Place!

McCAFFREY, William (Bill) — In loving memory of our father who departed June 13, 1973.
In here we see you sinking,

You fought so hard to stay.
Dad fought his battle bravely,
So peacefully free from pain,
We could not wish you back,
To suffer that again.
—Sadly missed by daughter Willma and husband Ken, Ann and husband Jack, grandchildren John, son-in-law Clare and family.

SMITH — In loving memory of Ray, who died June 13, 1973.
Time takes away the edge of grief,
But memory turns back every leaf.
—Always remembered by his wife Helen, daughter Carol Lorraine.

FISHER — In loving memory of a dear son, Terry-Lynn Fisher who passed away June 14, 1972.
Time heals not one heart-pain,
They are there never parted,
By death one,
But wonderful memories of you.
Keep us always together.
—Sadly missed and ever remembered by mommy and Daddy and little sister Bobby.

WALLBRIDGE — In loving memory of a dear mother and father Frances Wallbridge, who passed away September 25, 1973.
Years in the time we loved so dear,
Silent is the voice we loved to hear.
Too far over for sight or sound,
Sweet are her feet for thought to reach,
Sweet are memories him who sees here,
And who, though absent, is just as dear.
—Also being memory of our dearly beloved Grandmother Wallbridge, daughter Martha, daughter-in-law, son-in-law and grandchildren.

Gone from us but leaving memories,
Death can never take away,
Memories we hold in our heart,
While upon them we shall dwell.
—Always remembered by son Jim.

Sadly missed by wife Marguerite and family.

SPONSOR, Ernest — In loving memory of our dear brother-in-law and uncle.
Two years ago today, oh, how we miss you Ernie,
Your smiling face and your jacky
And we sit in gloom were thrust,
Your place is empty, death claimed us all.
To the pride of manhood days,
What we would give if we could say,
"Hi Ralph" in the same old way.
Ernie was a man, and he was smile,
To all with you and chat awhile,
Ernie was a man, and he was kind,

Ernie is not dead but gone before.

Opening lead — 9 ♥

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

Eighteen high-card points opposite 17 will usually produce an easy small slam. In fact it may be enough to bring in all 13 tricks with a little luck.

This time the author distribution left South with a rather poor play for 1. Specifically, he needed two spade tricks. The book play in this situation is to lead to the nine. If that finesse loses to the 10 you concede defeat. If it forces the king or queen you lead toward the jack. finesse and romp home if West holds the remaining high honor.

This represents about a 37½ per cent chance play, but it would have come off here, if West had not been ready with a fine deceptive play.

When South led the first spade, West hopped up with his king. South looked hard at West. He looked hopefully at the ceiling and the floor. He looked some more and finally let the queen hold. Later on he led to the jack and finessed on the theory that West had played the queen from king-queen.

Should South have fallen for that fine play? Not in really top circles against top defenders, but all in all we sympathize with South and feel that anyone of us might have fallen as South did.

Curly Hair Limp After Pregnancy

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a question that may seem trivial but is serious to me.

I had naturally curly hair all my life. Several months after my first child was born, my hair became limp and straight. As the years went by, some of the curl came back, but then I had my second child. A few weeks after she was born my hair went limp and straight again. The same thing happened after my third child was born.

Now, all of a sudden my hair is just as curly as it was for the first 23 years of my life. I have asked doctors and hairdressers, but no one seems to know the reason for this. Does pregnancy make curly hair go straight? Why the delayed reaction?

Do you have answers to this many variants at first. As it grows older and the breast fills out, they should correct themselves. However, in adults, any dramatic change in breasts (as in nipples) should be investigated.

Sterilization is important for the first four to six months. If you have an automatic dishwasher, be sure to use a different bottle sterilizer. Don't neglect the nipples.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: You mentioned that a lady who was bothered with a rash. You reported that she became aware of an allergy to sheets made from synthetic fibers, and that her problem disappeared as soon as she changed to cotton.

Well, I had a similar problem with my breasts. I took the cue. It worked. It is certainly worth a try.—T. G.

I am pleased.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have taking iron and vitamin B tablets (one each day). My stool has been black. Can this be the reason?—Mrs. D. C. H.

The iron content of the tablets can cause dark stool, yes. But it can also be a symptom of internal bleeding. It would be worth your while to find out for sure.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have what are called "pulp stones" in my teeth. I cannot find anything about these. What are they?—Mrs. D. S.

They are also called "dentinal" (little teeth) and they can be caused, I am told, by a buildup of calcium in the pulp portion of the tooth.

The outer portions are made of the familiar hard enamel, and under this lies a softer, bone-like substance called dentin. This surrounds the pulp chamber, which consists of connective tissue—blood vessels and nerve fibers that nourish rest of the tooth.

The calcium buildup is thought to be a reaction to the decay process, and it can be the cause of certain kinds of tooth aches and sometimes eventual loss of nourishment for the tooth.

THE UNEXPLAINED

Fiction That Became Fact

By ALLEN SPRAGGETT
Copyright 1975,
Toronto Sun Syndicate

Fiction based on fact we all know about (as in Arthur Hailey's or Harold Robbins' bestselling novels where the two blend) but what about the reverse?

That is, what about fact based on fiction?

Lost you? Well, let me explain.

Many people have heard the story that they read (fiction) turning into fact — actually happened in the case of the sinking of the Titanic in 1912. Long before that tragedy, it's said, a novel was written describing it in minute detail. Even the fictional ship's name was alike — the Titan.

However, some titled checking of the dates turned up some flaws that, threatened — threatened, I say, though they didn't — to discredit it. Yes, a spinner of sea yarns named Morgan Robertson had written a novel about "the largest craft afloat" that "rammed an iceberg and sank. But the novel, called "The Wreck of the Titan," was published not before the Titanic's sinking but in the same year — 1912.

So, another mystery shot down in flames? A psychic wonder exploded? Not so.

No, not in the least. In fact, the real story turns out to be even more of a mystery than it was before.

Jack W. Hannah, an inventor and producer of teaching machines in Mansfield, Ohio, made a probing study of the Titanic story and came up with some astounding facts.

First, he found the reason for much of the confusion is that, after the sinking of the Titanic, Morgan Robertson did indeed publish a novel called "The Wreck of the Titan". But this Hannah discovered, was merely a new version of a short novel Robertson had written years before.

It was this early novel, titled "Futility," which foretold, in eerie detail, the destruction of the Titanic more than a decade later.

Hannah recently has reissued "Futility" in its original form, copyrighted in 1898 by M. F. Mansfield Publishers, 21 East 16th ST., New York.

Jack Hannah's research not only has proven that Robertson's novel was in print long before the ill-fated voyage of the Titanic but he has deepened the mystery by showing that the "coincidences" in the novel are more numerous and more detailed than anybody had realized.

Not only were the ships' names strikingly similar — the fictional Titan and the Titanic — but the craft had almost identical physical dimensions and features.

The fictional boat's tonnage was 45,000, the real one's 46,000. The length of the Titan was 800 feet, that of the Titanic 882 feet. Both were the same width and carried virtually the same maximum number of passengers and crew (3,000 for the Titan, 3,330 for the Titanic).

Moreover, both ships had three propellors, though at the time Robertson wrote his novel no triple-screw boat yet had been built. The craft were driven by almost exactly the same horsepower engine size — 40,000 in the case of the Titan, 46,000 in the Titanic's.

Both ships also had four smoke stacks, though no such vessel was afloat when Morgan Robertson penned his fictional account.

In fiction and in fact the officers on the boats were British and the owners were in Liverpool (in the Titanic's case the owner was the White Star Line).

Declared to be "unsinkable," both in the novel and in reality, the great ship struck an iceberg on the same side — starboard. The place of the collision was in the North Atlantic on the New York to England run.

In fiction, the speed at the moment of impact was 25 knots. In fact it was 23 knots. The time as uniformly just before midnight and the cause of the collision was given in fiction and in fact as too much speed, bad weather and fog.

Even the month was the same — April.

A macabre detail: Both ships carried too-few lifeboats — the Titan 24 and the Titanic 20 to the novel nearly all the 2,500 passengers drowned; in fact, the real tragedy more than 1,500 perished.

When you add up all these similarities what do you get — just one whopping coincidence?

That's what some skeptics tried to argue. So Jack Hannah subjected the "coincidences" to a statistical breakdown to determine mathematically how likely they were to occur by sheer accident.

Result: The odds against chance are at least four billion to one.

Is plain English, if you're going to argue that the parallels between Morgan Robertson's novel and the Titanic disaster were simply accidental, you might as well argue that it's sheer coincidence that people die after getting a bullet in the brain.

Somehow, it seems, an observer spinner of sea yarns wrote the detailed scenario of a world-shaking event which wasn't to happen for 14 years.

But how?

That's part of the UNEXPLAINED. . .

Sunday and Monday Horoscopes

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Sunday, June 15

Aries (March 21-April 19) You'll spend more effort making excuses as to why you should put something of that nature doing, than actually doing it.

Taurus (April 20 - May 20) You're not a very keen manager of your resources today. It will be easy for you to overspend your budget if you're not careful.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) You'd have to be extra patient with your family today, if you'll shake up the household. Keep domestic problems in perspective.

Cancer (June 21 - July 22) Keep your eyes and mind on the road today, if someone has an interesting story, it will hold till you're out of the car.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) Be practical today when making small purchases. It's very likely you could either pay too much or buy things you really don't need.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't try to advance your ambitions today by asking favors of individuals you're socializing with. The timing's all wrong.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You'll have to be careful today not to reveal something told you in confidence to a skilled busybody.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Being around superficial people today will bore you to tears. You're likely to say something you'll wish you hadn't. Think before you speak.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're a bit too fuzzy about your goals today to be truly effective. Don't try to do several things at one time. All will suffer.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19) You'd be wise not to tackle mental tasks today that require full concentration. They may have to be repeated if your attention wanders.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 - Feb. 19) You could further complicate a friend's business problem by offering her advice that won't work. Know what you're talking about.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) You're going to have to make a tricky decision today. You'll come out fine if you take ample time to weigh the issue.

For Monday, June 16

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You'll conceive a good idea today but conditions you can't control will make it difficult to carry out. However, don't discard it.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) There are do today that don't cost you out-of-pocket will be most fun. Avoid expensive pleasurable pursuits.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Something that you'll begin with others today will have to be completed on your own. Don't let lack of cooperation stop you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Dame Fortune will be kind to day if you're willing to share your luck. Should you be selfish, she'll be stingy too.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your material prospects are promising at this time, but don't go in the red. Wait until the money is in the bank.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Things generally run to your advantage today, but it would be unwise to push your luck. Half a loaf is better than none.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You'll find others willing—and ready—to do your favors. If you're not too demanding.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your friends will get rather perturbed if you alter plans at the last minute to suit only your needs.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're luckiest today in accomplishing important matters if you work alone. The wrong associate could jam things.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan 19) Where your personal resources are affected, do as your intuition directs. The opinion of a close friend won't be all that helpful.

CP News Roundup

Denison Dead

MONTREAL (CP) — Merril Denison, author playwright historian, died Thursday while on a visit to San Diego, Calif., friends reported Friday. He would have been 82 on June 21.

Though an American citizen, Mr. Denison was once known as Canada's leading dramatist. A resident of Montreal in recent years, he spent summer months at Sea Echo, his property 70 miles northeast of Belleville, Ont., which he turned over to the Ontario government for a provincial park.

His books include a two-volume history of the Bank of Montreal, the story of the Massey-Harris family and the history of the Massey-Harris company. His Klondike Mike was a hit in 1943.

Could Pay Less

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Time Canada official said Thursday that if the magazine is successful in meeting the federal government's cultural content rules, it probably will pay less taxes than it now does.

Stephen S. LaRue, president of the Canadian edition of the U.S. newsmagazine, said in an interview that because of effective rules for a bigger Canadian edition, it would come out of profit.

To qualify for tax deductions Time would have to prove 75-per-cent Canadian ownership and produce a magazine with an editorial content "not substantially the same" as its U.S. parent.

Indians Jobless

TIMMINS, Ont. (CP) — None of the residents of several Indian communities in Northern Ontario pays taxes because they don't have a taxable income, and there would be little chance they would receive help from the Workmen's Compensation Board because almost non-existent employment has cut down accidents.

These are among the observations of representatives of federal and provincial government agencies who examined Indian problems this week on a three-day tour of the communities.

Homes Understaffed

TORONTO (CP) — A study group of Metropolitan Toronto social services department says nursing is inadequate at Metro's eight homes for the aged.

The study group says at one home, only one nursing supervisor is available to cover seven-day, 24-hour operation. It says at three other homes, there is not enough nursing staff to provide supervision seven days a week.

Canadian Production Dips 1.4 Per Cent

OTTAWA (CP) — Total production of the economy dropped by 1.4 per cent during the first three months of 1975, the worst quarterly decline during the last 14 years, Statistics Canada said Friday.

In a report on gross national product for the first quarter, the agency says that while consumers spent more and inflation was less of a problem, the slumps in house construction and foreign trade grew worse.

The drop follows a 1.5-per-cent decline in the final quarter of 1974. Total production was up in the first three months last year, but there was no growth in the two middle quarters.

In dollar value, GNP grew by three-tenths of one per cent to a seasonally adjusted $148.5 billion but inflation more than accounted for the increase.

The report says the rate of increase in inventories of unsold goods was down from previous quarters, and adds: "This is not a guarantee of recovery, this pattern often precedes an upturn as businesses liquidate inventories."

The report presents revised annual figures for 1971 to 1974 showing real growth in output for 1974 revised down to 2.8 per cent from 3.7 per cent. This compares with revised real growth in 1973 of 6.9 per cent, in 1972 of six per cent and 5.8 per cent in 1971.

Praises Thomson Papers

TORONTO (CP) — Margaret Hamilton, recently appointed a senior vice-president of Thomson Newspapers Ltd., Toronto, says she is keen on product quality in her company's 84 newspapers.

"The majority of our local publishers is quality of production, of paper, of ink, of content," she says. "As a company we know we're only as good as the products we get out."

And Thomson's recent financial performance has been attributed, in large part, to the quality of product, Miss Hamilton says. The company's revenue increased to $43.8 million in the first quarter of 1975 from $38.2 million in the similar 1974 period.

Newspapers and newspaper chains have too often been the target of "insular criticism," she says.

"Our press really stands high in comparison to others."

Every Thomson newspaper is autonomous from an editorial viewpoint although head office maintains a constant monitoring for quality, she says.

Miss Hamilton says the philosophy of the organization is that its newspapers should be closely identified with the communities in which they operate. There is a strong emphasis on local news.

Careful and persistent salesmanship at the retail advertising level accounts for the company's sustained increase in revenue, even during a recessionary period, she says.

Before being appointed senior vice-president, Miss Hamilton was a vice-president of the company. She is also a director of Thomson Newspapers.

Stanfield Concerned Over Meat Stamps

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield charged the government with complacency Friday following allegations that meat is being sold with fraudulent "Canada approved" stamps.

Evidence presented at the Quebec inquiry into organized crime was told Thursday that some of the stamps were stolen from doorknobs.

And Gus Mitges (PC-Grey Simcoe) told the Commons Friday that use of stamps was down for a year despite the mislabelling "Canada Approved."

Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan replied that "the laws are very strict regarding abuse of these things and if such abuse is proven proper action will be taken."

Mr. Whelan said that federal health inspection stamps now are locked up when not in use and accused Mr. Stanfield of suggesting that "these stamps were left loosely lying around."

He said that if he finds persons manufacturing or using counterfeit stamps "we will prosecute."

Mr. Mitges asked in the Commons whether the government is considering making all meat inspection compulsory and under federal inspection.

Mr. Whelan said the possibility has been discussed with provincial governments. However, he said outside the House that "we cannot force them."

James McGrath (PC—St. John's East) disagreed, saying that the Food and Drugs Act now gives the health ministry authority to oversee the inspection of all food.

No Snouts

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal meat inspection standards "are the highest in the world," Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan said Friday.

"We don't even let them put pig snouts, et cetera, in their sausages."

He also praised the federal inspectors "who do not have the most pleasant job in the world."

"They have to put on rubber suits and examine all the guts and stuff."

Unaware of OHIP Increase

TORONTO (CP) — Health Minister Frank Miller said Friday he has no knowledge of any planned increase in Ontario Health Insurance Plan (OHIP) premiums.

Questioned in the legislature by Liberal Leader Robert Nixon, Mr. Miller said he was unaware of an editorial report in Brampton Times of May 18, 1975, which said Premier William Davis had told business men that OHIP premiums would undoubtedly increase this year.

"I've never heard the premier make that kind of a quotation in public," Mr. Miller replied. "He may well have done so.

Mr. Miller said the last time he heard Premier Davis comment on OHIP premiums was more than a yr ago.

"I believe at that time he said there was no intention of raising the premiums."

Province's Health Care Insufficient

TORONTO (P) — Ontario Health Minister Frank Miller said Friday the province's health-care system "still isn't good enough."

He told the annual meeting of the Registered Nurses Association of Ontario that what has been done in health care has really been sickness care.

Because of a dependence on the acute-care hospital, preventive care facilities had not been developed. These included chronic, nursing and home care, ambulatory care, patient promotion, primary care, health promotion and development of paramedical and allied health personnel.

"If, because of some mechanisms within our health insurance program, we dictate that all services must be provided by physicians . . . even though some services might be more economically, and possibly better, provided by nurses, then what are we really doing but adding the drain on our already overburdened health services?"

He said major emphasis must be on "stimulating a congruence between provider and consumer getting local groups to participate in the shaping of health services."

Commenting on government encouragement of district health councils, he said it "is seeking a decentralization of planning—an elevation of local priorities, not their suppression by some grand scheme hatched in an ivory tower in Queen's Park."

Israeli Jets Raid Terrorists' Village

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli jets attacked a Lebanese village Sunday following a terrorist raid on a farm community in northern Israel in which four Arab guerrillas and three Israelis were killed.

The Israeli military command said air strikes were ordered against Aita Chaba, "a base for terrorist infiltrators," after Arab terrorists seized a farmhouse and the family living in it early Sunday in the Israeli border village of Kfar Yuval.

The Lebanese defence ministry said the attack by jets and artillery shelling killed one woman and wounded 10 other persons. WAFA, the Palestinian news agency, said two successive Israeli air raids "covered the entire Arkoub area" of southern Lebanon, an area with a large population of Palestinian guerrillas. It said the guerrillas shot down one Israeli Phantom.

The Israeli command said guerrillas in Lebanon fired Katyusha rockets in a rare daylight attack on the Mediterranean resort area near Nahariya, cutting his Israelis with shrapnel. It said the shelling continued today, and the heavy fire on border hamlet of Metulla, three miles from Kfar Yuval. The command reported no casualties and said Israeli artillery returned the fire.

A spokesman for the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) said it sponsored the raid on Kfar Yuval. Saying it is our right to fight for our rights."

He added that such raids have the support of "the whole world because the UN General Assembly has approved the right of the Palestinians to use their struggle with all means to regain their usurped rights."

The Israelis said the attack was made by four guerrillas who slipped across the Lebanese frontier. They were spotted by armed civilians in Kfar Yuval. The guerrillas ran over a fence to get into the village of unorganized farm fields. The villagers opened fire, and the terrorists fired rifles and rocket grenades in all directions as they seized the farmhouse of Yaacov Mordechai.

The attack demanded the release from prison of Maj. Hilarion Capouli, the Greek Orthodox archbishop of Jerusalem who is serving a 19-year sentence for smuggling arms to Arab terrorists, and 11 other Arab prisoners.

The Israelis refused to bargain and stormed the building, shooting the Palestinians. Three Israelis also died and six were injured.

The Israeli armed forces radio said one of the terrorists was a Palestinian, and the others were an Israeli, a Moroccan and a Turk. It said they belonged to the Arab Liberation Front, which is affiliated with the PLO.

The Israeli foreign ministry said the assault was intended to disrupt "diplomatic efforts to revive the political momentum" toward peace. The statement also condemned the government that voted at the UN General Assembly last November to recognize the PLO, saying this encouraged murder and violence.

The latest diplomatic effort toward peace continued in New York with another meeting Sunday between Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger.

Kissinger said there would have to be "more exchanges between all the parties before we can decide whether a basis for resumption of negotiations exists."

He said Rabin's talks with him and President Ford and their recent meeting with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat in Austria "have at least created a basis from which the problem can be considered again."

34 Hurt As Two Trains Collide

BUFFALO (AP) — A total of 34 persons were injured in Sunday, in the collision of two passenger trains carrying a principal rival of the United States side of the International Railway Labor.

Involved were a six-car Amtrak train from Detroit, Mich., and a two-car Canadian Pacific motorcoach, headed for Hamilton and Toronto.

Police said the engineer of the Amtrak train, Lawrence Beebee, 53, of Ancaster, Ont., was arrested and charged with assault.

Police said Beebee had been drinking.

Police said the engineer said he was going 10 to 15 miles an hour shortly before the collision.

Beebee was charged with assault, police said, because the result can be defined as "recklessly causing injury to another person."

An employee for the Canadian National Railways said he witnessed the accident. He said the CP train, being operated by the Toronto, Hamilton and Buffalo Railway Co., ran into the rear of the Amtrak train, derailing five cars. Amtrak is the publicly-operated U.S. Railway Corp.

He said the Amtrak train was slowing to a stop to enter customs inspection at Fort Erie, Ont., on the railway bridge which connects Buffalo with Fort Erie, Ont., just across the Niagara River.

Russell Bolitz of Rochester, Mich., an Amtrak passenger, said the Amtrak train had "virtually stopped" when the Canadian Pacific train hit.

The Amtrak train was carrying 48 passengers and five crew members. Most were in the dining car. The Canadian train was carrying an undetermined number of passengers and was making its daily run from Buffalo to Hamilton and Toronto.

The force of the collision threw the front of the Canadian train off the track and derailed four of the six Amtrak cars.

Linda Fox, 31, of Mount Clemens, Mich., an Amtrak passenger, said: "Everything and everyone was thrown all over the place. There weren't too many people injured on my train, but the front of the other one was just smashed in."

A spokesman for Penn Central, which owns and operates the switching yard, said the normal approach speed to the bridge is 20 miles an hour when there is no obstruction.

The injured were taken to several area hospitals and included six children, all of whom were treated and released. At least three other persons were admitted for treatment, hospital spokesmen said.

Beebee, the engineer of the Canadian train, was treated for minor cuts and bruises and released into the custody of police.

A. J. Conklin, division superintendent for Amtrak, said his staff would be assisting CNR personnel in investigating the accident, but he added that the accident would be CNR's responsibility since that firm owns the tracks.

Windsor to Quebec City Pool Trains Proposed

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says a high-speed passenger train service running through a corridor between Windsor and Quebec City, to include stops at Toronto and Montreal, will be announced today by Transport Minister Jean Marchand.

Quoting from an outline of the new policy which the newspaper says it obtained from several sources, it says the program is expected to cost $28 million by the time it is put into operation in 1977-78.

The Globe and Mail says Canadian National Railways and CP Rail will be asked to merge their passenger ticket booking services and to make joint use of their passenger stations to reduce costs and improve efficiency of passenger service.

It says the policy proposes that fares be gradually increased to cover the real cost of the service. The policy document points out that rail passengers are now subsidized at the rate of five cents a mile and air passengers at two cents a mile.

The policy paper also proposes that mature train transportation systems should charge the real costs of the service and that hidden subsidies should be ended, the newspaper says.

It adds that new money will be needed to build transportation links to the iron ore of northern Quebec and Labrador and the gas and oil fields in Alberta, Alberta and British Columbia.

Lacrosse Brawl Results in Charge

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

A 46-year-old Trenton youth has been charged with assault causing bodily harm following a minor league lacrosse brawl in which a Belleville youth had his nose broken in three places.

Charged is Donald Turner of Prospect Hill, Trenton.

The incident took place following an exhibition lacrosse game between Belleville and Frankford juvenile teams at the Dick Ellis Rink on June 2.

City Police Chief Douglas Crosbie said during an interview Saturday: "If the referees can't control the sport . . . we will."

He said today that because the altercation took place after the match it was out of the hands of the referees and that "coaches should get together and talk about this."

"It's a real shame that sporting events end up with people going to court," said the chief. "Coaches should strive to put more sport into the game."

Summary conviction of the offence carries a maximum penalty of six months confinement, said the chief.

Room For Doubt

VANCOUVER- (CP) — A partying hotel guest removed room number signs from about 70 rooms in the Ritz International Hotel early Saturday and left guests guessing as to where to go.

Management of the downtown hotel said that about three-quarters of the rooms, on six floors, were left without number signs. The numbers were found later in a sixth-floor room.

Four District Members

OPP Trains Crisis Unit

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Four Belleville and district Ontario provincial policemen are undergoing training at Canadian Forces Base Kingston, this week to become members of a 10-man "crisis intervention team."

Police commissioner H. H. Graham said the special team will be used to quell any unusual disturbances. "We hope it won't we want to be prepared."

The four men are Al Armstrong of Belleville, Bert Kea and T. J. Stanford of Picton and Wayne Pickett of Napanee.

A total of 14 men have completed psychological and physical testing and today began training in Kingston. Inspector Don Dowser of Belleville said the final 10 men will be chosen following the Kingston course. The squad is to be called the Tactics and Rescue Unit (TRU).

All members of the team so far have been drawn from eastern Ontario detachments. "The Olympic sailing competition in Kingston in 1976 was probably something in mind when it was decided to use area men for the force," said Inspector Dowser.

"The Olympics are the type of situation where such a squad could be used," he said.

Following the Kingston segment of training, five members of the team will be sent to Washington for "concerted" training in the FBI academy.

"They're hanging in there so far," said Inspector Dowser commenting on the progress of the local men. He said about 35 men from the area applied for posting with the special team. While not serving with the team, members will continue ordinary duties with their individual detachments.

The team is expected to be operational by August and will be equipped with special uniforms, an array of weaponry including shotguns, hand guns, automatic rifles and tear gas.

Inspector Fred Blocher, a spokesman from OPP general headquarters, said the idea for a special team "was sparked by the United States experience," and by the growing number of hostage situations.

"This kind of thing is on the increase and its necessary we be prepared to cope with these types of situations," he said.

Doctors To Debate Abortion

OTTAWA (CP) — Abortion is expected to be one of about 20 major subject discussed June 22-27 at the Canadian Medical Association annual meeting in Calgary.

Dr. Bette Stephenson, association president, said today in a statement that while abortion is expected to be a major topic at the meeting—with "perhaps a call for a county-wide physician's referendum"—it is just one of "a number of very important issues on which debate is expected.

"I hope we don't spend an unfair amount of time on this one subject," Dr. Stephenson said in her statement.

"We can't afford to spend more than an hour or two on the abortion issue—as important as it is," she said.

Eaton Says CIA Asked Him to Spy

TORONTO (CP) — Cyrus Eaton, Nova Scotia-born multi-millionaire industrialist, says the United States Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) asked him to spy on the Soviet Union during his frequent trips there in the late 1950s and early 1960s.

"They told me my 'wonderful relationship' with the Soviet leaders could be put to good use to them," 91-year-old Mr. Eaton is quoted in an interview with the Toronto Star in his office in Cleveland, Ohio.

"I stopped them right there, horrified at the suggestion, and refused. I told them I greatly resented their thinking I was that kind of man. Under no circumstances would I ever co-operate with the CIA."

Mr. Eaton is quoted in The Star as saying his turndown of the CIA led to "CIA-organized harassment and denunciation of me in the press."

'Arrested' Ship Sails

QUEBEC (CP) — A spokesman for the British consulate said today the Royal Navy helicopter carrier HMS Hermes weighed anchor at 10:30 a.m. EDT and set sail for England.

Denis Symington said the ship had been arrested originally yesterday, "because a writ issued by the Federal Court of Canada against the Hermes for breach of Customs and Excise Act, fines and a $10,000 damage action in court last week.

A lawyer for Mr. Girard said two men broke into his apartment last Wednesday "without invitation or provocation" and beat him.

Pioneer Rotating

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pioneer 10, now 745 million miles from the earth between the planets Saturn and Jupiter, has been undergoing a mysterious change in its axis of rotation, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said Saturday. The change might be due to "some slight malfunction or a planetary force we don't know about," said a spokesman.

TOKYO (AP) — A young rightist assaulted Prime Minister Takeo Miki with his bare fists today, minutes before a national funeral ceremony began for former Prime Minister Eisaku Sato. Police said Miki fell after being struck three times in the face by his assailant but got up quickly.

Hijacker Returns

NEW YORK (AP) — A man accused of hijacking a Western Airlines jet to Cuba three years ago was arrested at Kennedy airport Saturday night when he arrived on a flight from Barbados. "I have nothing to say," alleged hijacker Michael Hansen of Fargo, N.D., told reporters. The FBI, which had known of his release from Cuba and expected his arrival, said Hansen will be charged with air piracy and with failing to report, for induction into the United States armed services.

Trains Running Again

SIMCOE, Ont. (CP) — Freight trains of the Norfolk and Western Railway N. and W. are running again between Windsor, Ont., and Fort Erie, Ont., on the Canadian National Railways line torn up Thursday when an N. and W. freight derailed in Simcoe. Jack Wells, transportation superintendent of CNR and N. and W., said the probable cause of the accident, which left two men dead and caused more than $1 million damage, was a gear case that dropped from the lead engine and wedged in the track.

Arnold Wants More Women in Politics

How many women are willing to put themselves up as candidates for the rigors of the next provincial elections campaign.

The number won't be overwhelming if Nancy Arnold's intimations to date are translated into reality, indicates the young Social Credit candidate in Hastings-Frontenac.

Mrs. Arnold, 36-year-old former Spanish freelance journalist and mother of five, was chosen last April at a Shannonville-area meeting to run on the constituency for her party in the next Ontario election.

"Women don't seem to be interested in seeking nomination," Mrs. Arnold is quoted as saying.

She said all parties are trying hard to attract qualified women candidates, but that women are not responding.

Mrs. Arnold is also chief executive organizer for Social Credit in Ontario.

Yet this doesn't seem to make much difference as swaying women to enter politics, says her party's headquarters.

It's part of Mrs. Arnold's job to seek candidates. Fewer than 10 per cent of the people "known to be active working" seeking a Social Credit nomination are women, despite a concerted attempt on Mrs. Arnold's part to persuade them.

Most of the concern expressed to her about political issues comes from women. But that interest is not sufficiently strong to persuade them into total political involvement, she says.

Provincial governments concern themselves with educa-nowtion, welfare, day-cares and health policies.

"These are things that normally concern women," says Mrs. Arnold.

She notes that there are only three women among the 117 members of the present legislature.

Meditation Centre To Belleville July 1

Expands

The Kingston World Plan Centre has expanded to Belleville to give interested persons a greater opportunity to learn the process of transcendental meditation (TM)

The expansion coincides with the return of Belleville resident Rick Cheeseman, who recently spent six months in France and Switzerland on a training course to enable him to teach TM.

Mr. Cheeseman announced in an interview this week the co-ordinator for the centre for World Plan activities in the Belleville area TM teacher Jytte Hansen, will be located at 46 East Moira St. The expansion is effective July 1.

He explained the World Plan is a project designed to eventually have one per cent of the world's population meditating.

He said the figure is based on the assumption that one person practicing TM will influence a certain number of non-meditators each day through personal contact and give a beneficial effect.

Mr. Cheeseman pointed out tests have shown TM reduces anxiety and stress and better prepares a person mentally to meet each day's activity. The person's attitude "rubs off" on those around him, he added.

The once-a-month TM courses in Belleville will be maintained under Miss Hansen until such time Belleville World Plan Centre is feasible said Mr. Cheeseman. A centre here would "integrate the whole area" from Cobourg to Brockville, he said.

Cheeseman Joins Centre

Belleville resident Rick Cheeseman has joined the Kingston World Plan Centre, an arm of the World Plan Executive Council of Canada in Ottawa which administers the teaching of transcendental meditation (TM) in Canada.

The 26-year-old Mr. Cheeseman, an Ottawa native, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Cheeseman of 544 East Bridge St. in Belleville.

Mr. Cheeseman has a degree in physics from Queen's University in Kingston. He said this week he became interested in TM about four years ago while in his third year at university.

TM Reduces Crime

Rick Cheeseman of Belleville, who recently became a teacher of transcendental meditation (TM), points to a graph of a study which shows a reduction in the crime rate in a control city where one per cent of the population meditate. Mr. Cheeseman announced this week the expansion of the Kingston World Plan Centre to Belleville July 1 and predicted the eventual formation of a Belleville centre, which should increase the number of meditators in the Quinte area.

Experiment Ends, Fair Timing Now Uncertain

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

A three - year experiment seems to be over. Weekend shows as organizers locked the gates on the Quinte Exhibition.

More than 45,00 people attended the 1975 edition of the annual fair and all may have had an indirect hand in determining the future of the coming year.

The exhibition began floundering several years ago with decreasing attendance and corresponding financial difficulties. For the 1973 fair, the board of directors broke from the traditional format and opted for two weeks in September. In the second year of this experiment the fair was shifted with a week in May and a week in September.

This third year turned "the third strike" by pushing their alternative" by pad fair board member Jack Bush saw the fair as a one-week event in June.

"We've been testing the fair around all over the place," said Bush. "Looking for the best time," said Lyle Vancelief, president of the board. He said the information "from the past years indicated a September next year's fair will have to be decided by the people.

"I feel this year's fair was very strong," said Mr. Vancelief. He did not say which of the three alternatives he favored.

Mr. Bush said "last year (with two fairs) didn't work out".

"Personally I think the best time for the fair is in August," he said.

"What we draw in attendance is peanuts to what it should be," said Mr. Bush. "I think we have to come back in August."

Fair statistician said attendance for the fair was well in excess of 45,000. An exact figure is not available because Sunday has only half day and admissions were levied on cars and not on the number of occupants.

Whatever happens to the fair's timetable, its agricultural focus will be retained, said Mr. Vancelief.

"We have to draw more in the urban population and retain agriculture as much as we can," he said. "We have no intentions of turning the exhibition into a carnival."

"Urban people come to see the livestock," he said. "They won't come back if we don't display agriculture."

Financially the fair will not lose money, "but it will be very close," said Mr. Bush.

"We did a shade better than the fall fair last year."

Both Mr. Bush and Mr. Vancelief highly praised the exhibitors in this year's fair. "We had a very good show. The exhibits were beautiful," said Mr. Bush.

A hospital spokesman said today the youth is in satisfactory condition but still in the intensive care unit.

Belleville OPP said the accident occurred about 12:25 a.m. on County Rd. 4, Sydney Township, about 14 miles northwest of here.

According to local members the sale will be delayed until next Saturday June 21, at 1:00 p.m.

Senior Citizens Need Attention Says Official

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

This is Ontario Nursing Home Week and one administrator of a Belleville nursing home said she feels the event should be used to publicize the plight of occupants in private institutions.

Lillian Hill, director of activities for Montgomery Lodge and Balcrest Villa, said in an interview, residents of private homes don't receive enough of the services offered by local auxiliary and volunteer groups.

And she has found some support for that position in the Belleville recreation and arts department.

Wilma Summers, deputy director of the department and the person most active in organizing activities for senior citizens agrees with Mrs. Hill.

Mrs. Summers said in an interview there should be an increase in the use of volunteer services by private establishments.

"They need it more than Hastings Manor the county home for the aged) because the people at Hastings can get around by themselves," Mrs. Summer said, "while people in private homes are usually less mobile."

Mrs. Summers said the private institutions might make more use of existing programs.

"Perhaps the community involvement program in the school system where students get class credits for working with people," she said, "could be utilized if it is not being already used," added Mrs. Summers.

"Then the residents would get the mental stimulation from games and crafts and human contact."

Mrs. Hill said she feels residents of private homes get too little one-to-one interplay with outsiders and it is difficult for them to maintain a normal lifestyle.

"There are some residents, without friends or relatives, who need companionship," she said.

"Residents of these homes have contributed to the community and should benefit from existing service programs," Mrs. Hill said.

Mrs. Hill plans a day-trip for the senior citizens to take advantage of a special matinee at the Quinte Mall celebrating Senior Citizens Week but thinks she will have to limit the number attending if she can't find volunteers.

"It's very difficult to provide care on day trips," she said, and many of the residents need aid when they leave the nursing homes," she said.

Four Charged In Bike Thefts

Four city and area youths have been charged in connection with the theft of bicycles, city police reported Monday.

Chief Douglas Crosbie said Michael Reginald Willman, 18, of Chatham St., faces two charges of possession of stolen bicycles. Charged with bicycle theft are Richard Thomas Allan Baldwin, 17 R3R4 Stirling; Robert Steven Brown, 16, Foster Ave. and Lawrence Patrick Farrell, 14, Chatham St.

Soul Food Makes This Garden Plot Different

Weekend gardener Joe Gray grows the only "soul food garden" in Belleville.

Okra, Crowder peas and poinsetta are just a few of the strange vegetables this 45-year-old native of Tennessee has planted in his garden, an experimental plot of land at Albert College co-sponsored by the city's board of parks management.

They may be strange to Ontario, but Mr. Gray, a production manager at Canada Sports Equipment Canada Ltd., said it's just the kind of garden his father would have planted in the deep south.

"Don't get me wrong, it would be cheaper to buy the stuff frozen than grow it the way I do, but I just enjoy trying to get these things to grow," explained Mr. Gray, who with his wife and three children immigrated to Canada four years ago.

Mr. Gray claims he has good luck with Okra, also called Gumbo in the southern states. It's a popular southern vegetable that is used in soups, stews and all types of soul food, said Mr. Gary.

He even adds some southern comfort to his gardenlik uncommon to Ontario. When growing pole beans he plants them with corn so that the beans will climb on the corn stalks rather than using poles. "It's more curiosity than a longing for hoeds," he concluded.

A Southern Touch

Joe Gray, a native of Tennessee, is attempting to grow vegetables in his garden that are usually found in the southern states. A production manager at Wilson Sporting Equipment Canada Ltd. Mr. Gray has rented two plots of land at Albert College for his special crop, which includes Okra, popcorn and Crowder Beans.

Safe Blown, $2,500 Taken in Theft

TRENTON — Thieves broke into a safe at Alberts Company Ltd. on Front St. and escaped with approximately $2,500 over the weekend.

Detective Sergeant Vickers said today, the thieves used an oxygen acetylene torch to cut out the locking mechanism of the door in the company's walk-in safe.

He said, "They knew what they were doing", adding he also believes they were professional safe-crackers.

The detective said, police suspect at least one of the safe-crackers lived in the hamlet dealership when it closed Saturday night.

There was no sign of forcable entry.

The thieves used several tools in the building but brought their own steel cylinders containing oxygen and acetylene. The two cylinders, each weighing 60-65 lbs., were left behind.

The theft occurred sometime between noon (Saturday) and Sunday at 2 p.m. police said.

FUNERAL QUESTIONS WE ARE OFTEN ASKED

JOHN B. BUSH

R. DOUGLAS BUSHNELL

Q. "WHAT CLOTHING IS NECESSARY TO BE USED FOR BURIAL?"

A. It's often the family's wish and highly desirable to utilize clothing that the deceased wore during his/her life. If suitable clothing is available and the family would prefer that it be used then by all means these garments should be used. Informal clothing seems to be the most suitable. Clothing should be complete except shoes unless otherwise requested by the family. Keep in mind that the funeral director will assist the family in obtaining suitable clothing if it is not available.

Q. "WHAT IS MEANT BY PRIVATE FUNERAL?"

The Decision Process: Governments, 'Think Tanks,' Citizen's Groups, What Else?

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Long-range planning and forecasting is a modern term of theology, a mysterious process employed and devised by governments and large corporations to look at their future.

For most of us it has to recall the cynical comment of a British foreign minister in 1903 about a peace treaty with Napoleon that it was, "the peace that passeth all understanding."

Yet we all are very much in love with the process, more one suspects than the Americans who had a large hand in establishing its latest slogan.

I suspect we go "big" for long-range planning and forecasting because it gives intellectuals (who are the salaried tactic bearers of governments and inherent to the character of many Canadians).

We rarely "take off" in this country unless under great circumstances like our task of leading the Allies in World War or our naval escort against U-boats in the same time.

We do and can rise to the occasion of making decisions and moving in unanimity, but only without intellectualizing the process.

When governments do not do so, particularly at the municipal level, there is the citizens' committee complete with its ever-public relations and intellectual chilling from around city council decisions, as in the case of Toronto, turn-of-the-century government.

But we are surrounded by the "think tank" of government and quasi-government origin. They are the pedlerships planning and analysis divisions of federal and provincial government ministries as well as "outside" agencies.

The latter include the Economic Council of Canada, the D. Bowes Research Institute in Montreal, which was the Senator Hartland Molson Foundation, American Committee, the Canadian-operations of the National Industrial Conference Board, a New York-based "think tank" for American firms, and the Canadian Institute on Public Affairs.

Add the aforementioned government planning divisions and the "outside" agencies and institutes inside our universities in the area and, as I said, planning, plan ourselves silly.

Yet we need it. The Institute for Research on Public Policy is to be large, if not, if proposed and staggering to billions and decades, it is far more than all of them.

It claims its projects mainly aimed at the years 1980-2000 "research" will be in areas as "development of a resource strategy for Canada in a world context" or "income distribution and the economy" will not duplicate levels of such existing research.

Surely that last one has been done and redone in many years by governments, industries and universities. Surely the "long analysis" of income distribution in the 80s will tell us something we don't already know, rather than in the 70s.

The board of directors and the council of trustees of the institute include former chairman of Economic Council and the C.D. Howe Research Institute, the vice-president of corporate and institutional leadership for high-powered back-up.

Gigantism, the plague of governments, could plague the institutions for research and Public Policy.

What's wrong with encouraging the individual performer John Kettle from the parliamentary lobbyist, or another Marshal McLuhan with concepts and theories we are going, or going in the language of poetry we are understand, rather than that of econometrics we cannot?

Let's say some more and horendous projects planned for Montreal's Expo '67 and Chicago forecasting of the kind the Institute will bellow.

The expensive, mismanaged Montreal called the Montreal Summer Olympics, is the best example around.

A Schools's Initiative

If admitting the problem is the first step toward a solution Quinte Secondary School officials are to be commended for their honest and open approach to a problem that in many ways touches every high school in this province.

The school has released some staggering statistics that by its own admission places Quinte Secondary School in the category of an inner-city school — the kind we think exists only in major cities.

Quinte vice-principal Frank Chapman revealed the figures not as shock therapy but rather to convince the board and the public that the social problems do affect students and must be dealt with before they can achieve academic objectives.

Apparently, between 30 and 40 per cent of Quinte's student population come from single-parent families. About 70 students have chronic attendance problems; another 16 students come from families where there is an alcoholic problem.

Mr. Chapman also told the board about 150 students have dental health problems out of a total student population of 1,350. And so far this year 68 students have left school.

These, and other statistics, have forced the school authorities to realize that unless these social problems can be completely or partially solved the academic and attendance problems will continue.

A proposed pilot project at the school will establish a community contact team, consisting of teachers, counsellors, health authorities, police officers, citizen ombudsman, and other community resource people.

The concept, developed out of the current educational task force looking for alternatives in education, will focus more attention on the social problems of students, particularly in the family setting. It's a daring step in that the community contact team will sometimes enter into the family situation to solve problems.

The success or failure of the project will depend heavily on how members of this team can penetrate the home environment and provide temporary or long-term relief to problems which may be holding back a student.

Quinte Secondary School is not isolated with its statistics. It may be slightly higher because of its proximity to lower income areas in the city — but it is not alone. All of Belleville's high schools have degrees of these social problems and there will be a lesson to learn from this project.

Any way you look at it, the Citizens' Cycle campaign is a good one. Making way for bicycles means making way for recreation, family outings, good exercise, a cheap non-polluting substitute for the car, and a less hazardous type of transportation than the car.

Motor vehicles obviously are not going to be chased from the streets, but their near monopoly of public thoroughfares must give way to provision for cyclists and pedestrians. Some all of us are walkers, and most of us actual or potential drivers and cyclists as well, it is a matter of demanding that public policy give us a better break to the cycling and walking options than it does now.

fornia grape pickers, foreign aid and all.

More than a decade has passed since fashion model Kahn-Tineta Horn, first in a letter to The Montreal Gazette, then as a forthright speaker, took up the cause of the Indian. Miss Horn is now married and no longer makes political headlines. Indians meanwhile have been in the news off and on, here and in the United States, but basically not much has changed for them in all that time.

Many of the native people still live under sub-standard living conditions and ill-health, so much so that a public health team came overseas, Yvonne Knipe, was quoted last year as saying: "If I were a Canadian citizen, I would feel very guilty about the state of the Canadian Indian." She was speaking of her six years' working in remote communities of Northwestern Ontario — of the illness that often develops in Indian children in their first year of life, and the other problems of their race.

Tasteless Commercialism Noted

Christian Science Monitor

Spoofing public figures and historical personages is in the American grain. And no one would have it any other way. Yet there are times when the leaders belong to the people and can take the kidding that goes on between them.

But a less attractive side of America's image as institution is sacred from turning a profit — appears in the blasphemy regarding does of the nation's founders for commercial purposes. Martha Washington has not yet been quoted in an ad for antiperspirant — "I wish I had known about Deodorant!" — but it no longer seems beyond the realm of possibility.

Consider Time magazine's "September 1776 issue." In the midst of all the time-style skill with which it has endeavored to make it happened last week, there is a two-page ad for the second "spirit of '76" that "moved America's house — with the pounding Fathers sitting around in a tavern and presumably lapping it up. Then — in one of those triple-plays of tastelessness that comedians follow by asking, "Is there anyone that I haven't offended?" — a woman's face is placed among the pounding Fathers to make more in an ad belittling women by a manufacturer of feminine hygiene products.

How about a little ceiling in the American way? You can't keep comedy out of history, but you can keep history out of the money machine.

LETTERS

The California Grape Pickers

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

In reply to letter June 6, 1975, "Grape Talk Propaganda". It is only proper that we get the true story of the United Farm Workers and their struggle for equality and justice.

I am not a member of the farm workers union but have personally read and studied and learned the story of the California grape and lettuce workers and I will support the grape boycott, along with a great number of Canadians and other religious leaders, unions, mayors, political parties, newspapers and many other organizations.

These people would not be duped by Communist propaganda, nor would they be part of "Blue America."

The "Christophers" organization, in a news note entitled "To Everyone a Christmas," points out that if you were a farm worker:

1. You would be paid around $1,500 a year, if everybody in your family worked yet, might make $2,700. Many days you would not work. Note would be available.

2. Your life expectancy would be 49.

3. Your children would be more than twice as likely to die at birth; and your wife is giving birth.

4. Your family chance of catching influenza, pneumonia, tuberculosis or some infectious disease would be three times the average.

5. You would probably never get to reached the eighth grade.

6. You'd be lucky to have two rooms in which to house your family; you might have some electricity, but probably no toilet, sink, bathtub or shower.

Another part of the news note: "Church support of the Boycott" The national conference of Catholic bishops on Nov. 13, 1973 placed the Catholic church squarely behind the boycott efforts of the United Farm Workers of America.

In an unprecedented action, the Bishop asked its million church members "to support the U.F.W consumer boycott of California grapes and head lettuce until such time as secret ballot elections are held.

Protestant church leaders, acting through the national council of churches reaffirmed the farm workers boycott on February 26, 1974 (and all quotes from Christopher's news).

In California, under the leadership of Governor Edmund G. Brown Jr. a law has been passed which gives the workers the right to vote by secret ballot to have a union of their own choosing or to have no union, so the next few months are essential to the farm workers of California. Their struggle is over and that is what the boycott is all about.

Banks, Financiers, and Steelmakers Buck Downward Trend

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Corporate earnings, both here and in the United States, are continuing to drop.

The decline became apparent when corporations published their results for fourth-quarter 1974. It has been confirmed in the results for the January-March quarter.

And in all likelihood the current quarter will produce lower average earnings than in the April-June period of 1974.

A few industries in Canada have been going against the downtrend. Insurance, banks and other financial companies have been earning more this year than last.

So, too, have the steelmakers—although the rate of growth of their earnings has slackened considerably. Higher earnings have also been reported by most processors of oil and gas, on the strength of their higher selling prices.

In contrast, earnings in such industries as brewing and distilling, base-metal mining and construction have slumped badly.

In the United States, first-quarter earnings generally dropped more than 22 per cent on average, while real gross national product fell at an annual rate of 11.3 per cent.

One of the chief detriments of profit levels in recent years has been the inventory Profit Inventory Adjustment (IVA).

Basically, this is an adjustment to remove the effect of changes in the dollar value of inventories—changes that can be misleading when prices are fluctuating abnormally.

Harold Rennof, president of the Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants, has pointed out that even 1974's apparently high level of Canadian profits did not leave enough cash in corporate hands to finance the increase in the price of inventories.

Few people would lose any sleep over the problems that corporations face when earnings decline. Nevertheless, they do have a broad significance.

When corporations have little or no retained earnings, they may have to borrow at excessively high interest rates or else cut back on normal growth. (However, many firms have a substantial cushion of earned surplus that they built up during the boom years.)

—Expansion into new projects is likely to be postponed, but when more jobs are needed badly.

—The stock market is depressed because of investors' fears of corporate stagnation and dividend cuts.

A good number of economic forecasters are predicting a business turn-around in the second half of this year.

If that happens, corporate earnings could recover with a rush, and ride the business cycle up to a new peak.

On the other hand, there's no guarantee such a turnaround. If the current recession should be prolonged, then there could be a devastating drop in profits—and therefore in capital spending, employment and in stock prices.

The chances for recovery would be enhanced if the business community could be assured that politicians know how to distinguish between legitimate earnings and so-called corporate rip-offs.

Such a distinction must then be translated into enlightened, fiscal and monetary policies to stimulate the economy without creating inflation get out of control.

Diplomatic Corps in Ottawa Have Among Their Number Some Who Ignore the Law

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — There was a Rolls-Royce, a limousine, black limousine, parked, the other into afternoon, on Ottawa's busy Bank Street.

That section of the street has been transformed into a mini-mall, with traffic restricted to single lane.

Traffic flows one way, heading north, another cross south, and buses, service vehicles and taxis back quickly in and out of boarding bays.

It was five o'clock, rush hour. The street was choking in the fumes of overheat, gasoline. The parked there, up partly on the sidewalk and curb, on the one street, was this Rolls, its opulence bulging in both ways, impeding, with equal imperial impartiality, the flow of both vehicles and pedestrians.

The great gas guzzler carried red and white diplomatic plates, and from its windshield protruded an red-pinked right front fender pressed a flag in orange, green and black.

A traffic cop stood by, a book of parking tickets in hand.

"Why don't you call the so-and-so?" asked a passing pedestrian.

"I've put a couple of tickets on it already," shrugged the cop. "And he's made me sick. Here, watch."

Under the windshield wiper went a third ticket, and out of a small spectacle, they took a step across the sidewalk stride one of the many diplomatic "Excellencies" posted in Ottawa, tore up the ticket and reentered the limousine.

He did it with an air, a certain ecial, but a obvious arrogant contempt of a mere police officer and a law he knew he could laugh at.

"Probably the 3rd for fiftenag," suggested an around member of the pulsating crowd.

"I give up," replied the embarrassed cop, crestfallen because he knew, "Can't let a foreigner him. He's got immunity and he's walking out of it."

His Excellency and 1,350 other diplomats in Ottawa, big and over-booming diplomatic community of which they are part, have flouted it in acknowledging only 37 of more than 8,000 traffic violations recorded in Ottawa.

Only they had enough of the power and decency of citizenship to pay the penalty.

The other more than 8,400 either sent the tickets to the External Affairs Department or, more usually, simply asks police to "deactivate" them — or simply to forget about it. Forget about it.

It has to say something for the gentlemen and ladies of the diplomatic corps and of their understanding of diplomacy, diplomacy that has set the lip of the iceberg of immunity.

For in the absolute, His Excellency the Ambassador, Extraordinaire, Minister Plenipotentiary, his family, third trade secretary, junior clerk, chauffeur, gardener, all, in fact, everyone on his staff — enjoy what amounts to a legal carte blanche.

The scoff of traffic tickets is run-of-Diplomatic Row stuff.

But and perhaps that diplomats can and do ignore traffic laws and conduct themselves with the Prime Minister in Ottawa never appear in court? So how does it all work out?

Recently I asked Canada's Chief of Protocol who has to worry about such things, says "well, on the whole they're pretty well-behaved."

In the never-never world of diplomacy that is what prides indeed.

Then he adds, more sternly, "but there are some who do abuse their privileges and cause trouble."

Like shoplifting, petty cash, dodging fuel and phone bills.

The External Affairs Department says it's too hard, but, so, sorry, it has no funds to cover the debts of lift-skipping diplomats.

Does not get his — it does have money to compensate foreign embassies for broken windows and damage done by demonstrators.

What happens when a diplomat goes bust in Ottawa and he can — being in such flagrant violation of the law that it cannot be ignored — is he is deported.

And it has happened. A diplomat here ran down and killed a child. Abroad, he would be tagged his tax-free buses and third income tax exemption the embassy's untaxed limousines.

Frankly, the boys, they're "invited" to leave for home. They become, to use the phrase, "persona non grata," and everyone concerned, the victimized, is left holding the bag.

Don't Count Seniors Out Says Group Spokesman

By Al EARAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Senior citizens are not people whose usefulness is a community has ended.

Nor are they "something to put up with," but rather, they are as creative a part of members of a community.

So says Harry McKee, president of the 300-member Trenton Senior Citizens Club. He was speaking Saturday, one day before the start of Senior Citizens' Week in Quinte Area Ontario.

Sunday marked the beginning of a week, and a week of five centennial years, that the provincial government has established in celebration of the 100,000 senior citizens in Ontario.

"Some people feel that when you become a senior citizen you're all finished," said Mr. McKee. "It's not true.

"A lot of these people do things, create things that these young fellows have to go to college to get."

As an example, he sited the construction of Trenton's club house on Bay St. The building, except for laying of blocks and brick, was put up by senior citizens.

"That's something creative," he said, "and not bad for coming out of this air." Mr. McKee estimated its value at $100,000.

The Trenton club plans a tag days, June 30 and 31, in conjunction with senior Citizens' Week. Money raised, will be used for maintenance of the club house.

About 80 people will also be going to Gananoque this week for a day-long brief course on the Thousand Islands. For those unable to participate in the cruise, a second day has been scheduled later in June to Prince Edward Lake.

Mr. McKee said the club regularly visits senior citizens in Trenton hospital, the Trent Valley Lodge nursing home, or at home.

Wedding anniversary cards, and get-well cards are sent to club members because it "gives them a lift," said Mr. McKee. That "lift" is needed because often, "only very few people visit them — maybe once a month."

Senior Citizens' Week is usually set aside to focus attention on concerns of older people and provide awareness of their contributions to a community.

Rose Brunelle, Ontario minister of Community and social services, has said that its purpose is encourage the development of recreational programs and social services in Ontario communities.

"Many seniors remain active in their communities — they have a great deal of knowledge and know-how to offer their efforts should be recognized and they should be re-assured of their importance," said the minister.

LTRCA May Begin Opening Property

OSLAND — Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority chairman Bill Carter said Saturday he expects the authority will be opening conservation areas, he is waterfront to the public on a fairly regular basis in future.

The revelation came during an interview following the official opening of the Frank E. Goodrich Wildlife Sanctuary and Conservation Area about four-miles west of Orland in Cramahe Township Saturday.

The opening was the second in a series of openings of the authority. In 1972 at Warkworth the public was given access to a four-acre park and small reservoir, one of 13 properties owned by the authority.

Saturday, a cairn to the late Mr. Goodrich was unveiled before about 100 people, among them, the family of his daughter Marjorie Brown, (PC-Northumberland), and authority members.

The prominent Brighton citizen was deeply linked with the beginning of the village Royal Canadian Legion branch and library. He died in 1969 at the age of 74.

Plans for the opening of the wildlife sanctuary have been under way for the last six months, after several abortive attempts.

Mr. Carter said Saturday work on three other areas — Seymour, Oak Hills and Proctor — now are in the development stage and could be expected to open soon. The Alnwick area, where a lookout tower is in the works, may open within a year.

Any future openings will come as a result of a shift in authority policy from land acquisition to land development announced earlier this year.

The chairman said plans for the Goodrich sanctuary will not involve extensive development. Activity will be concentrated in the "aids to nature" area.

Cold Creek, running through the approximately 275-acre site, will be deepened in places to accommodate fish preferring deeper water. Sections of the creek will be blocked to provide fast flowing water for other fish species.

No dams will be built along the creek, he said.

Mr. Carter said the area will be maintained as a wildlife sanctuary, open to bird naturalists, fishermen, and groups of area school children for field studies.

Authority staff will also transplant some of the smaller trees on the heavily wooded hill to other areas in its 765-square-mile watershed.

Man Held After Blaze

TRENTONN — A Batawa man has been charged with arson after a fire broke out at the home of Silpo Vicari, about four miles west of here off Highway 2, late Saturday.

Brighton police have charged Theodore Barta, 31, of 34 Nelsel St. with arson. Mr. Barta appeared before a judge Sunday and was remanded in custody to await a court appearance in Brighton Wednesday.

The fire started in a bedroom at the front of the house occupied by Mr. Vicari or RR4, Trenton.

Provincial police said a flash was noticed in the house by passing motorist, Donald Webb of RR3, Trenton. Mr. Webb doused flames while his wife called the Brighton fire department.

Police credit Mr. Webb with saving the house from destruction. Damage is estimated at $1,200.

Fire Damages Picton Home

PICTON — Picton firemen were called to 112 Mary St. here at 12:35 am Sunday to extinguish a fire at a home occupied by Sharon Lewis. A Picton Fire Department spokesman said cause of the fire is unknown and damage to the home and contents was estimated at $900. The house is owned by Aaron Katz of Picton.

Sanctuary Opens

With the assistance of Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority members Bruce Spencer (left) and Charles Hockley, Marjorie Morgan, daughter of the late, Frank Goodrich, unveils a cairn Saturday built in memory of her father. The cairn was unveiled during the official opening of the Frank E. Goodrich Wildlife Sanctuary and Conservation Area west of Orland.

A post mortem examination of the body of Lyle Kimberly, 25, of 84 Taunton St. East, Oshawa, revealed Sunday the man had died of a heart attack.

Brighton provincial police say Kimberly had been racing earlier Saturday night at the raceway outside Brighton. He collapsed in the pit area beside his car between races.

North Marysburg Museum Grows in Refurbished Home

By TERRY SPRAGUE
Staff Correspondent

WAUPOOS — A collection of historical artifacts and other material given the visitor to the North Marysburgh Museum, east of here, a vivid picture of life during the 1800's. It is different from most museums in Prince Edward County in that it is a museum, furnished as it would be back in that era.

Formerly known as the Ross House, the museum is a settler's home, built by Peter Ross in 1830 and belonging to the family for six generations. It became a museum in 1962 and is open to the public from mid-May until Labor Day.

Books written by Prince Edward County authors are on sale in the museum along with a display of historical maps.

The house contains six furnished rooms — a kitchen, summer kitchen, pantry parlor, children's bedroom and the master bedroom.

The upstairs portion contains a history of the area, plus numerous exhibits of household utensils and pottery. According to Julia Beurle, tour guide for the museum, the upstairs was used primarily as a storage area, then as the family grew in size, was occupied by the children.

A few of the more prized items in the museum include a family Bible, a German Bible, a combination picture album and music box and an 1828 typewriter.

The dwelling, immediately adjacent to the house, contains farm tools, harness, hop and barley growing equipment and apple processing utensils. Two looms, set up by the Roxcombe's Weaving Studio of Cherry Valley are also on display.

A few new artifacts have been obtained for the museum this year and another expansion is being considered, said the tour guide.

Michigan Woman Dies of Injuries

BRIGHTON — A Michigan woman died Saturday in Toronto General Hospital as a result of injuries sustained in a three-vehicle collision on Highway 401, four miles west of here late Thursday.

Dead is Ada Hoot, 71, of St. Claire Street, Michigan.

Brighton provincial police say the woman was a passenger in a car driven by Francis Lee Cone, 38, of East Detroit, Michigan. She was taken to Trenton hospital Thursday and subsequently transferred to hospital in Toronto.

Police say the Cone vehicle went out of control in the eastbound lanes of Highway 401, clipped a transport-trailer, went into the median, and rolled several times before coming into collision with a westbound vehicle.

Driver of the westbound vehicle, Terry Coughler, 16, of Kingston, was treated for minor injuries and released from Trenton hospital.

Damage to the Cone vehicle was estimated at $2,000 and the van labeled a write-off. The Coughler car sustained $500 damage. Damage to the truck was minimal.

Quinte Cuisine

Valerie Doxtater, teller at the Victoria and Grey Trust for nearly two years, says that Blueberry Buckle is a dessert she'd recommend in her days as a Rednesville 4-H member she found the recipe in a club cookbook, and both she and her mother have made it successfully ever since.

Blueberry Buckle

½ cup sugar
two cups all-purpose flour
2½ tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. salt
one egg
½ cup milk
¼ cup melted butter or shortening
two cups fresh blueberries
one tbsp. frozen unsweetened blueberries (11 ounces)

TOPPING:

½ cup sugar
one-third cup flour
½ cup soft butter
½ tsp. cinnamon

Sift the sugar, flour, baking powder and salt together in a mixing bowl.

Make a "well" in the centre and break in the egg. Add milk and melted butter, and beat these liquid ingredients in the centre with a spoon just enough to combine with the flour mixture.

Turn batter into a greased shallow baking dish and spread the partially-thawed blueberries over it.

Combine the topping ingredients to make a crumbly mixture and sprinkle over the blueberries.

Bake in a moderate oven at 350 degrees for 40 or 50 minutes.

LEMON SAUCE:

one tbsp. cornstarch
one-third cup sugar
grated rind of lemon
one cup cold water
one tbsp. butter
juice of one lemon, strained

Mix cornstarch sugar and lemon rind. Add water slowly and stir. Cook, stirring until sauce is thick and clear.

Add butter and lemon juice just before serving it piping hot over the blueberry cake.

Windatt's Windy Acres, a West Lake farm offers customers substantial savings through a pick your own plan. Here Paul Windatt, (left) and Mr. and Mrs. Elgar Hills sample the harvest.

'Pick-Your-Own' Popular Business

By MARG. HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

WEST LAKE — Labor problems and economic factors have prompted Windatt's Windy Acres Farm on West Lake Road to turn to pick your own sales for many of their fruits and vegetables.

Paul Windatt observed that it has become increasingly difficult to hire pickers. Most of the workers employed are teens or younger children anxious by mid-day in the fields.

"The availability factor is one problem," said Mr. Windatt.

He noted that with a pick your own plan usually the adults work in the fields and there is less plant damage.

Mr. Windatt formerly sold strawberries wholesale and spent a great deal of time on the road travelling to Belleville and other centres. A farm owned by Windy Acres Farm also was kept on the road to transport produce.

To cut down on time lost transporting strawberries and to alleviate the problem of finding reliable pickers Mr. Windatt has turned to the pick your own plan.

Windy Acres Farm has seven acres planted in strawberries and 25 acres in cherry orchards. To harvest the cherry crop a mechanical shaker is used to address the sales on the pick your own plan.

Mr. Windatt said one of the difficulties in hiring labor here is the fact there is a high concentration of berries in this area. There are approximately 50 to 100 acres of strawberries in Prince Edward County and about 100 acres immediately outside the county. This leads to picker shortages.

In 1974 Windy Acres Farm sold about 75 per cent of its strawberries through pick your own sales.

On Friday, the first day of pick your own for strawberries this year, a total of 145 boxes had been sold by mid-afternoon.

Mr. Windatt commented that at the peak of the season pick your own customers often must be turned away as earlier customers have already stripped the fields.

To control the pick your own operation a field supervisor is usually on duty in the strawberry patches.

Customers are considerate and seldom damage plants said Mr. Windatt. Five boxes of berries are "switched" on the pick your own plan. A total of one of these farms are in Prince Edward County.

The harvesting plan offers advantages not just to the customer but to the farmer.

Strawberries sold to pick your own customers Friday at Windy Acres were priced at 65 cents a box but in the store the asking price was about 80 cents.

The Windatts expect to offer customers an opportunity for sorting on other fruits and vegetables such as carrots and cherries later this season.

Pickers are asked to report to the farm's roadside market for directions to the fields. When produce is picked the customer, who furnishes his own containers, returns to the store to pay.

Against Alcohol

Women in Rhodesia's tribal areas are against alcohol. They are particularly opposed to the growth of bottle stores at every village business centre. As a custom the wife brews a pot of beer for her husband coming home on a visit. Now he comes home already drunk, having stopped at two or three village beer-drinks on the way.(UN Photo)

Rhodesian Women Anti-Mini

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (CP) — Women in Rhodesia's tribal areas are against miniskirts and alcohol.

One woman of 79 said: "A miniskirt is a disgrace and is at the root of all the immorality that abounds."

Her voice was one of many raised on the need to retain traditional customs and regain more effective influence over children, especially on their dress and behavior.

The women who were interviewed said they were going to see their chief about it. Thy want him to decree that all girls and women should wear skirts of a certain length and those that didn't comply be punished. They also want headmasters to bar girls in slacks from classes.

On alcohol, the women were particularly opposed to the growth of bottle stores.

As a custom the wife brews a pot of beer for her husband coming home on a visit from his work camp. She looks forward to having him appreciate this.

Now he comes home already drunk because he has passed two or three bottle stores on his way home and even has some extra bottles to last him over his brief stay.

The survey, entitled Women and Rural Development, was prepared by Anne Mujeni, 28, a research assistant with the University of Rhodesia's Institute of Adult Education.

It was paved on to the YWCA Council of Rhodesia which had received a request from the World YWCA in Geneva.

Authentic "voices from the villages" were wanted for a world publication.

The views of women were sought on what they thought the needs of their villages were, whether there were organizations working on these needs and what their ideas were on a good village life.

Miss Mujeni visited two tribal trust lands and interviewed almost 300 women.

She found that, seen individually, the women tended to be constrained, but they spoke more freely in groups. As a result her findings are based on consensus.

Her most surprising result was that urbanization was not regarded as the ideal but that a better life was wanted in the village context.

Many of the needs expressed involved improving agriculture, better extension services and other agencies would do better to concentrate more on women because they were a more permanent force on the land and were more willing to try out new ideas than men.

Younger women particularly were anxious to improve their own living.

Miss Mujeni's report said there was a strong indication that rural women would be keen to take an active part in developing if enough guidance and help was given but that many lacked confidence in their ability to help themselves.

Services provided by government and other agencies often seemed strange and threatening to a family in a remote village. Rural people were afraid of being ridiculed so they did not always take advantage of services that were available.

Doris Clark

Social Worker, Doctor Prescribed for Teen

Dear Doris: I quit school last June because I cannot get along at home. I was fighting everything. My father is an alcholic and he argues with me constantly. I moved out of my own three times.

But because of my nerves boils so jumpy I was laid off three jobs and quit one because I cannot get along with fellow workers.

I am trying to find a babysitting job where I can be my own boss but I love children. But most people are looking for mature ladies. I am 18. I have a steady boy friend, 24, who has made my life much happier but his work means going away and he wants to save some money so we can be married soon.

I don't want him to go away and I'm afraid, I've been having all kinds of nightmares. I had a miscarriage two weeks ago and I am very upset.

Dear Troubled: One dilemma piles itself on top of another, for you!

For the nervousness, I prescribe a social worker and a doctor. For your withdrawal and rejection of friends, I'd suggest you take a new look at yourself and discover the kindness which lie behind the faces of those you work with.

Don't take out on them the rejection you feel at home. Don't marry in haste.

And stop being scared. Being in your teens and feeling responsible is not easy for anybody. Try again, with another job, and with the help of someone who knows about your kind of difficulty — a social worker at an agency which likes and works with the not-quite-grown-up.

Dear Doris: I am a male 24 years old. Since my divorce I have dated a fair amount of nice girls.

Now these chicks fall in love with me every time, to exception! If I date a girl more than three times, the next thing I know we are sort of going steady. Yet the idea of matrimony begins to become apparent on the girl's part. Suddenly, when I stopped by them for their great company and desert, usually leaving the girl in a very sad state.

My problem is telling them it ld over. They don't own me. How about it, Doris? Am I the S.O.B. they say I am or am I just hilling a kinky group of chicks?

I hope you don't suggest that due to the fact my first marriage didn't work out I am afraid to take the plunge a second time or get out! — It's just that I would like to take advantage of what freedom I have left. I missed this freedom between the ages of 17 and 22.

Un-Serious (For Now).

Dear Un-Serious: No, they don't own you, unless you have to tell it like it is: That amorous on your three dates. Seems to me that right at the beginning you are going to have to tel it like it is: That you are looking for companionship and fun, and nothing more.

You waste a nice girl's time if you lead her on. And any woman in her 20's is likely to be thinking of a home and family once an "almost steady" looms on the horizon.

Ann Landers

Rape Victim Must Decide— Kick and Scream or Submit

Dear Ann Landers: You have printed two letters in the last several weeks advising women on how best to protect themselves against rape. The last letter advised screaming, kicking, karate chops, etc. I hope you will print my letter which is based on information from an expert. He is Frederic Storaska, founder of the National Organization for the Prevention of Rape and Assault.

According to Mr. Storaska, a woman should never scream, struggle, run or try to kick the rapist where it counts. If she does, the rapist is likely to silence her by strangling her or cracking her skull open. Struggling excites him. What's more, very few women are good enough at self defence to throw a would-be rapist and make a run for safety. As for carrying a weapon, he says it would probably be in her purse—the first thing a woman drops when someone grabs her.

Pleading, according to Mr. Storaska, is the rapist's pornography. It would merely intensify his desire. If a victim denounces him and shrieked obscenities, it would only heighten his rage and he would become even more dangerous. (The rapist is, as you know, not a woman-lover, but a woman-hater. His actions are not based on the desire for sex, but his deep-seated irrational loathing of women.

Mr. Storaska believes the best way to deal with a rapist is to turn him off by kicking, scratching, vomiting—something that will divert him from the act. Mr. Storaska does suggest, however, that if a woman feels her life is in danger she should press her attacker's eyeballs into his head as hard as she can if she can reach them. This could blind or kill him.

While Mr. Storaska admits that reporting a rape to the police is a distasteful business, he says all women, who have undergone the experience have a responsibility to society to report it in the hope that the rapist will be caught. Catching a rapist and convicting him, however, are not one and the same thing. About 65 per cent of all rapists who stand trial, according to this expert, are found "not guilty."—Avid Ann Fan

Dear Av: Thank you for another point of view. We now have two contradictory sets of instructions. Dr. James Gelkin, Director of the Center for the Study of Violence at Denver General Hospital, says "Scream, kick, yell your head off—unless the rapist enters the bedroom and puts a gun to your head or a knife to your throat." Mr. Gelkin says a woman is the side which makes the best choice. Selkin's position is supported by some impressive statistics. Fewer than nine per cent of the Denver women who screamed and fought back suffered anything more than a cut or a bruise.

She's A Garbage-Girl

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) — Many people with a desire to be outdoors have led 19-year-old Margueite Neale into the job of garbage-truck swamper. As the first female sanitation employee west of the Rockies, Miss Neale, once a clerk-typist, has been her salary jump from $400 a month to more than $700.

"The fresh air wasn't bad," she said, "the second day I was as stiff as a board."

Nova Scotia Task Force Studies Status of Women

HALIFAX (CP) — "Only by people feeling free to come to us and talk, will we achieve success."

That is the feeling Dr. Mairi St. John Macdonald has had since she assumed the role of directing the Nova Scotia Task Force on the Status of Women.

"Some people are not comfortable telling others what they feel but in some way, members of the task force must overcome this problem," said Dr. Macdonald, assistant dean and director of education and summer school at Mount St. Vincent University. "A person must feel free to express what is in his or her heart."

There was need for the task force to act with sensity "without becoming dogmatic."

The task force has launched a series of meetings in centres throughout the province where "we would hope to listen to everyone," Dr. Macdonald said.

"We shall also have something to be informed. We have not been appointed to make speeches; these are not private lecture tours.

"We certainly do not want to appear to be a high-power group."

CP News Roundup

Medicine Practised By Nurses

TORONTO (CP) — Hundreds of nurses are practising medicine, surgery, obstetrics and pharmacology illegally and the law should be changed to allow it, says Dr. Gordon Giugras, former president of the Canadian Medical Association.

He told the closing session of the Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario's annual meeting Saturday that doctors cannot do everything and nurses learn to delegate authority.

"What would happen in the recovery rooms of our hospitals, what would happen in the Far North and in Developing countries if nurses did not practise medicine?" he asked.

The executive director of the Montreal Rehabilitation Institute said laws governing medicine and nursing must be changed to permit nurses with appropriate experience to do legally what they are forced to do illegally.

Dr. Giugras also criticized the increasing use of nursing placement agencies, under which patients are sometimes referred to by a different nurse every day.

Dr. Giugras said the sick, old, chronically ill and developmentally disabled starve for contact, communication and sympathetic care.

Man, Aged 105, Is Charged With Murder

APOPKA, Fla. (AP) — Ed (Possum Slim) Myers, a 105-year-old self-described "wild rabbit," says he's not worried about a possible life sentence in the electric chair for his friends.

"Jiff! I reckon I've had it," Myers said. "I'd rather be in the chair—Reeves—than down here. But I'd hate to end my time on this earth in prison."

Myers was released from Lake County Jail on Saturday in the custody of a friend, he is charged with second-degree murder in the shooting death June 7 of Louise Stuart; 52, and the wounding of her companion, Sammy Tolbert, 44.

Myers told reporters he was justified in shooting Mrs. Stewart and Tolbert in the neighboring community of Sorrento because "they kept at me."

"They took all my money. I couldn't stand it no more."

Counsels Meet

EDMONTON (CP) — John Cassels of Ottawa was named interim president Sunday of the Canadian Association of Crown Counsels as the organization moved a step closer toward incorporation as a national body.

Meeting here during the weekend, representatives of crown prosecutors from eight provinces elected to return to their provincial associations and seek provincial financial assistance in establishing the national organization.

Media Criticized

SAUBLE BEACH, Ont. (CP) — Several members of Sauble Beach Chamber of Commerce lashed out at the media Sunday, saying published accounts by Toronto newspapers of the Victoria Day skirmish between campers and police were exaggerated.

"We've got somebody here that is informing them in Toronto," he said.

Lawyers Back Decision To Grant Boy Bail

TORONTO (CP) — An Ontario Supreme Court decision to release 16-year-old Lloyd Blake on $2,000 bail has received the support of the Criminal Lawyers' Association of Ontario.

Blake is one of three men charged with murder punishable by life imprisonment in connection with the March 18 shooting death of Toronto police officer Gordon Stoddart.

In a statement released Saturday, the association said it "opposes any recommendation that judicial release should be denied to any individual charged with murder."

The association said it believes the court should be free to decide if a 16-year-old youth, whose guilt has not been established, should be incarcerated in the Toronto jail for the possible six to 12 months prior to his trial.

A greater emphasis should be put on personal social services, such as non-medical services for the aged, day care centres and residential care for children who cannot live with their families, he said.
